Selectmen, Residents, Committee Meet To Discuss Cable Television

Mentioning the ability to broadcast local events, Jeffrey Forbes of the Massachusetts Cable Commission, stated Monday night that "what cable would mean for Winchester is literally its own television system."

Forbes, who was appearing at an open hearing on cable TV at the Board of Selectmen's meeting, along with the ad hoc Committee on Cable Television, noted that in 1973, "all cable had to offer was retransmission of broadcast programs." Now cable can offer alternative programming Forbes went on to say.

The purpose of the hearing was to assist the Selectmen in deciding whether or not to approve further action on accepting license applications. The board now has 60 days in which to decide, but Selectman Edward O'Connell indicated they would vote in favor of going forward well before that period is up.

"We believe the interest of Winchester residents in cable TV has increased significantly over the past few years," observed William McCarter, chairman of the committee on cable television. "It now appears likely applications will be filed."

"If you initiate the process here you'll probably have between four, eight or 10 applicants, noted Forbes.

O'Connell mentioned that he would be interested "if anyone in this room has any negative feelings against cable?"

One resident attending the hearing asked why the towns don't just run their own lines rather than go the contract route.

"I don't think the town is in the television business," said cable committee member Robert Granger. "The development of it requires a great deal of capital," pointed out McCarter. Selectman Wade Welch also noted the problem of an ongoing expense which would have to go before the Town Meeting each year.

O'Connell asked what the likelihood would be that a certain portion of the town would not be included in the cable contract because of their location.

"The newly developed parts of town which have cables under ground will have the most difficulty," noted cable committee member Charles Viglas. He figured this to be about 10 percent of Winchester.

A number of residents who have reception problems at their homes were present at the hearing. "We get very poor reception at the lower end of the mountain," noted one resident.

"I just put in a new antenna and I can't get anything," stated another.

A number of representatives from various cable companies, who were attending the hearing, stated that they felt they could meet any time requirements the Selectmen might impose upon them.

In a preliminary report to the selectmen in November of 1973, the cable committee recommended that the town not become financially involved with the construction or operation of a cable TV system in Winchester.

The report went on to recommend that the town "should ultimately grant a license to a private operator and should oversee the franchise only where necessary to protect or enhance community interests."

In the spring of 1977, the selectmen asked the committee to update that report and present a more current recommendation. This led to Monday night's hearing.

Election Denies Funds For Transfer Station, Collection

Saturday's election to reinstate funds for garbage collection service and increased hours at the transfer station failed to reverse a spring Town Meeting vote to cut those services. The petitioners of the two referendum questions, however, are calling the election a victory.

The special election, initiated by two citizen's petitions for the referenda, needed 20 percent of the voters to come out to the polls to make the vote valid. Saturday, just over 17 percent of the town's 12,732 registered voters cast their ballots. A total of 2546 votes was needed on each question to reach the 20 percent mark.

Despite the low turnout, those who did vote showed a two to one preference for reinstating the funds for garbage collection service and transfer station hours. This, says original petitioners Clara Hewis and Vincent Carroll of the Winchester Taxpayers Association, is a victory in itself.

Question one, which asked the town to reinstate $30,099 for continuation of garbage collection service, received 1539 yes votes and 754 no votes, for a total of 2293 votes.

Question two asked for the reinstatement of $37,161 for increased hours at the transfer station. Town Meeting cut the transfer station hours from 72 per week to 48 per week. The new schedule went into effect this week.

Question two received 1427 yes votes and 862 no votes for a total of 2289 votes.

For a breakdown of precinct voting, see the chart accompaning this story.

Carroll and Hewis both said they do not intend to let the issue drop. They plan to ask Town Meeting to reinstate the funds at either a Special Town Meeting this summer, or at the fall annual Town Meeting.

"Our position is a two to one vote is something you can't ignore," Hewis said. "It proves Town Meeting doesn't represent its constituents. Fifteen hundred people will expect Town Meeting to take proper action."

Hewis said members of the Taxpayers Association will be meeting soon to decide whether they want to place an article during the summer Special Town Meeting or wait until the fall.

To be placed on the warrant for a Special Town Meeting, citizen's petitions must have 100 signatures. Annual Town Meeting articles require only 10 signatures.

Hewis and Carroll, however, obtained approximately 600 signatures, to place the two questions on the special election ballot Saturday.

"Some people argue we should wait until November, to feel the effects (of the cut)," Hewis said. "But I don't think it's necessary to rub someone's nose in it to prove they're doing something wrong." uPD Timing is important in their decision of when to petition, however, she said. Hewis and Carroll both said they want the questions to come up again when people are home from summer vacations.

Carroll stated that holding the election on Saturday was one reason the needed 20 percent of the voters did not turn out. He said he received many calls from people who said they were angry the election was not held during the week.

"If it had been on a Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday, we know we would have made it," he said.

The Selectmen voted to hold the election on a Saturday for several reasons. One reason cited was the low voter turnout on Tuesday elections. A special School Committee election held in June on a Tuesday brought out only 10 percent of the voters.

Commenting on the election results, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Richard Wilsack, said he thought Town Meeting members do represent the entire community, despite the two to one vote in favor of reinstating the funds.

He noted any special election will bring out the proponents of an issue. The voters on Saturday, he said, just voted on one issue, and didn't see the whole town budget like the Town Meeting members did.

Overheated Wire Causes Fire At Standish Lane Home

An overheated electrical wire in the gutter of 2 Standish ln. has been cited as the cause of a mid-afternoon fire last Friday, causing approximately $5000 in damage. The wire, which is used to melt ice in in the gutter during the winter, was apparently switched on by mistake, according to Winchester Fire Chief Robert McElhinney. "The switch was probably on for a couple of days," noted McElhinney. "Most of the fire was contained to the attic though. I'd say there was at least $5000 in damage."

The rear exterior of the house and the interior of the attic were burnt in the fire. There was also smoke damage toughout the house.

Firefighters used lines of one and one-half inches to the rear and front of the house, which was unoccupied at the time.

In other fire news, firefighters responded to a box alarm at St. Mary's School last Thursday morning and found a Ford Mustang involved in flames.

Fireman used 700 feet of booster and 150 feet of one and one-half inch hose to extinguish the blaze, which is believed to have been set.

New Life At West Point Starts For Winchester Girl

By ALICE WILDING-WHITE

The day begins with reveille at 6 a.m. Only 15 minutes later, the new cadets have 55 minutes of physical training. After breakfast, the hard work continues. Every hour is filled with classes, calisthenics, or organized athletics. Then, the exhausted cadets end the day with taps at 10 p.m.

For the next four years, Sarah Fotsch of 16 Elm st. will face this type of schedule at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Her six-week training period, the most difficult part of a cadet's education, began July 2. Fotsch said in an interview, "if I can make it through the first six weeks, I will come out a stronger person. Stronger than if I attended a regular co-ed school."

Fotsch fully realizes, and accepts, the difficulties she will face. The physical and emotional strain, and the discipline appear as a challenge to her. She feels discipline is good, but she knows it will be "really gruelling."

"I will be doing something every minute," she said. "The emotional stress will be hard."

Admitting that she is a little afraid, she said "right now, I don't know how I'm going to make it," but she feels she needs to be challenged.

She views West Point "as a duel challenge. Something that trains a person both physically and mentally." She understands she has a five year commitment to the army after graduation, but she "hopes that what I will gain will make it worth it."

Aside from facing the regular difficulties of adapting to military life, she has to put up with harassment for being a woman. Only five percent of West Point's students are women, and the last all-male class graduated this year. She said there are some men who feel women do not belong at West Point, and that they give women a hard time.

Fotsch originally applied to, and was accepted by, all three military academies; Navy, Air Force, and Army. Senator Kennedy appointed her to West Point, and Congressman Markey nominated her for the Navy and Air Force academies. West Point received over 3000 applications from women, and Fotsch was among the 110 to be accepted.

She chose West Point for several reasons. She feels the relationship between teachers and students is good. All the professors live on the base, and are easy to contact. The classes are fairly small, the largest being 18 students.

The facilities for cross country running, Fotsch's favorite sport, and pasttime, also attracted her to West Point. The coach wants her to be on the track team. She said "I never thought I was good enough to be on a college team." West Point supplies all equipment, and has an orthopedic doctor.

Fotsch is a 1979 graduate of Winchester High School, and is the daughter of Drs. Paul and Estelle Fotsch. She has three brothers, David and Sam, who attend College in Wisconsin, and Lawrence, who will be a junior at WHS. Her family came to Winchester from Wisconsin, where they had lived for nine years, in 1976.

While in high school, she was constantly involved in sports, and she received many awards in recognition of her achievements. She played on a Wisconsin regional basketball team, and was on junior varsity at WHS. As a member of a Winchester swim team, she was given the most improved award.

Her most outstanding accomplishments were in track. She began running when she was a freshman, and gradually built up to jogging six to eight miles a day. She was on the cross country team three years, and was captain during the last winter season, and tri-captain the past spring season. She ran for two seasons on the Middlesex All Star League.

Fotsch has competed in several marathons. She ran in the Boston Bonnie Bell Mini Marathon, which is 6.2 miles, twice, finishing in the top 125, out of 1000 runners, both years. This year, she placed second in the Winchester Marathon.

Academically, she worked hard, taking an extra course each semester. She received recognition from the English Department for her writing skills, and published poems in the quarterly Running Magazine this spring.

Her extracuricular interests include clarinet, which she played in the WHS band and orchestra, pottery, macrame, drawing, and most sports.

Actively involved in the United Church of Christ, she was a member of a youth group called Forum. As the worship secretary, she participated in services that were held every Sunday.

"It was a really good experience," commented Fotsch. "It made you able to ask questions among your peers, and learn together."

Last summer, she worked with the church "Just a Start" program for the disadvantaged in the inner city. She said it was a "fantastic way to spend a summer." Fotsch worked at a playground, organizing games, and preparing for competitions between different parks. She said "what I really enjoyed about the program was learning about people from other cultures."

Also in connection with her church, she attended a survival seminar. They learned what they could eat in the wild, and bushwhacked up mountains.

Sarah Fotsch

Fotsch is not sure what her future plans are. She does not know if she wants to be an army officer. Since she enjoys both sciences and arts, she is uncertain which she will pursue when she completes her military service.

In a secton of WHS yearbook that describes the students, one quote appropriately depicts Fotsch. It reads:

"Harbors are safe places for ships, but that isn't what ships are for."

The path along the duck pond in Winchester Center provides a quiet route to just roll along.

Telephone Solicitations Upset Merchants

A number of Winchester merchants are both angry and bewildered over telephone advertising solicitation programs conducted last week in town, one on behalf of the Winchester Police Relief Association and the other purportedly on behalf of the American Legion.

In both cases the calls were not coming from members of the organizations in whose behalf the funds were being raised, but from professional salesmen who are constantly on the telephone putting the arm on businessmen for "ads."

And in both cases the primary distribution of the "ad book" is limited primarily to those other advertiserss who've also advertised in the book.

The Winchester police union hired M.J.M. Publishing Cimpany of Cranston R.I. to make the solicitations for an ad book, the proceeds of which are to support the associations death benefits.

What most of the local merchants have not been told, however, is that the booklet will only be circulated to those who buy the ads and passed out at the policeman's ball.

"We have had several complaints," notes Janet Boone of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce. "It seems to me to be, frankly, a big rip-off because the ads only go to the other advertisers."

Boone went on to add that some of the caller merchants who complained claim that the calls they got sounded "very harassing." Boone also mentioned that people tend to get excited when the caller states he is representing the police.

"It's not a very good deal and the fact that it is the police is somewhat intimidating," Boone feels. "It has a psychological effect."

Charles Culhane, President of the WPA, feels that that is an unfair opinion. He also noted that every precaution was taken to insure that there would not be any problems with the merchants.

"We have a policeman with all of the callers," Culhane points out. "If someone does have a problem I'd like to hear from them so we can work it out."

One businessman, who purchased a business card size ad for $50, stated that, "I usually say no when they call me for a donation. But because it was for the Winchester Police I gave." He went on to mention that he was never told who the ad book would be going to.

A businessman, who also complained to the chamber, and who runs a large local business, said he was told the "business card" size ad rate was $100, not $50 and that the full page rate was $375.

Another businessman, who also bought a $50 business card ad, stated that the caller who spoke to him did not go into a lot of detail and "didn't make it clear" as to what he was actually buying into. He also mentioned that he was not told who the ad book would be going to. "I didn't think I was pressured into it. But the police have done a lot for me so I bought in."

This is the first year that the WPA has employed the M.J.M. Publishing for the annual ad book drive. Presently, the Police Association provides a $6000 death benefit, added to a benefit of about $2000 which the town supplies its workers.

Culhane mentioned that the contract with M.J.M. GUARANTEES THE Relief Association $5000 out of what is collected. From the remaining funds, M.J.M. will then take their expenses and the rest will be split 75-25 in favor of the Relief Association.

How much the publishing company will charge in expenses is not yet known according to Don McNamee, attorney for the Winchester Police Association. "It all depends on what their volume is because the bigger the volume the greater the expenses.

At the same time this week Winchester businessmen were hit with another ad book scheme with calls which sounded like the local American Legion post calling "to raise money to buy sports equipment for the kiddos."

This turned out to be another boiler room phone operation in Boston which, when pressed for details first said they were calling for "the state American Legion" and were just calling "in Winchester," not for Winchester. But when pressed further they changed their story to say "actually our contract is with Legion Post 380 on C Street in Quincy."

The solicitor who called The Winchester Star identified himself as Frank Russo of Winston Associates, Boston. When asked for details he said the number of ad books to be printed "all depends on how many ads we get. If we get 100 ads then we'll print 200 books."

As soon as the questioning got tougher, Russo turned the phone over to Fred Kleinerman who at first denied he was an owner of the company and said his title was "Managing Associate Partner." But later in the conversation mentioned "two of us who are the owners."

Kleinerman was very enlightening about how the phone solicitations work. He claimed his firm was strictly legitimate but was aware "it all has a stigma attached to it when done on a small scale. It's not respected unless you've got someone like Jerry Lewis involved."

He noted that "the guys here don't work on salaries, they work on a percentage." He said he wasn't involved with the Winchester Police Association solicitation which was made the previous day, and added he probably wouldn't be interested in doing a "police deal" in Winchester although he did handle the solicitations for the Boston Police Patrolmen's Association.

"Winchester is what I call a below medium deal as an area," he said "It's not worth it to us to give a client a lot of percentage of (an area like) Winchester." He added "If we were to go in there and we know the firm who did it in the past we'd go lightly, if you know what I mean. If the previous gross was $20,000 and if we felt it was strongarmed in the past, we'd reduce the gross to say about $12,000."

Kleinerman went on to say "When you're doing a police deal you can't press too hard because the businessman never is really sure if he's talking to a police officer or a salesman."

Asked how much the American Legion was getting out of every dollar raised by this phone solicitation, he said "I'm not allowed to give that out." He said that people think that the client is not getting much but "they're getting more than they could get on their own and that's why they hire us."

Pressed further, he stated "Every deal is negotiated differently. Some after you raise so much money you get so much percentage and then if you raise more you get more. Some deals are constantly negotiated as you go along, like the American Legion."

He added "There are some fund raising groups out there really pushing people to the walls with stupid deals — real fruitcake deals where they go out for all they can get."

Asked again what the American Legion got out of this particular "deal" and the money raised in Winchester, Kleinerman said "Sometimes it's 50-50 sometimes it's 60-40." He later went on "We just hit a really sore point and it appears that I'm being evasive but I repeat, the American Legion says I can't give it out to you, you'll have to call the State House."

"The State House?," The Star asked. He replied yes but couldn't give the name of a person to talk with there saying "Just ask for the Adjutant in charge."

But then someone was overheard speaking to him while he muffled the phone and he came back to say "Actually our contract is with Post 380 on C Street in Quincy."

Captain Dick Clifton (center) hosts four-hour boat trips to Boston Harbor every Wednesday for senior citizens. The boat leaves from the Medford Boat Club and can take 10 to 12 people, with reservations. Last Wednesday Clifton was joined by Audrey Smith (left) and Ralph and Olive Hatch. Selectmen's Notes

King Banned

King, a dog owned by Ralph Powers of Meridan road, was banned from the town by the Board of Selectmen Monday night. The dog has been the source of several complaints, most recently from Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stolow.

According to Dog Officer Nick Molea, King bit the Stolow's daughter on June 2. A friend of the Stolow family brought a photograph of the bite to show the board.

Molea reported that the dog is now living on a farm in Vermont. He removed the dog from the Powers' home June 29.

Molea said in his opinion, the dog is "a little vicious."

Selectman Barbara Hankins asked Molea why it took from June 2 to June 29 to have a dangerous dog in the town removed. Molea replied that he would have to obtain a court order to seize the dog on the owners property.

The Selectmen told Molea that in the future if he thinks a dog is vicious, he should remove the dog.

Summer Baseball Season Opens

The McDonald Field baseball season is now open. McDonald played Ginn Field on Wednesday and Friday. On Wednesday, the McDonald A team defeated the Ginn A team 11-4 behind the strong pitching performance of Jimmy Gibbons.

But while the A team was winning, the B team was losing. The starting nine of David DellaGrotte, John McGeehan, Mike White, Bobby Paine, Brian Gannon, Mike Breen, Rich Haggerty, Greg Winn and Mark Govostes fought a hard battle but came up short.

Friday was much the same story for the B Team. Ginn was victorious again over the hard fighting McDonald team. The McDonald A team didn't have enough players for the game against Ginn.

Serving The Community For Over 95 Years

'The Great Anniversary'

In observance of Independence Day, we are offering some excerpts from letters written by John Adams in early July, 1776:

The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epocha in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to A God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward, forevermore.

You will think me transported with enthusiams, but I am not. I am well aware of the toil, and blood, and treasure, that it will cost us to maintain this declaration, and support and defend these States. Yet, through all the gloom, I can see the rays of ravishing light and glory. I can see that the end is more than worth all the means, and that posterity will triumph in that day's transaction, even although we should rue it, which I trust in God we shall not.

Yesterday the greatest question was decided which ever was debated in America, and a greater, perhaps, never was nor will be decided among men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting colony, "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, and as such they have, and of right ought to have, full power to make war, conclude peace, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which other States may rightfully do."

You will see in a few days a Declaration setting forth the causes which have impelled us to this mighty revolution, and the reasons which will justify it in the sight of God and man. A plan of confederation will be taken up in a few days.

When I look back to the year 1761, and recollect the argument concerning writs of assistance in superior court, which I have hitherto considered as the commencement of the controversy between Great Britain and America, and run through the whole period from that time to this, and recollect the series of political events, the chain of causes and effects, I am surprised at the suddenness as well as greatness of this revolution.

Britain has been filled with folly, and America with wisdom. At least, that is my judgment. Time must determine. It is the will of Heaven that the two countries should be sundered forever. It may be the will of Heaven that America shall suffer calamities still more wasting, and distress yet more dreadful.

If this is to be the case, it will have this good effect at least. It will inspire us with many virtues which we have not, and correct many errors, follies and vices which threaten to disturb, dishonor and destroy us. The furnace of affliction produces refinement in States as well as individuals.

And the new government we are assuming in every part will require a purification from our vices, and an augmentation of our virtues, or they will be no blessings. The people will have unbounded power, and the people are extremely addicted to corruption and venality, as well as the great. But I must submit all my hopes and fears to an overruling Providence, in which, unfashionable as the faith may be, I firmly believe."

Bottle Bill Necessary Says Rep. Saltmarsh

A bottle bill is necessary not only for Massachusetts, but for every state in the nation according to Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr. who is the sponsor of legislation to provide economic incentives for consumers to return used beverage containers and to encourage the conservation of materials and energy through recycling and reuse.

A substitute version of the Saltmarsh bill has been passed by the House. Last week it won approval in the Senate but with the addition of an amendment that would exempt communities located within five miles of the New Hampshire and Rhode Island borders. The amended bill now waits concurrence by the House.

"Two years ago when we worked to get this legislation passed the emphasis was on litter prevention," Saltmarsh said.

"Today that priority pales when compared to the energy crunch. And although not too much emphasis has been placed on it, we're also experiencing a serious resource crunch. This bill would deal effectively with all three problems," he claimed.

"A returnable bottle and can system will complement our recycling programs. Only 2.6 per cent of all disposable beverage containers are returned," he continued. "It is estimated a returnable bottle can be refilled at least 10 times and aluminum cans can be recycled. The energy used by beverage container manufacturers can be reduced by 44 percent when returnables replace throwaways. In addition, steel, glass and aluminum consumption can be reduced and the imports of bauxite can be cut back.

"It's time we stop throwing away our resources and begin to place value on items we have mistakenly regarded as expendable," Saltmarsh said. "We have consumed too much, too fast without thought of tomorrow's need."

The bill would set a refund value of five cents on containers of less than 32 ounces and 10 cents on larger ones. Vending machines would also require the deposit fee and refunds will be provided.

Exempt from the legislation are containers for alcoholic beverages other than beer, dairy products, natural fruit juices, wines and containers made of biodegradable materials. The Secretary of Environmental Affairs would be responsible for the administration of the

Beacon Hill Roll Call

The House

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on five key roll calls from last week's House session.

House Budget (H 6400) - House rejected 153-0 the Senate's $5.36 billion version of the fiscal 1980 state budget. The Senate version focuses on tax relief through raising personal income tax exemptions and reducing the 7.5 percent state income surtax to 5 percent. The House version emphasizes increased local aid for direct property tax relief.

Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. voted against the Senate version.

Captial Punishment (H 6452) - House gave initial approval 108-46 to a bill restoring the death penalty in Massachusetts. The legislation establishes 12 categories of murder punishable by death including killing a policeman, firefighter, or correctional officer in the line of duty; killing by someone previously convicted of first-degree murder; killing by a paid hired killer; killing while hijacking a plane or school bus; killing during a kidnapping for ransom; and killing in connection with rape.

In addition, the bill provides for a separate presentence hearing when a defendant is found guilty of a crime punishable by death. At that hearing, the jury listens to testimony and under certain guidelines, decides whether the death penalty is imposed.

Saltmarsh voted for it.

Odd-Even Plan - House rejected 90-64 a motion to suspend rules to allow the introduction of resolutions petitioning Gov. King to implement odd-even gas rationing and other measures designed to alleviate the current crisis.

Supporters argued the Governor's half tank plan is not working, pointing out that attendants are afraid to stick their heads in peoples' cars, and many delaers do not like the plan and aren't cooperating. They noted other problems such as broken gas gauges and said that other states, like California which has the odd-even plan, no longer have long gas lines.

Some opponents said this was too serious a matter to suspend rules for, and said the resolutions should go to the Rules Committee for further review and study.

Others said the House should give the Governor's plan a chance to work.

Saltmarsh voted for rule suspension to allow introduction of the resolutions.

Oil Deregulation - House rejected 121-25 a move to suspend rules to allow introduction of resolutions urging the U.S. Congress to deregulate the oil industry and to establish a windfall profit tax upon the oil companies.

Supporters argued the resolutions would tell Congress the Massachusetts House is concerned with the energy situation and wants to express its concern and frustration and offer a solution. They said they supported deregulation and distributing the excess windfall taxes to consumers.

Some opponents said the resolutions were too important and should go to the Rules Committee for review and then be reported out to the House.

Saltmarsh voted for rule suspension.

Capital Outlay Budget (H 6550) - House approved 130-22 a capital outlay budget exceeding $161 million, for the consturction, alteration and improvement of vaious state institutions and properties and for the purchase of certain property. Items include $11 million for construction of a state archieves building and $9.7 million in improvements at Bridgewater State Correctional Institution.

Saltmarsh voted against the capital outlay budget.

The Senate

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on four key roll calls from the 1st week's session.

Bottle Bill Exemptions (H 6459) - Senate approved 24-15 a key amendment to the bottle bill legislation setting mandatory deposits on all beer and carbonated beverage containers. The amendment would exempt 54 communities, located within five miles of the borders of New Hampshire and Rhode Island, from the mandatory deposit law.

Sen. Samuel Rotondi voted for exempting the 54 communities.

Bottle Bill (H 6459) - Senate approved 24-15 the bottle bill legislation requiring a nickel deposit on all beer and carbonated beverage containers under 32 ounces and a dime deposit on those over 32 ounces.

The bill also exempts 54 communities bordering New Hampshire and Rhode Island from the bill.

Supporters argued the measure was a $65 million economic development bill and would help save the environment, reduce litter, conserve energy and help create jobs.

Opponents argued the bill would result in many job losses, claimed energy use would increase and said it would severely hurt the bottling industry.

Rotondi voted for the bottle bill.

Deficiency Budget (S 1963) - Senate rejected 29-4 an amendment to the $200 million deficiency budget. The Amendment requests that the Attorney General investigate whether the expenditure of funds in excess of those previously approved by the Legislature are a violation of state law.

Rotondi voted against it.

Police Education (S 1897) - Senate approved 17-14 but failed to gain the two-thirds margin necessary to override Governor King's veto of a bill allowing towns with populations of 5000 or less to exempt reserve or intermittent police officers from having to complete a mandated course of study in police training, if the exemption is approved by a majority vote of town meeting.

Supporters argued the training was a burden on some small communities, many of which have only a very small police force. Some noted the training was important, but claimed the burden on very small communities justified the exemption.

Opponents argued the training is provided without cost to the individual or the town and is acutally a home-study course

Rotondi voted for the bill.

House Survey

Parkhurst Home Built By Lewis Parkhurst In 1892

By HENRY SIMONDS

The Parkhurst home, on Oak Knoll is one of the residences in Winchester researched during the Historical Commission's House survey.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Parkhurst, who currently reside in the house recently received a certificate of the documentation of the history of the structure.

The first owner of the house was Richard Parkhurst's father, Lewis Parkhurst.

Lewis Parkhurst was born July 26, 1856 in Dunstable, and grew up on his father's farm. He attended Dartmouth College and graduated in the class of 1878. After graduation he was the principal of the High Street Grammar School in Fitchburg for two years and the principal of the Athol High School for one year. He served 33 years on the Board of Trustees at Dartmouth College.

In 1881 he and his wife, the former Emma Wilder, moved to Winchester and fist lived at 153 Mt. Vernon st. In 1892 he built the present house on Oak Knoll and lived there for 67 years until he died. The ownership passed to his son Richard. He and his wife, the former Katharine Ryder, still occupy the old homestead.

Lewis Parkhurst became principal of the Winchester High School in 1881 and resigned five years later to join Ginn & Company, a book publishing firm in Cambridge. In 1888 he became a partner and was elected treasurer, a position he held for 25 years.

He was one of the original petitioners of the Winchester Co-operative Bank in 1893. He was also one of the first signers of the articles of association of the Middlesex Bank, which later became the Winchester Trust Company and was the first president of this bank.

Parkhurst served as state representative in 1903 and a state senator in 1921 and 1922.

He was actively interested in the park system in Winchester and was influential in acquiring Mancester Field for the town. In 1925 he purchased all the land along the course of the Aberjona River between Cross street and Black Ball Pond. Later in 1932 he turned the land over to the town at the price he paid for it. Also he paid for clearing the course of Horn Pond Brook.

He made many contributions to the town, among them a library to the old High School, now the Lincoln School, in memory of his son Wilder Lewis of the class of 1902. The biggest contribution was the war memorial on the corner of Main street and Mystic Valley parkway.

In 1923 Parkhurst proposed to the town that a war memorial be erected and the money be raised by voluntary subscription which the town so voted. Herbert Adams, a famous sculptor, was engaged to design the statue. Since the voluntary amount was insufficient, Mr. Pakhurst agreed to pay the difference so that the memorial could be completed. It was dedicated on Oct. 3, 1926.

When the town celebrated the Tercentenary of the Mass. Bay Colony in 1930, Parkhurst was chairman of the Reception Committee. Mayor Collins and his wife of Winchester, England were among the invited guests who attended the celebration. His son, Richard, Commander of Winchester Post 97, was one of the marshals of the big parade on Oct. 13, 1930 and led the American Legion Division.

The Lewis Parkhurst School off Emerson road was dedicated in his honor in 1949. Shortly after, Parkhurst, one of the most highly respected and prominent citizens of Winchester died on March 29, 1949 at the age of 92.

Letters From Readers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Proposed legislative cuts threaten the most urgently needed service for our children. After years of work, an emergency shelter for children aged seven to 17 years old is on the brink of opening.

The shelter would house 10 children in crisis for 30 to 45 days. During this time, the children and thier families would be given help with overcoming the crisis which led to the need for emergency placement outside of the home.

Simultaneously, educational and vocational plans would be organized and implemented. The shelter would be open for admissions 24 hours a day and seven days a week. At last there would be a place for children who have nowhere else to go.

Years of work by a task force from the Mystic Valley and Met-Beaverbrook areas has resulted in getting all the pieces together. Grans from three different sources - the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Department of Public Welfare, and the Department of Mental Health were all needed to adequately fund such a complex project.

A suitable building was needed and a director of the project hired to locate and renovate one. The years of work are about to pay off. The grants were all obtained, the director hired, the facility found and the staff selected. The August opening date which seemed impossible only a few months ago became a miraculous reality. Or did it?

Now, at the 11th hour, the smallest grant for $40,000 coming through the Department of Mental Health is threatened to be cut from the budget by the state legislature. This sum of money is no more than one fifth of the amount it would take to set up and run the shelter for one year. However, there were no extras in the original budget. Without that one fifth, it is unlikely that the shelter could happen.

What can be done? We must call and write to our legislators immediately if this shelter is to be saved. Please help. The joint task force and the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center have gotten together the other four fifths and everything else that is needed.

Only the voices of our communities can stop this small but crushing blow to the project. Please act now. Next week will be too late.

Legislators are located in the State House, Boston, 02133.

Your state senator is Sameul Rotondi, room 508, telephone 727-8822. Your state representative is Sherman Saltmarsh, Jr., room 446, telephone 727-5374.

Betrayal

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Communists are gathering in Panama and Costa Rica for the over throw of the friendly and duly constituted government of Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua!

There is no question that the administration is in the process of enabling the Sandinista Communist terrorists to destroy our very good friend Somoza and made another Cuba out of Nicaragua within the next few days.

It is to be done primarily by preventing Somoza from being able to buy ammunition for even the arms that he has, while the terrorists are being supplied all the guns and ammunition they can use, through the helpful connivance of "our" government.

This is the same means and methods, of course, by which George Marshall enabled Mao Tse-Tung to take over mainland China from Chiang Kai-Skek; Eisenhowers' administration enabled Castro to take over Taiwan in due course.

What is planned for Nicaragua is simply a part of the same treasonous "encirclement" design as the surrender of the canal in Panama.

Our leaders in Washington must be told that it is in the best interest of the Americans and especially the United States that this invasion be opposed by our government by whatever means necessary.

The betrayal of friends like Nicaragua into Communist hands is outright betrayal of the American people!

Sympathy

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would just like to thank everyone in Winchester for their sympathy and kindness on the death of my sister Dot Lord. She will be missed by all of us who knew her well. Again, thank you all.

Town Meeting Date To Be Set

The Selectmen will probably set a date for the summer special Town Meeting at their meeting Monday night.

Last week, Winchester received word from the state that it is over the state legislated levy cap for next year. The Special Town Meeting is needed to see if Town Meeting members want to override the tax cap, or make further cuts in the town's budget to stay under the cap. A two-thirds vote will be necessary to override the tax cap.

Selectman Barbara Hankins said at the board's meeting Monday night she would like to see a tentative date for the meeting announced soon, so Town Meeting members can plan their vacation times around the special law and the Attorney General would prosecute violators.

Saltmarsh said that concern about potential job losses in the bottling plants has been dealt with by including in the bill a provision for a job retraining program to be created by the Department of Economic Affairs. "This would be available to anyone who loses a job as a result of this act in the glass container or beverage can manufacturing, soft drink bottling, beer distributing or corrugated board industries.

"Any such individual can be retrained in an occupation which will provide a rate of pay at least equal to the former job," Saltmarsh pointed out. "During the retraining, equal compensation will be paid up to a year. In addition, a dislocation allowance is available to those who receive unemployment compensation because of unavailability to work.

"According to the studies we have seen, the state should actually experience an increase in jobs," Saltmarsh said. "There will be openings in the distribution and collection areas and in the bottling plants that should offset any losses in the manufacturing plants.

"Taxpayers will benefit too," Saltmarsh added. "Beverage containers account for six percent of the average municipal wastestream. This amounts to 180,000 tons in Massachusetts and it costs over $4.5 million to collect and dispose of. Beverage containers comprise over 60 percent of the total volume of litter and the no deposit-no return system uses four times as much energy as returnable systems.

"It is estimated that a national bottle bill would save the equivalent of 81,000 barrels of oil per day or about 12 percent of the daily flow from the Alaska pipeline. If Massachusetts becomes the sixth state in the nation to enact a bottle bill, we will be in the vanguard of a conservation movement that will enable future generations to continue to enjoy the American way of life," Saltmarsh concluded.

Station Owners Indicate Hours To Selectmen

The Board of Selectmen are advising Winchester residents to patronize their regular gas station and watch station windows for posted hours to help combat long lines at the gas station.

The owners of Winchester gas stations met with two members of the Board of Selectmen Thursday night to discuss hours of service and compliance with state gas station orders.

Wade Welch and Edward O'Connell reported at the board's regular Monday night meeting, the owners seemed willing to cooperate and work together on gas station hours. As part of the plan, they said, the owners agreed to post hours in the station windows.

At the meeting were representatives from Theater Service Station, Main Street Texaco, Bossi's Exxon Service, Winchester Exxon Service Center, Ken's Mobil, O'Keefe Citgo, Keenan's Service, Inc., Winchester Brake and Allignment, Old Colony Petroleum, Turner's Amico Service, Turner's Sunoco Service, Reardon's Auto Service, Reardon's Auto Service Center, Inc., and O'Connell's Shell.

The representatives indicated their "best" and "worst" hours for operation at the meeting, which are now being reviewed by the board and the town manager.

Most stations indicated the early morning hours are best for business. There are several station in town open between the hours of 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. Most stations are open between 7 and 9 a.m.

The "worst" hours for business, the representatives said, are the late afternoon hours.

Town Manager Thomas Groux said that his office will watch the hours of the stations, and then, if needed, will come up with a uniform, coordinated system of hours.

Groux also said the town is processing requests for emergency gas allocations for stations tuat will be open additional hours. To date, he has received one petition for the additional allocations.

In coordinating the hours, Groux said, the station owners want to make sure tuat no one station is left open alone. This results in both long lines for the customers and depleted gas supplies for the station. Right now, Groux noted, the station owners can't depend on when they will get new deliveries of gasoline.

Selectman Welch suggested the board wait for the State House legislation to be "firmed up" before a program is planned by the town.

Part of Gov. Edward King's plan, O'Connell noted, says that gas stations should be open on weekends. Historically, O'Connell said, Winchester stations have been closed on Sunday.

But in discussing Sunday openings, O'Connell said, the station owners "didn't grumble" when it was suggested at least one station be "on call" Sundays for emergency use.

Residents Warned Of Con Men And Swindles

This is the season for flim-flam artists and con men to make their appearance warn area police. More than 800 different fraudulent schemes have been documented by the Massachusetts Crime Prevention Bureau.

Three common types of swindles which are prevalent at this time of year are the pocketbook drop, the bank examiner and the home repairmen repairman.

In the pocketbook drop, a stranger starts a conversation with someone, often an elderly person. A second stranger appears with a "found" envelope containing money.

In resolving what to do with the money, one of the strangers says he or she works for an attorney who will be asked for advice. The victim is soon told that the attorney advises that the "found" money should be shared by all three, but each must pledge money of his own.

The victim is instructed to withdraw cash from his bank. The person who allegedly works for a lawyer takes the cash to show the lawyer, then comes back saying the lawyer wants to see him. When the victim goes to finds the fictitious lawyer, the other two take off with the cash. This swindle has been performed by two women in this area in the past.

A man usually does the bank examiner swindle. He calls people claiming to be from a bank or police department. The "examiner" says some accounts at the bank show large withdrawals, and a dishonest bank employee is suspected.

The victim is asked to cooperate with the investigation by withdrawing money from a certain window. The victim is told to put the money in an envelope to be given to the examiner or his partner when they approach him. The money supposedly will be re-deposited, but when the victim returns to the bank to have the promised adjustment in the bank book made, he finds that he has been bilked.

The home repairman or engineer swindler rings doorbells and offers to check chimneys, furnace, catch basins or other installations. He may say that he just finished a job in the area and has some materials left over for a roof or driveway. He must be paid in cash.

Phoney inspectors will check heating or plumbing and find damage which must be repaired. The homeowner signs a contract and pays a down payment and the work is never done.

Another variation of this scheme is the car repair offer to fix damage at a low price. Sometimes the dent has been fixed with plaster and paint which fall off when the car goes over a pot hole.

The American Association of Retired Persons warns its members to be suspicious when they hear the following:

- cash. Whenever someone asks for cash, ask why cash and why not a check.
- secret plans. The intended victim should ask himself why he is being told not to tell anyone.
- get rich quick. Any scheme promising this should be viewed with suspicion.
- something for nothing. Again, this kind of scheme should be viewed with suspicion.

For protection against con artists AARP advises that people should not discuss their personal finances with strangers and should not withdraw cash from a bank at the suggestion of strangers.

Victims or near-victims should report the incident to the police and should be willing to testify in court if asked to do so to help stop this kind of criminal activity.

TIME TO RETIRE "THE TIRED ONE ?"

by Al LaPointe

It's time to think about your furnace system and how it's been treating you for the past several winters. After all, extremely cold weather will be coming again and the need for proper heat will be of concern for you once again.

If your furnace is over 15 years old, it is probably a "tired one." You're ready for a new space-saving WILLIAMSON furnace system.

The "tired one" is a furnace that is nearly worn out and only gives a reasonable amount of heat during the milder days of the heating season. When the temperature drops down below the 20's it's a different story. The "tired one" will not only give you cold rooms, floors, and drafty areas; but may actually leave you without heat.

With a new WILLIAMSON furnace installed by us at FEDERAL you'll be assured of a warm, toasty heat during those coldest days. We design our installations of WILLIAMSON furnace systems to give you a pleasant 70 degree when the outside temperature is zero. You'll also enjoy a noticeable savings on fuel averaging between 25-40 percent that will pay over the years for your new WILLIAMSON system.

That "tired one" of yours may also be giving you trouble because the distribution systen of ducts and registers is out of balance or improperly designed. That problem won't occur with a WILLIAMSON furance installed by FEDERAL. We offer a free survey of your home which determines the best way to supply ducts and registers from the furnace to every area of the house. With a wide range of sizes available in WILLIAMSON furnaces, you'll be assured of getting the right amount of heat for those cold days we were talking about.

If you feel your home could benefit with the installation of a new heating system, call Federal Heating day or nite at 623-1515 or 729-6866. There is no cost or obligation for this service.

What hotel to choose when traveling? Deciding upon which class hotel suits your family's taste and budget is usually dependent on one's destination. "First Class" or "DeLuxe" accommodations are usually the finest the area has to offer. But that does not necessarily mean that they are the best by everyone's standards. In general it is best to seek out the advice of an experienced traveler. Or ask us to outline some norms for the areas your family plans to visit.

Medical Auxiliary Elects Officers

The Auxiliary to the Middlesex East District Medical Society held its annual meeting on May 10 at the home of Mrs. George Hazel of Winchester.

The President of the Massachusetts Medical Society Auxiliary, Mrs. Leonard Bouras, installed the new officers, taking the gavel from Mrs. Milton Henderson, the outgoing president.

Newly elected district officers are: president, Mrs. Laszlo Vincze; vice-president, Mrs. Mark Berenson; recording secretary, Mrs. John Carrigan; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Graf; treasurer, Mrs. George Rowan; financial secretary, Mrs. Robert Fahey; assistant to financial secretary, Mrs. John MacDonald.

District chairmen are: Ways and Means, Mrs. Thomas Jakobovits and Mrs. Russell Jeffery; scholarship, Mrs. Anthony Penta, assisted by Mrs. Henry Haynes and Mrs. David Cohen; hospitality, Mrs. Goerge Hazel; program, Mrs. John Meskunas and Mrs. Donald Chipman; A.M.A.-E.R.F., Mrs. William Kermond; nominating, Mrs. Chalres Rooney and Mrs. George Kaknes; yearbook, Mrs. Harris Gibson; parliamentarian, Mrs. Peter Dillard; legislative chairman, Mrs. Walter Riester; membership, Mrs. Milton Henderson and Mrs. John Carroll; publicity, Mrs. Paul Schneller; historian, Mrs. Norman Goguen; and delegate to the State Nominating Committee, Mrs. Richard Stiles.

The Auxiliary was founded in 1948 and has grown from a group of 65 to its present membership of 160. One of the functions of the Auxiliary is keeping its members informed, through its legislative chairman, of legislative developments in health care matters. The decision by the group this year to join the National Society, in spite of the increase in dues that this entails, indicates the desire on the part of members to keep informed about national as well as local policies, and to see where service can be given towards health care programs such as immunization, or the Hospice program.

The Auxiliary considers one of its main contributions to the local community to be the offering of nursing scholarships. This year four awards of $500 each were made. Another Auxiliary contribution is to the A.M.A. Educational Resource Fund (E.R.F.)

Moneys given to this fund are used in two ways. One is by medical schools who may use it as they see fit, the uses ranging from the purchase of a new instrument to supporting its research. The other is to support a loan fund which helps guarantee loans to medical students and reduce the interest burden connected with them. Both the scholarship and the AMA-ERF contributions are raised by joint effort of all auxiliary members, with great enthusiasm and hard work on the part of its officers and chairmen.

*Federal regulations prohibit compounding of interest for Six-Month Money Market Certificates within the term of the certificate and subject withdrawals prior to maturity to forfeiture of three months' interest on the amount withdrawn. The effective annual yield is the amount of interest your money would earn if your principal and interest remain on deposit for an additional 26 weeks at the same rate (the actual rate may be higher or lower at the time of renewal). A $10,000 minimum is required.

The rate is guaranteed for the term of the certificate and interest is compounded continuously. A minimum deposit of $500 is required. Federal law subjects early withdrawals to forfeiture of six months' interest on the amount withdrawn.

HOW LARGE A DEPOSIT

Rather frequently the question arises as to how large a deposit a buyer should put down or, to put it another way, how much deposit should the seller reasonably require.

The deposit should be sufficient to make sure the buyer will have good reason to see the transaction through and to reimburse the seller for taking the property off the market and other incidental expenses in case the buyer defaults. The length of time from signing the agreement to the date of transfer may have a bearing on the amount of deposit, i.e., an agreement calling for performance in 90 days, for example, should require a substantial deposit; a 30 day agreement might call for less. Even in the latter case, however, a 30 day agreement due to unforseen circumstances may have to be extended and actually result in a 60 or 90 day agreement.

The term "deposit" as used above is to be distinguished from "earnest money" which is a relatively small payment intended to bind a sale until a formal agreement can be written.

AGENCY: Office of Federal Insurance and Hazard Mitigation, FEMA.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: Technical information or comments are solicited on the proposed base (100-year) flood elevations listed below for selected locations in the Town of Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts.

DATES: The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in the above-named community.

1. The functions of the Federal Insurance Administration Department of Housing and Urban Development, were transferred to the newly established Federal Emergency Management Agency by Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1978 (43 FR 41943, September 19, 1978) and Executive Order 12127 (44 FR 19367, April 3, 1979).

ADDRESSES: Maps and other information showing the detailed outlines of the flood-prone areas and the proposed base (100-year) flood elevations are available for review at the Office of the Town Engineer, Winchester, Massachusetts.

Send comments to: Mr. Thomas Groux, Town Manager of Winchester, 71 Mount Vernon Street, Winchester, Massachusetts 01890.

Squaw Sachems Tip Arlington Capture Title

When the playoff game began, every girl on the soccer field knew, down to the tips of her cleats, it was going to be tightly drawn. Winchester's Squaw Sachems and the Arlington Amazons had ended up their regular seasons with identical 7-1 records. Their single losses had been to each other, 1-0.

Squarely on the kickoff line was a Class D divisional championship in Boston Area Youth Soccer. Perhaps, among third and fourth graders, the game might turn on a nervous mistake. It didn't. Victory came from the wings, on a cool and classic play. And the final score was Winchester, 1-0.

Only seven minutes had elapsed that muggy late-afternoon of June 22. Parents were still straggling in, some straight from work, setting up a battery of lemonade dispensers when Winchester's left wing, Meghan Guarnotta, made her run. She got an out-pass from her center half, Lauri Mahoney, and dribbled forward.

Arlington's defense tended to cluster the center, and the Sachems had aimed from the outset to outflank them with wing attack. Meghan now angled toward the near post. She lured out an Arlington fullback, then made a perfect cross-pass in front of the goal.

Winchester's top scorer, Charlotte Reece, was there. She trapped the ball, played it low from four yards out. It bounced off another Amazon fullback's legs. The Arlington goalie went for it. Charlotte was quicker. Darting to the left, she shipped the ball, one-time, over the goalie's head and into the promised land.

"I knew my pass was good, and I knew Charlotte would get off a shot," said Meghan later. "But I didn't know it would win the game."

It did. The young Sachems threatened a dozen other times and fired a handful of close shots, including a penalty kick in the second half. Yet nothing else dropped. Arlington, behind booming clears, launched a few penetrations; one ground shot, late in the game, rolled tantalizingly across the goal mouth. But Winchester Goalie Nancy Sampson covered it with one of her many diving saves.

As with their scores throughout the season, the play between these two young teams who had dominated their league was toe-to-toe. Arlington, the larger squad, hung tough defensively, pounced on mistakes. If Winchester was the smallest team in the league, however, they were also the fastest. And ball control, with relentless, flooding attack, was their game.

Sachem halfbacks Kathy Furey, Lauri Mahoney, Mary Baruffaldi shuttled in and out of the playoff game with counterparts Kara Rossi, Maura Nagle, and Alexis Wiedwald. With hard tackling, with catlike intercepts, these fresh threesomes kept Arlington in its backyard most of the long 60 minutes.

Deft body-traps, iron-hearted challenges, and deep downfield clears by Winchester fullbacks Joanne Shusta, Damaris Hagge, and Sandra Riley sealed off the Amazon breakthroughs. Canny, as usual, at sweeper, Sandra slashed forward of the midfield line again and again to intercept and start a Sachem attack.

And when that happened, also as usual, the Squaw Sachem forwards unleashed their wide, run-and gun assault. Few could keep up. Passing on the give-and-go, weaving on the dribble, making the good cross, Charlotte Reece, Emily Doherty, Katherine Hewitt, Meghan Guarnotta, and Kara Rossi swarmed among defenders like locusts in blue-and-white.

In game after game those early Saturday mornings all the long spring, this had been the Sachem style. Their most explosive game had been their first against the Belmont Boomerangs. Scores came from everywhere. Half-backs Kathy Furey and Mary Baruffaldi got three coming in from the back.

Emily Doherty angled one in from right wing. And Katherine Hewitt, always fast, tough-trapping, always aggressive in the goal area, punched another in from close range.

This 5-1 shootout also proved to be the season's finest for a number of defenders. Shrewd, steady, and strong, fullback Jane Williamson turned back six straight attacks in one five-minute span with bold, soaring clears. Fullback Emily Budd came into her own, twice wading into a swarm of three attackers to tackle away the ball. And goalkeeper Anne Mueller made a host of outstanding saves.

Winchester's toughest game, outside of the playoff, was the second Arlington Amazon game. It was in the rain. The tackling and tackling back was intense. Sachem right half Amy Derry distinguished herself with a series of model traps, passing through to trigger the run-and-gun.

Emily Doherty, who would finish the season with four goals, iced this one with a shot to the right corner: 1-0.

The Sachem's 2-1 victory over the Belmont Bobwhites, late in the season, put them in undisputed first place. They would never give it up. That game also turned out to be the season's finest hour for fullback Sandra Bennett and right wing Kimberly Croston — both of whom repeatedly took on Belmont's star halfback, a persistent dribbler, repeatedly won the ball.

It was a season they would remember. They had trained hard, run hard, learned to play smart soccer. They had never expected the season to turn on one play.

"When I saw that shot go over the goalie's head," said Charlotte Reece, who had scored a dozen and sparked a number more, "I looked over at Meghan and Katherine. They were going wild. I thought, Hey, here comes the trophies."

CPI Heavy Hitting Rolls Over Hallies

The score was only 12-8, but last Friday night's Century Publications victory over the Winchester Town Hallies was much more convincing than that.

Led by a balanced offensive attack which had the CPI club on top 6-0 after three innings and the fine pitching of Bob Morello, the Town Hallies were never able to recover.

The Town Hallies made a late charge behind Jake "Never-Say-Die" Ciarcia, but it was too little too late. A ninth inning homerun by Century's Peter Accaro added the final touches to CPI's triumph.

Century will take this week off, while the Town Hallies will look about town for another challenge.

Copies of the Century Publications Guide for Publicity Chairmen are available at no charge in the offices of The Winchester Star, The Arlington Advocate, and The Belmont Citizen.

Auxiliary Police Donate CPR Tools

Last Thursday, the Winchester Auxiliary Police Association presented a gift of three pieces of cardio-pulmonary equipment to the Winchester Police Department. In an evening ceremony, the auxiliary group made the presentation of two CPR training dummies and an oxygen tank locker for the safety car.

The CPR devices are an adult size, life-like torso which fully simulates all circulation and breathing functions, known as "Anatomic Anne," and an infant dummy which is built to fully simulate the breathing and chest structure of a child. In weight, texture, and functions, the dummies are the latest in modern trianing equipment.

The devices were demonstrated by Officer William Saraco, CPR training officer. He showed the proper methods used in the life saving techniques of CPR, and how both dummies accurately simulated real life situations. He indicated the real need for proper training and equipment in learning the CPR procedures.

Making the presentation was Auxiliary Sergeant Albert Venuti, president of the Auxiliary Police Association. Accepting for the Police Department were Chief John P. McHugh and Officer Saraco. The equipment will be used to train regular and auxiliary members of both the Police and Fire departments.

Sergeant Venuti indicated that the funds for the equipment were raised by the Auxiliary Police with the generous assistance of both the Enka Society and the Christopher Columbus Club.

Chief McHugh expressed the thanks of his department for the donations and indicated that they would be put to immediate and frequent use.

"If they aid in saving one life," he said, "their value is incalculable." He went on to praise the efforts of the Auxiliary Police in their assistance to the town.

The all volunteer group has been in operation for almost 40 years and has donated many 1000s of hours to the town.

"It is," Chief McHugh said, "a credit to the town that citizen participation from organizations such as the Auxiliary, the Enka, and the Christopher Columbus Club is given so freely."

The Auxiliary Police participate in many town functions year round in emergency situations and in police patrol. CPR training is apart of their requirement.

Golden Gate U.

Approximately 1600 persons received degrees from San Francisco's Golden Gate University on June 9, at the university's 78th annual commencement exercises.

Bruce Mandeville, son of Mrs. Esther Mandeville, was among the graduates. He received a master's in public administration.

Donald Angle In Concert At Cloister Garden Series

Jazz harpsichordist Donald Angle, whose credits include concert appearances in Boston, Paris, and Newport, will be the featured artist in the third of this season's Cloister Garden Concerts on July 12 at 8:30 in the garden of the Church of the Epiphany.

For his program of 20th century pop music, Angle has chosen pieces by Scott Joplin, Joseph Lamb, Lennon-MacCartney, Bob Dylan, Jerome Kern, and John Phillip Sousa.

Angle's career began when he joined a country group as a 12-year-old pianist and accordionist. He continued to play in nightclubs and on the radio while he attended Berklee School of Music.

Since 1962, Angle has worked for William Dowd, the Boston harpsichord maker. His intimate knowledge of the unique qualities of the harpsichord, gained through his work at the Dowd shop, has enabled him to use that instrument most effectively in performances here and abroad.

Recently he has played at MIT, Harvard, and on the Jazzboat. He has appeared live three times on WGBH Radio, twice on WCBV's Today Show, and last week on Woman '79.

Angle's concert tour of Berne, Zurich, and Paris last December was received so enthusiastically that he has been invited to repeat the tour next winter.

He is also scheduled to appear this summer for the third time at the Newport Music Festival. His third record for AFKA Records will be released in the fall.

More information about the concert may be obtained from the church office, 729-1922. Tickets will be available at the door.

Bloodmobile At Holton Street Firm Monday

Several Winchester firms in the Holton street area are sponsoring a Red Cross Bloodmobile visit next Monday.

The Red Cross donor unit will be at Micro-Dynamics on Sonar drive, off Holton street from 1 to 4 p.m. Lois Sherra is recruiting donors for Micro-Dynamics, Al Serino for Winchester Evaluation and Analytic Center, and Debbie Kendall for American Pacemaker.

The blood donations are not limited to the men and women working in firms of the area. Anyone who can donate at this time is urged to make an appointment by calling 729-2300.

"As another year begins for the Winchester Chapter we look forward to a generous response from our Winchester blood donors," said Walter Armstrong, new chairman of Winchester Red Cross. "During the first six months of 1979 Winchester donors have increased 5 percent over January-June 1978. We want to continue this good record in the next six months. With your help we can."

Alpine Slide Awaits Youth At Playgrounds

On July 18, the Winchester Recreation Department is sponsoring its second annual day trip to the Alpine Slide, located at the Boston Hills ski area in North Andover.

Playground director, Nancy DiZio, who has organized both last year's and this year's Alpine Slide excursions, encourages all interested youths to sign up right away, as this is one of the most popular Recreation Department sponsored trips. Nancy reports that "The Alpine Slide requires no special skills, and should be enjoyed by all."

The Alpine Slide is a 1550 foot down hill run, similar to a bobsled run without the snow. Instead, the sled is propelled on teflon runners. Riders reach the summit by a scenic chairlift ride.

Before taking off down the course, which includes high banked turns, curves, hairpin turns, and straightaways, all riders receive full instruction on the very simple operation of their sleds. Each participant has complete control over his slide and can go as fast as he or she wants on the course.

Anyone eight years and up is invited to take advantage of this trip to the only Alpine Slide located in Eastern Massachusetts. Buses will leave the Town Hall parking lot at noon and will return by 3:30 p.m.

Riders can expect to have between six and 10 rides on the Alpine Slide during the hour and a half they will be at the slope. In addition, participants can purchase food at the Boston Hills snack bar. The trip is limited to 75 youths, so sign up with one of the playground leaders (at Leonard, Ginn, McDonald, Ambrose, or the High School) immediately. Bus and admission fees must be turned in with permission forms.

Registration closes when buses are full and no later than July 13.

The two-week camp is being held at National Center West, Ten Sleep, Wy.

The Winchester Scouts are: Kimberly Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Brown, Myrtle terrace; Deborah Chebook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chebook, Churchill road; Kathleen DiChappari, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Enrico DiChappari, Russet lane; Mary Fiorillo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Fiorillo, Stratford road; Maureen Herlihy, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Herlihy, Thornberry road; and Averil Svahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Svahn, Thornberry road.

All are mebers of Cadette Troop 510 and will be entering the ninth or tenth grade in the fall. They have been Girl Scouts since the second grade and are all experienced campers.

National Center West is one of three national centers owned by the Girl Scouts. It is 15,000 acres of rugged wilderness bordering on Big Horn National Park. It is some of the wildest, most open country in the United States and is filled with ice-cold creeks, deep canyons, and impressive mesas. The base camp is located on a plateau at an altitude of 5800 feet and there are trails reaching as high as 8000 feet.

Program consultants are available at the center to help the girls enjoy the site's abundant resources. The scouts will practice compass and map skills and hike and backpack into the wilderness.

Other activities available include horseback riding, spelunking (cave exploring), fishing, and panning for gold. They will have an opportunity to go on an archeological dig to find arrowheads and pottery fragments, and to participate in craft sessions emphasizing pioneer and Indian crafts such as basket-weaving.

They will also attend classes on such topics as "Love of Life," an introduction to surviving by working with nature where the scouts will learn how to stalk big game without scaring them and to make a small animal trap and a water still.

The local scouts will share a campsite with two patrols from Rockford, Ill. Each group brings its own tents, dining fly, kitchen boxes and cooking equipment and sets up its own site. More than 500 teenage Girl Scouts from all over the country will be at the center and there will be time for camp-fires, song-fests, and other get-to-gethers.

The trip was financed by fund-raising events run by the girls and by the 14 community associations making up the Mistick Side Council. These funds were augmented by cookie sale profits and a grant from the Dewitt Wallace Readers' Digest Foundation.

The "Wyoming Trekers" return home July 23.

Duplicate Bridge

The top players for the June 20 duplicate game in Winchester are:

North-South: first, S. Linehan and W. Cunningham; second, Mr. and Mrs. D. Green; and third, I. Finlay and R. Hagan.

East-West: first, Mr. and Mrs. M. Lappin; second, E. Joyce and F. Gonsalves; and third, D. Pamir and M. Portanova.

The winning line-up for the June 27 game are:

North-South: first, L. Salani and S. Sable; second, G. Mingolelli and E. Joyce; and third, Mr. and Mrs. D. Green.

East-West: first, P. Donaghy and J. Donoghue; second, Mr. and Mrs. Silver; and third, P. Cowles and H. Whittet.

There is an aspect of duplicate bridge that appeals to the poker player as well as to the gambler. It is often possible to get more out of the cards than is really in them. The way to do this is to swindle your opponents! We are talking about "honest" swindles. If you can make a bid or play that throws the opponents off the track, more power to you.

Here are a few resourceful ways to psyche your enemies in a friendly way. The first is falsecarding by declarer. Opponent leads the spade king and you have the spade Q 7 2, play the S 7 and the suit may be continued with the ace, as the leader will be uncertain who has the S 2.

Here's another. As a defender, sitting behind an A-Q, you calmly drop a high spot in that suit as a discard when the opportunity presents itself. Partner, if he has the king is not fooled and may lead from it. Declarer may turn chicken and not take the winning finesse. If declarer has the king, nothing is lost in that suit.

Along with this idea is the defensive hold-up. Suppose dummy has the heart A Q J 10 and you are sitting behind this, holding the heart K x x . Declarer leads a low heart and plays the 10 and you play low. Your trick won't run away, in the meantime declarer may misplay the hand on the assumption the heart suit is going to work.

One of the time honored swindles is the fake finesse and still good for a trick and a laugh. Declarer, at a suit contract, leads from dummy the J from the J 10 x x x and East holds the A 9 x. The average good player in East's position will automatically play low in the hope his partner will get the Q. Surprise, surprise when South's singleton K wins the trick!

There are other deceptive plays which are fun and profitable to use. If you have the K Q J 10 x x of trumps and do not wish the opposition to take the ace on the first lead of trumps, lead the Q and it may persuade an opponent to duck if he thinks his partner can win the trick.

In short, when you are declarer you owe no duty of frankness in your play and may steal the teeth out of your opponents' heads. When you are defender beware of fooling your partner and be sure he can't be seriously misled, otherwise all's fair and deceptive play adds to the spice of duplicate bridge.

Senior Citizens Say Need For Low-Cost Housing Is Great

The senior citizens in town need more housing and they need it now. That message came across loud and clear when about 100 seniors attended a public hearing on Winchester House, the proposed 105-unit apartment complex for elderly.

Representatives of the Board of Selectmen, the Planning Board, and Winnchester House developer, Arthur Ullian, attended the Tuesday night meeting at the Jenks Center.

Winchester House developer, Ullian explained his request for Chapter 121A tax incentives to help fund Winchester House. His application, currently under review by the Board of Selectmen, the Planning Board and the Assessors, would allow Winchester House to be exempt from property taxes for 30 years. Instead, a percentage excise tax, based on the income of the property, would be negotiated between Ullian and the town.

The Planning Board will decide whether to give their support to the application by Sept. 17. At a Planning Board meeting Monday night, residents presented a petition with over 300 signatures of people opposing the project. (See related story, Planning Board.)

The theme of the meeting for the seniors was "we need housing." Comments by seniors attending in support of Winchester House brought loud applause from the audience.

"The elderly in Winchester need a low-cost building for housing," said Frank Holland. "The permit for the builder is secondary. The permit for the building is for the seniors."

He said "apartment" in Winchester is a "no-no word" and added that he doesn't know of any apartment buildings in Winchester that have taken anything away from the town.

Another member of the audience noted that 50 percent of their taxes go to the schools, although the schools no longer serve them. He noted the seniors have no argument with that, since they too used the schools, but that Winchester House is a matter of "reciprocity."

"Look at this as a basic asset," he said. "It's a matter of people. These people need help, so let's do it."

Sara Dillon, administrator for the Council On Aging, provided the group with some figures of how much help is needed. According to recent studies, it was found Winchester needed 401 housing units for the elderly.

She said during the recent investment series given by Larry Hutchings at the Center, it was found that many seniors are paying up to 65 percent of their annual income in taxes. Emergency fuel assistance funds, which helped out 23 Winchester residents last year, have been cut from the state budget, she said. Dillon noted that 190 Winchester people applied for those funds, (90 were seniors). Part of the criteria for application was a total annual income of $3900 or less.

"People are forced to move out of town," Dillon said, due to the shortage of elderly housing in Winchester.

In order to apply for an apartment in Winchester House, if it is built, elderly must have an annual income of $12,200 or less for a couple and $10,300 or less for one person.

One factor that has hung up public meetings and the town boards in their decision to approve or disapprove Ullian's Chapter 121A application is the definition of the area. Under the Chapter 121A guidelines, the project must be in a blighted or decadent area.

Ullian said that blighted need not be defined literally. He said blighted can mean the property is costly to develop by private enterprise.

The Winchester House site, off of Rangeley and Waterfield roads, could qualify for several reasons, Ullian said. He cited poor access from Rangeley road for a private development, difficult soil conditions, and a severe slope from Rangeley on to the property.

Selectman Barbara Hankins, speaking of the "dilemma" the town boards are in, cited taxes as a reason for questioning the application. She noted that although the taxes to be brought in by Winchester House would be $69,000 in the first year, a private enterprise development could allow for a greater tax base.

Winchester House was granted a special permit for development under Chapter 775 by the Board of Appeals. Because of the type of facility Winchester House is to be, the special permit overrides the area's zoning requirements. Members in the audience noted that private developers have tried to obtain a zoning change on the Rangeley road property in the past, but Town Meeting always voted down their requests.

One member of the audience noted that if a private developer was to make the same zoning change request now, its chances of passing Town Meeting are still "nil." Seniors urged the town officials to accept Winchester House now, rather than to wait years for another proposal to come along.

One senior asked what negative comment had been voiced on the project.

Planning Board chairman Charles Tseckares told the gathering that many of the abutters oppose the project, because the area was not zoned for apartment use. Some people, too, thought the developer was "throwing curve balls" in discussing the project.

Richard Wilsack, chairman of the Board of Selectmen expanded on this idea.

He said he was supportive of the Winchester House application when it went through the Board of Appeals. However, he added, when Ullian applied for Chapter 121A funding in "the 11th hour" it affected his credibility.

"I'm troubled that we have a new deal before us," Wilsack said.

Ullian said he stated at an earlier Board of Appeals hearing that Winchester House hoped to pay between $400 to $500 per unit in taxes annually. This, he said, is the average tax for complexes of this type around the state.

When Ullian met with the Assessors in January, a per unit tax plan could not be allowed. Chapter 121A, he noted, is the only way the developer can receive a tax break on the property in Winchester.

The project is awaiting approval of Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) funds. MHFA requires that the income of a project equals the expense, to make it a feasible project for funding. In order to do this, Ullian said, the tax break will be needed.

Residents Petition Against Proposed Winchester House 121A Tax Break

A discussion on Chapter 121A tax incentives for Winchester House left the Planning Board with many unanswered questions and a 300-signature petition from residents opposing the application Monday night.

At the Planning Board's regular meeting, residents objected to Winchester House developer Arthur Ullian's application for 121A funding. The Planning Board has the responsibility of determining whether the proposed Winchester House site qualifies for Chapter 121A.

A public hearing on Chapter 121A was held June 19. The Planning Board has until Sept. 17 to make their decision. Members of the board, however, said they would like to see the decision made sooner, perhaps at their next regular meeting July 30.

Winchester House is a six-story, 105 unit apartment complex proposed for low and moderate income elderly and handicapped. The building is planned for a site near Rangeley and Waterfield roads.

This spring developer Ullian requested support from the town for his application for Chapter 121A tax incentives. Chapter 121A allows a developer to be exempt from property taxes, and instead substitutes a negotiated excise tax for the property for a period of 15 to 40 years. Ullian indicated, he would like to use Chapter 121A for 30 years.

Mary Pronski, of Washington street presented the citizens' petition opposing Ullian's application at the Planning Board meeting.

The petition states, the Planning Board should not accept the Chapter 121A request, because the Rangeley and Waterfield road site should8 not be termed blighted or decadent. One of the criteria for Chapter 121A approval is that the development must be in a decadent or blighted area.

The petition also urges the Assessors to assess the property at fair market value, and not to deviate from normal assessing practices.

Pronski said the signatures were obtained at the incinerator one morning, after two hours. She said the residents who signed are a good representation of the town as a whole.

The Planning Board actually has to answer six charges to determine if the Winchester House site qualifies for Chapter 121A. The "blighted, decadent" area determination is one of those charges. Other questions the board has to answer include, will the development benefit the public; will the development be a detriment to the public; and does the project conflict with the town's master plan for zoning.

Board members are split on whether the Rangeley road and Waterfield road site qualifies as a blighted area.

Stephen Anderson said it was wrong to assume it is "untolerable or unthinkable" to label anything in Winchester as blighted. There are areas in Winchester, he said, that are blighted.

He added, however, that the neighborhood abutting the proposed complex is "one of the nicest in town" and that the board should protect that neighborhood. "It's not the best place to put it," he said.

The counter argument, Anderson noted, is that the facility is badly needed.

"I don't know how I want to vote" he said.

Marion Crandall called the "blighted" question, the crux of the problem. She said to be blighted, the land

Selectmen Delay Setting Date For Special TM

With information from the state regarding the budget process incomplete, and a recommendation on the budget situation from a sub-committee still to come, the Board of Selectmen decided Monday night, to delay setting a date for the special Town Meeting concerning the state imposed tax cap.

Two weeks ago, the town learned that the budget approved by the Town Meeting is $180,708 over Governor Edward King's four percent tax cap. The reason for the excess was due to a change in the tax formula at the state level.

To correct the situation, the Town Meeting must either reduce Winchester's budget further or decide, by a twothirds vote, to override the cap.

The Selectmen are expecting a report from the three man sub-committee, composed of members of the Finance Committee, at the next Selectmen's meeting on Monday night.

Richard N. Wilsack, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, noted on Tuesday that the budget bill has yet to go through the Massachusetts House or Senate. Wilsack went on to mention that presently the Selectmen just don't have all the facts. There is the possibility that a special Town Meeting may not be needed, he added. The Selectmen are also concerned about a proposal, which originated in Governor King's office, that would provide state rebate checks to individual property owner.

The concern of the Selectmen is twofold. It first forces local governments to raise property taxes to cover any new local aid this year. There is also the feeling that many property owners may lose more through property tax increases than they gain from the rebate program.

Wilsack pointed out that this plan makes local governments look like the "bad-guys" because they are the ones who must raise taxes.

Wilsack went on to mention that in the past, Winchester has received a certain amount of revenue from the state and applied it directly to the town's tax rate. He feels this new policy is to insure that the people get the money in their hands.

The governor's proposal, the specifics of which have not yet been released, will be heard by the Joint Committee on Taxation somtime this week.

Band Concerts

The Winchester Recreation Department announces the second of a series of six outdoor band concerts, to take place on Wednesday evening.

The concerts are open to the entire community, and feature songs of the past and present, played by approximately 90 musicians on the library green. The concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. and continue until 9:30 p.m.

The other 1979 concerts will be held on July 25, Aug. 1, 8, and 15.

Lt. Haggerty Retires From Police Dept.

Lieutenant William T. Haggerty, an officer with an outstanding record as an investigator and prosecutor, has announced his retirement from the Winchester Police Department.

Haggerty, a native of Winchester, was appointed to the police force by the Board of Selectmen in 1945, while stationed in the Pacific during World War II. He began service in Winchester in February of 1946.

Early in his career, Haggerty took an interest in photography and police fingerprinting techniques. He studied at the Spada Fingerprint School in 1947 and also benefitted from FBI instruction and technical manuals.

From 1955 to 1963 he worked as the police identification officer. He was appointed sergeant in 1967 and later inspector-sergeant in 1970. In 1972 he was made a lieutenant and has served as prosecutor in the Woburn District Court since that time.

Haggerty has been commended informally on a number of occasions by judges, police chiefs, attorneys, journalists and citizens, and formally by the various Boards of Selectmen under whom he has served.

He received his first commendation in 1943 for an arrest in a case of breaking and entering. In 1946 the Selectmen commended him for his work on a rape case in which fingerprints were decisive in capturing the perpetrator. He was later cited in 1953 for an automobile theft investigation, in 1968 for his work in a kidnapping and armed robbery investigation, and in 1970 for his role in an investigation of a case of breaking and entering and assaulting the occupant of the house.

Haggerty was again commended in 1976 for his supervision of a widespread investigation of numerous thefts of oriental rugs which led to the apprehension of a gang of housebreakers, and the recovery of property valued at several hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Malden Woman Shot In Leg On South Border

A 23-year-old Malden women was shot in the leg Sunday night as she and her family traveled along South Border road according to Winchester Police.

Michael Murphy told the police Sunday night from the Winchester Hospital, that he and his wife Kathleen, along with their two year-old son, were travelling on Washington street in Winchester when a gray pick-up truck tried to pass them.

According to Murphy, the truck couldn't pass because of the traffic on the road. When he was unable to pass, the driver of the truck began honking his horn and shouting at Murphy.

Murphy told the police that both vehicles proceed onto Mt. Vernon street and then to South Border road with the pick-up still trying to pass.

According to Murphy, on South Border road, he heard a thud and his wife felt pain in her leg. At this point the pick-up truck turned off onto Myrtle terrace.

Kathleen Murphy's leg began bleeding and she was taken to Winchester Hospital. At the hospital, doctor's revealed that she had been shot.

According to the police, the bullet was fired from behind the 1978 Dodge Van the Murphy's were riding in and passed through the right rear door. It then travelled the length of the van and went through the right leg of Kathleen Murphy about half way between the ankle and knee. The bullet did not he hit any bones, passed through her leg and into the inside cover on the van.

Going by the size of the bullet hole, police feel that the bullet was of a large caliber, such as a 45 or a 44 magnum.

The investigation was turned over to the Metropolitan District Commission Police, who had not made any arrests as of Tuesday but did have a suspect.

Mulford Dedicates Life Work To Child Protection

By ALICE WILDING-WHITE

Efforts by organizations to prevent child abuse have become more successful in the past 10 to 15 years. Social workers receive better training. Private agencies like the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children (MSPCC), are aided by government funds. State laws, which provide a backbone for conquering child abuse, are clearer.

One man who has initiated improvements in child protection is Robert M. Mulford of 29 Pierrepont rd.

When he retired in February as general secretary of MSPCC, he had devoted 33 years to child protection in Massachusetts. During his life of work against child abuse, he has seen and been part of the enormous changes that have taken place in this vitally important field.

In honor of his service to the protection of children, the Massachusetts Chapter, National Association of Social Workers presented Mulford with a plaque for his "contribution to social policy and change." He has received many such awards, among them the Vincent DeFrancis Award from the American Humane Association, and special citations from the Massachusetts House of Representatives and Senate.

The MSPCC recently honored him by establishing an annual symposioum in his name. He is chairman of a symposoium that will be held in the spring of 1980. Mulford commented in an interview that these awards show a "marvelous appreciation for my humble efforts. They were all unexpected,"

As a young man in college, Mulford already knew he wanted to lead a life in social work. He graduated from Syracuse University in 1935, and immediately went on to the New York School of Social Work, where he received his diploma in 1937. He then attended the Columbia University School of Social Work, and was awarded his master's degree in social work in 1944.

Mulford's first contact in field work was the Rochester Department of Welfare in New York. There he worked in flop houses helping men to rehabilitate their lives and get jobs.

Just one year later, he was asked to join the Rochester Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, (RSPCC). Not only was he the youngest worker, but he was the only one with a college degree in social work. When he entered the field in the 30s, he said "it was a very unprofessional type of work. A lot of people had no specific training."

In 1939, he was made the executive director of RSPCC, which, he said, was an "unheard of thing for a young fellow like myself with only two years of experience." He attributes the promotion to the excellent training he received in college.

Mulford helped expand RSPCC during his eight years as executive director. He operated child protection, supervised homemaker services, developed temporary foster care for children in emergencies, and ran a juvenile detention home.

The Boston based MSPCC invited Mulford to join in 1947. He said when he first arrived, the agency lacked a professionally trained staff. Over the years, he has helped to "build up MSPCC to be the most highly professional agency in the country — the largest, and only statewide agency in the country," which aids about 10,000 children each year.

Mulford considers one major achievement of MSPCC is the organization's increased ability to help families stay together. When he came to Boston 25 percent of their cases wnet onto the courts, where it was often decided to separate the abused children from their parents. Now, only three percent of the cases go to the courts.

"The worst thing is to have to remove kids from their parents," said Mulford. The work involved in keeping families together is often very difficult, since, Mulford said, "not all parents are interested in getting help." Parents are given emotional and medical aid. Mulford commented that MSPCC "helps parents grow up."

Mulford believes the program is very successful. He ssid his efforts are repayed by knowing the fact that MSPCC has helped thousands of families.

Aside from work within MSPCC, Mulford has been a member of a number of committees which have improved all aspects of child protection. In 1959, he was employed by the Child Welfare League of America to revise the "Standards for Child Protective Service." The standards are used nationally and intel·nationally, and Mulford has had a hand in keeping them up to date through the years.

Modernized state laws on child protection has also been a goal for Mulford. In 1950, he served on a legislative subcommittee which, in 1954, redrafted laws that expanded the definition of child abuse. One new law required someone to investigage the family history of an abused child so that, when the case came to court, the judge had more information.

In 1964, Mulford was involved in the development of the first Massachusetts law requiring physicians to report child abuse. As chairman of the Governor's Committee in 1972, he worked to lengthen the list of people who must report child abuse. As a result of these laws, the number of cases reported has increased 100 percent each year.

Mulford has also contributed to the awareness of social work among students by teaching and lecturing at colleges all over t.. ntry. Students from Boston Univer..y, Simmons College, Harvard University, and Columbia University, to name a few, have heard his lectures.

Throughout his career, Mulford has published numerous articles and phamphlets on child protection. Included in these is "Neglected Children and Youth," the result of his work in the 1950 and 1960 White House Conferences of Children and Youth. More recently, he wrote an article on the definition of child abuse for the latest Encyclopedia of Social Work.

Despite all the time Mulford has spent striving to improve child protection, he has had time to raise a family of his own. He said, with a smile that he has been married for 42 years. He and his wife, Claudia, have three married children, and six grandchildren.

Golf is one new avocation of Mulford's. Up to August of 1978, he was an avid tennis player, but his health required him to stop playing.

Music is another love. He said he had a "rich music education," and that he could have been a professional musician. As a child, he played the trumpet, and he taught trumpet in high school. In college, he played first trumpet and student directed the college band.

After he moved to Winchester, Mulford taught himself to play the organ. He sometimes plays at the First Congregational Church in Winchester, where he is the clerk.

Although Mulford is retired from MSPCC, he said he is "kept very busy." He still serves on many committees concerned with child abuse, such as the Child Welfare League of America, and the Boston Family and Child Executives. He was also made honorary life member, and is vice-president of the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth. His service to the protection of children is never ending.

Selectmen's Notes

Holton Street

Town Meeting Member John Harris, a resident of Holton street and the leader of the drive to correct the trucking problems in that area, appeared before the board Monday night to inquire about any progress that has been made.

"We're working at the issue," said Chairman Richard N. Wilsack. Wilsack noted that he had met recently with Mayor Thomas Higgins of Woburn to discuss Holton street and other problems. Accordin, o Wilsack, Higgins mentioned that the construction of a new Montvale avenue bridge would be the solution to the problem. But Wilsack pointed out that completion of the bridge would not be until the spring of 1981, which he and the Selectmen feel is too long. Harris, who appeared along with another resident of Holton street, asked if the Selectmen had considered any unilateral action to remedy the situation. "I hope we don't have to go that route," answered Wilsack. Selectman Edward O'Connell added that he felt any unilateral action would be "counter-productive" for future plans for the town. Selectman Wade Welch also noted that the Town Meeting had instructed the board to study the issue. They were not instructed to take action. Welch then pointed out that the Selectmen have been studying the problem.

Manchester Road

The Selectmen voted to follow the recommendation of the Traffic Committee and make Manchester road a one-way street. The proposal now must be approved by the state 8 Department of Public Works.

A few residents appeared to voice their opinions about the change. "It would effect access to our street," noted Eileen McCarthy of Cutting road who was opposed to the move. "We could only come in one way."

A Manchester road resident noted after the discussion that the hair-pin turn on Manchester road was dangerous because of the children who skateboard down the hill.

According to the resident, there have already been a number of animals who have been hit by motorists on that turn and the residents feel that a child is bound to be involved unless a change is made.

Although the proposal must be submitted to the state as a permanent change, the board agreed to test the move for 90 days with the possibility of changing back if it was not working out.

Cable TV

With practically no discussion at all, the board voted in favor of accepting applications from cable television companies for a license in Winchester.

Welch pointed out that the Selectmen should follow the advice of the Cable TV Committee and instruct the companies involved to make their first offer their best.

The Selectmen had met with the Cable TV Committee on a number of other occasions, as well as sponsoring an open hearing on it at their previous meeting.

cannot be developed by the private sector. For this reason, she noted, she doesn't think the land could qualify for Chapter 121A. Crandall had suggested at an earlier meeting the land be used for condominiums.

Anthony Pelletier also said he wasn't willing to call the site, "any one of those things," (open, blighted or decadent). He said other people had wanted to put private enterprise on the land.

But, Pelletier said, he was not convinced the project would fail without the Chapter 121A incentives.

At the public hearing June 19, Ullian and his associates said the area could be found blighted because of soil conditions and topography in the area. They noted the definition of "blighted" need not be taken in the literal sense, but can be much broader.

The Winchester House proposal was granted a comprehensive permit by the Board of Appeals in October, 1978. Public hearings and meetings on the plans have now been going on for 16 months. Ullian is scheduled to go back to the Board of Appeals in the near future with revised plans to add an apartment for a custodian to live on the premises.

Some of the residents at the Planning Board meeting and Planning Board member Marion Crandall were concerned about the many changes in Ullian's plans.

"We have 16 months of inconsistencies," Pronski said. "When will the day arrive when we really know what they want to build?"

Pronski went on to add that residents have "lost faith in the developer" and that even town officials are "confused."

Charles Tseckares, chairman of the board, said however, he thought "great strides" have been made in the planning, and didn't see anything unusual with the changing plans.

Tseckares also noted Chapter 121A gives the town more control over the appearance of the building. He said he would like to know what kind of things can be "negotiated" with Ullian, if he were to receive 121A.

Tseckares noted he would like to see the building have a brick facade, to fit in with the neighborhood.

The Board of Selectmen would be the negotiators for any changes in the Ullian plans.

Flood Insurance Zone Maps Under Review By Town

A regular flood insurance program will soon go into effect in Winchester. The Federal Flood Insurance Adminstration (FIA) recently completed detailed flood hazard maps, which will be used to set flood insurance rates.

The maps, which can be viewed at the Town Engineer's office in the Town Hall, outline flood prone areas in Winchester. They are now in a 90 days appeals period. Residents who can provide technical or engineering data challenging the maps, may dispute the flood hazard boundaries in this 90 day period. Further questions and comments may be submitted to the Town Manager's office.

Winchester has been in an emergency flood insurance program since 1975, when Town Meeting approved the town's application to enter the federal program.

Under the emergency program, flood insurance holders receive federal subsidies on their insurance coverage at the rate of 25 cents per $100 of coverage. Once Winchester enters the regular program, homeowners of existing homes can still receive the federal subsidies, but new homes built will not be eligible for the subsidized coverage.

The new rates, determined by flood hazard areas, will vary according to the location of the property. In some cases, insurance rates could be lower for homeowners, once the regular program starts.

The maps and flood areas are prepared using the 100-year flood as a standard.

The 10, 50, and 100 year storms are national standards set up to define the severity of a rainfall, according to the frequency it might occur. The 100 year storm is more severe than a 10 year storm. Hurricane Diane in 1955 was close to a 100 year storm, and was Winchester's biggest storm on record until this past January.

Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia said the January storm, which flooded basements and washed out streets in many areas of town, can probably be classified as a 250 year storm, although an exact determination has not been made at this time.

On the flood maps, Zone A, (flood hazard) is an area which would be inundated by a 100 year storm. These areas are generally near waterways, such as the Aberjona River, Winter Pond and Horn Pond Brook. Ciarcia notes that few residences are in Zone A, because the land is mostly park and recreation land.

Once the flood maps are finally approved, residents in the area will also be subject to certain building restrictions, which take into account the flood hazard.

Also, if someone wanted to buy an existing house in a flood hazard zone, he or she may be required to purchase flood insurance to obtain a mortgage. Ciarcia noted he has received several requests from banks on flood zone information.

The reason banks request flood zone information is due to federally related financial assistance. Without the insurance, residents could not obtain direct federal financial assistance, such as grants, Small Business Administration loans, Veteran's Administration and Federal Housing Administration mortgage loans.

Banks that are federally insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, could not approve a mortgage for a house in a flood hazard area without the federal flood insurance.

All insurance under the federal program is obtained through private actuaries.

The town, however, in entering the flood insurance program does have several responsibilities. One is to prepare a wetlands map, and adequate building restrictions in wetlands and flood prone areas. Building permits must be reviewed with flood hazard in mind.

Ciarcia noted that although the FIA has set up minimum standards for the program, it is up to the town to administer the standards. The national program was set up after the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 was approved by Congress. It was expanded in 1973.

Residents in town are informed of the program and the maps through legal advertising. Public hearings on the maps are optional, and to date none have been planned.

No Festivities Fourth Of July

Winchester youth were without Fourth of July festivites this year, due to a cut in the town's Recreation budget.

John Sullivan, of the Americn Legion, told The Star he was disappointed to see that no activities were planned for this year. According to Sullivan, in past years the town has funded Fourth of July events. Last year a parachutist dropped to Leonard Field, and participating youth were treated to games and clowns. The events, he said, have been going on annually for 20 years.

Each year, Sullivan said, the American Legion and the VFW have planned the festivities, and provided food and drink for the youngsters. Sullivan said he didn't find out that the funds were not available until the Sunday before the Fourth.

"I can't see why the children of this town should be deprived," Sullivan said. "There's so little for the children here now."

Town Recreation Director Ken Cereghino siad that last year the department did fund festivities for the Fourth, but the monies had not been budgeted. The unallocated $1000 in funding, Cereghino said, was one thing that forced the Recreation Department's budget in the red.

Cereghino added that although the town has funded events in the past, the Recreation Departmtne has not had programming responsibilities in recent years.

The public celebrations budget, as approved by Town Meeting for FY 1980, is $3210. The Recreation Department had requested $3950 for this item.

Last year the budget was $3950, and the year before, it was $4055.

Teacher's Hearings Set Aug. 6-7

The Winchester School Committee has scheduled open hearings on August 6 and 7 for tenured teachers in the school system who have been placed on the recall list.

The recall list, which contains the names of teachers under contract during the 1978-79 year who have not been offered contracts for the 1979-80 school year, presently holds five tenured teachers.

The open hearings will provide those tenured teachers an opportunity to discuss their particular situation with the School Committee. The hearings were originally scheduled to take place in June, but a number of teachers were unable to attend at that time.

"They can either have a hearing or not," said School Committee member Sandy Rogers recently. "Of course, some are taking this option."

Rogers pointed out that although there may be tenured teachers being layed off in the elementary level and non-tenured teachers being retained on the secondary level, this is not in violation of the tenure law.

"We lay off by catagory," Rogers explained. "State certifications are in either elementary or secondary levels." If a tenured elementary teacher is layed off, she can not argue for a position on the secondary level if she is not certified for that position.

Rogers went on to point out that a number of teachers today are taking the time to get certified on both levels, so that they will have something to fall back on.

A number of teachers were removed from an earlier recall list at the final School Committee meetings in June. At the time of their appointment it was with the stipulation that there was an opening available.

"For all intents and purposes they have jobs," Rogers noted. She went on to mention that the School Committee always adds that option as a sort of protection should any unforseen circumstances arise which would eliminate a position.

Spring hours of the Winchester Archival Center, located behind the Ambrose School are Mondays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursdays, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

THE HOUSE

Bottle Bill (H 6489) - House approved 83-73, the Senate amendments to the bottle bill legislation requiring a nickel deposit on all beer and carbonated beverage containers under 32 ounces, and a dime deposit on those over 32 ounces. The major Senate amendment is the one exempting 54 communities, located within five miles of New Hampshire and Rhode Island which do not have bottle bills, from the mandatory deposit law.

Most supporters of accepting the Senate amendments are supporters of the bottle bill itself, and argued for acceptance on the basis that if the amendments were defeated, the measure would go to a House-Senate Conference Committee, where it could be tied up for weeks and would likely die for the session.

Most opponents are opponents of the bottle bill itself, and urged rejection of the Senate amendments, knowing this would delay and possibly prevent passage of the measure. Many representatives said the amendments weaken the bill and are unfair, and noted that stores in communities bordering the 54 exempt ones would lose business, since residents would go to one of those communities to avoid deposits.

Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. voted for the amendments.

One-Twelfth Budget (H 6575)- House approved 130-20, a one month one-twelfth budget to operate the state through the month of July. The budget allows the state, during July, to spend one-twelfth of the appropriation levels of last year. The Senate later rejected this budget, and substituted its own version which included all the items the House-Senate Conference Committee (dealing with the main $5.4 billion budget) has agreed on, and one-twelfth of the items still in dispute. Following this action, the House, 121-19, rejected the Senate version and reaffirmed its own.

Supporters of the House version argued the budget was necessary to keep the state functioning. They noted that without it, essential services to thousands, including welfare recipients, the elderly and many others would be shut off. They said these people should not suffer because the Legislature has failed to hammer out a compromise budget.

Some opponents argued that approving a one-twelfth budget simply creates more problems by giving the conference committee more time to argue, delay, and not agree to compromise on the important matter of hammering out a compromise fiscal 1980 budget.

Some noted that if the one-twelfth budget is approved, the conference committee will not act quickly on a full budget, and the state will be faced with the same problem next month. Many urged rejection of a one-twelfth budget, as a way of forcing the conferees to act quickly, noting that further delays in approving a full budget is unfair to the citizens of the state.

Saltmarsh voted for the one-twelfth budget.

THE SENATE

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on two key roll calls from last week's session.

Pension (S 1216) - Senate approved 24-3, a bill to change the mandatory retirement date of the presiding judge of the Second District Court of Southern Worcester, thus enabling him to qualify for additional pension funds. By changing the retirement date from June 29, 1979 to July 2, 1979, the retiring judge would collect some $5000 in additional pension benefits. The bill, by changing the mandatory retirement date by three days, allows the judge to receive a pension based on a higher salary which he will technically be receiving on his new mandatory retirement day. This new salary is the result of the court reform legislation passed by the Legislature last year, and is an increase of some $6500.

Supporters argued this was simply corrective and fair legislation to benefit a judge who has served on the bench for 28 years. They said because of a technicality, he misses the deadline by only 48 hours, and therefore should be entitled to a pension based on the new salary.

Opponents argued this was another example of special interest legislation and would cost the state $5000 a year, noting the judge contributed nothing to a pension fund. They said this was an outrage, and would also open the door to many other attempts for special treatment to qualify for pension benefits.

Sen. Samuel Rotondi voted for the change in retirement date.

Interim Budget (S 1973)- Senate approved 20-2, its own version of an interim budget, to operate the state until a fiscal 1980 budget is approved. The Senate version includes all items the House-Senate Conference Committee (on the $5.4 billion fiscal 1980 budget) has agreed on, and one-twelfth of the items not agreed on. By approving this version, the Senate rejected the House version which called for a budget for July totalling one-twelfth of appropriation levels of last year.

Supporters of the Senate version argued it was more logical than the House one, and claimed that it was wiser to include items already agreed upon in the Committee, and then use the one-twelfth formula for still disputed items for now. Some said the reason for offering the compromise is to get the conferees back into action in the conference committee.

Some opponents argued the Senate should agree with the House on a one-twelfth budget to insure that the state operates for the month of July. They noted that many people, including state workers and welfare recipients are suffering because of the impasse. They noted that the House will probably reject the Senate version, and the result will be that no interim budget will be approved quickly to keep the state operating.

Rotondi voted for it.

Could Bridge First Crossed The Aberjona

By HENRY SIMONDS

The history of the bridge and mill pond began Feb. 10, 1640, when the first structure was laid over the Aberjona river against Edward Converse house.

Named "Could Bridge," it was at the present center of Winchester on the spot where the bridge stood at Whitney's Mill Pond Dam. It was called "Could Bridge" probably because it was built in mid-winter during a severe cold winter.

The spot below the bridge was called "The King's Ford." At this time the Mill Pond was created to run the water wheel of the Converse Corn Mill which was near the corner of Main street and Mystic Valley parkway.

The old bridge and streams remained the same for many years until 1911 when the town voted to purchase the old Whitney Mill and property between Main street and Waterfield road for park purposes.

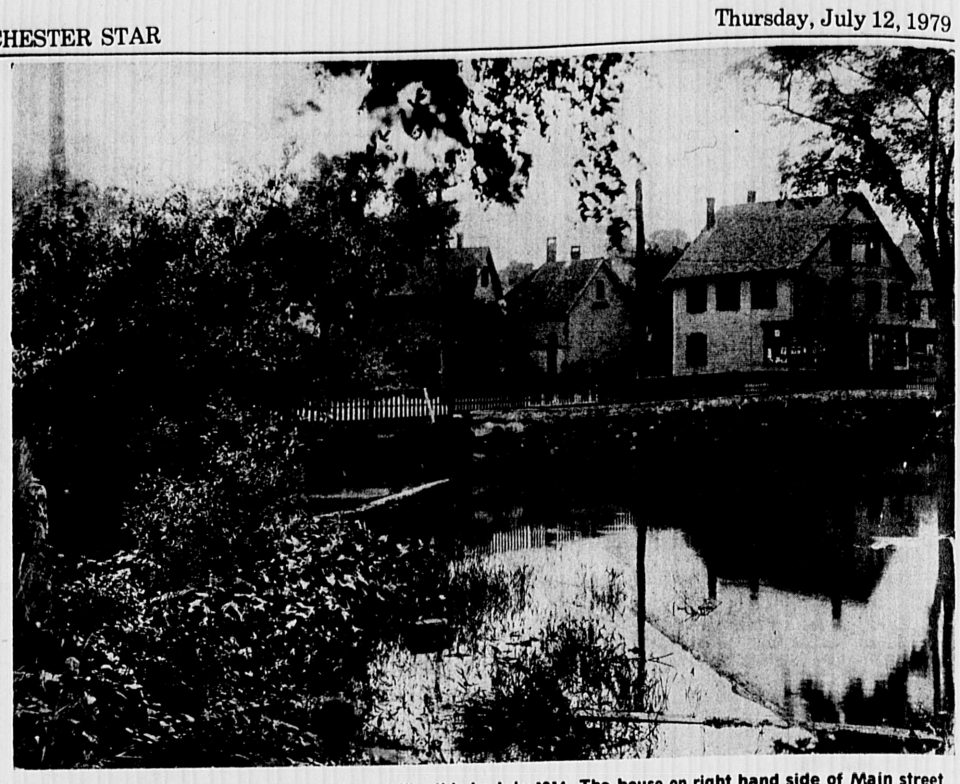
In the summer of 1914 the two graceful round arches, built of cement, were erected. One is the Converse Bridge on Main street and the other Waterfield Bridge on Waterfield road. At the same time the old dam which had stood for two and one-half centures was torn down and in its place was built the semi-circular dam just above the Converse Bridge.

The Mill Pond was dredged and its banks shored up with stone paving in 1935.

In 1944 the Rotary Club bought a pair of swans "Abbie" and Jonah" to join the ducks and set them up in housekeeping on the Mill Pond. When "Abbie" died in 1947, George Franklin, the venerable clerk of the Selectmen, solicited $75 to get widower "Jonah" a new mate.

Once again the Mill Pond was dredged and the banks cleaned. Shrubs were planted in 1964. Today it makes a beautiful setting for the center of the town with flowering shrubs and ducks and geese swimming in the summer.

It is a very busy place for the children who come to feed the ducks in the spring, summer and fall. Also it makes a restful setting for one to relax on a summer evening and listen to the band concerts held on the banks near the library.



The Converse Bridge on Main street looked like this in July 1914. The house on right hand side of Main street contains P. Chitel Tailor shop and Winchester Harness shop. The houses in the middle are on Purrington Place. Whitney's Mill is behind the trees on the left hand side, not shown.

Construction of Converse Bridge facing Main street was going on in November, 1914. The gas company office was on the right side corner of Converse place, with Deacon Thompson's house above the gas office. Then Wentworth block, one house in the area later housed Petrie's Bakery and the Harness Shop.

Letters From Readers

Cryptic

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Accompanying our water bill recently was a cryptic announcement that the Winchester Water Divsion had been providing contaminated water to the town during the months of April and May. The explanatiion accompanying the statement described the cause as "due to an undetermined origin."

In these days of high tax bills and cynicism about the use of public funds, it is surprising that no apology or explanation of the effects of uch contamination was included in the announcement. After all, what effect does drinking substandard water have on us, our children or the unborn?

I guess that it is a sign of the times that I haven't contacted the Department of Public Works. Perhaps by publishing this letter, you might get a response from them that would answer the questions of many others in the town that feel upset about drinking polluted water.

Donald H. McLean

On The Election

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On Saturday, June 30, at the beginning of the Fourth of July weekend, when the exodus out of Winchester had already occurred and many of our citizens were deeply involved in preparations for cocktail and other parties in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont, my wife and I dutifully went to the polls in order to try to reverse an incomprehensible decision made by our Town Meeting members.

I am referring to the referendum calling for the restoration of funds to enable the town to continue collecting garbage. According to your newspaper, the referendum won by more than two to one. Nevertheless, as stated in The Star, the result of the voting is invalid simply because fewer than 20 percent of Winchester voters went to the polls.

If an insufficient number of people went to the polls, you know the reason as well as I do. Thre are many citizens in Winchester who work in the city and are tired of the pressure on the job and of the rather formal suburban life style, and who seize every opportunity to get away and relax in a truly rural setting. That being the case, the choice of Saturday before the Fourth of July was the worst possible day for that referendum. Indeed it was a fraud.

However, what amazes me most is the fact that our Town Meeting members voted to discontinue garbage collection in order to save about $30,000. To me personally, and to many others, garbage collection is the most valuable service rendered by the town, because I would find it inconvenient and unpleasant to transfer the garbage from the garbage pail to a barrel and to transport it in my car to the town dump. Moreover, leaving garbage disposal to individuals might create a serious public health problem, and invasion of the town by rats and the spreading of disease among our citizens.

If Winchester really wants to save large sums of money, there are other services we can more easily do without.

We can get rid of town water and dig our own wells, fill in all the sewers and return to the old backhouses; we can disband the Police Department and buy guns to protect our own properties; and dismiss the Fire Department and put out our own fires.

Finally we can shut down all our public shcools and educate our children by private tutors. And in the process we might just as well burn all the books in the public library, tear down the Town Hall, and scatter all the officials located there.

In this way, we shall cease to be a community, and each man and woman can become a truly rugged individual. Unless, of course, Woburn is willing to take us back into its bosom.

Bins Full

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My observations at the transfer station on Friday, July 6, indicated to me that the recycling program has gone to pot. The bins are not properly serviced, for example, for many days the paper bin has been full.

This means that conscientious people who would like to help slow down the depletion of our natural resources are obliged to waste materials by putting everything on the compactor conveyor belt.

On July 6, I saw a station wagon filled with newspapers neatly tied pull into the dump. The driver tried to put his huge pile of paper in the recycling bin, but there was no space left in the bin.

The driver was outraged that he had wasted his time tieing up all the paper only to discover he had to throw it into the compactor. He said, "Never again will I cooperate with the recycling programs."

About three months ago, I made a few suggestions to the Town Manger concerning sloppy management of our recycling efforts, but I regret to observe that absolutely no improvement has been made. Whether or not the fault lies with the private company that services the bins, the Town Manger has not seen fit to do his part by either selecting another recycling company or improving communications with the present company.

Minibus

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Now that we have a minibus, we should use it. But what the elderly need now is a bus like the minibus, to take them shopping somewhere where everything is within reach, like the shopping center in Stoneham.

There they can buy, once a month, everything they need. All the other towns have this service.

One definite day each month or weekly and a certain time is needed. In one hour, they could buy what they need.

Louise Chase

Pleasant Driver

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am from Baltimore, Md., and I am visiting my daughter in Winchester this summer. I use the Winchester minibus quite often to go downtown.

There is a very pleasant young man, Chris McCabe, who drives the bus that I ride. Chris always says to both senior citizens and children on his route, "Good morning, how are you?" and "See you tomorrow," when you reach your destination.

He also understands that senior citizens sometimes move more slowly and he will wait if he sees that you haven't quite made the bus stop.

Not only is the minibus a great convenience, but this very pleasant young man makes the trip a delightful experience. Winchester is fortunate to have such a young man.

Telephone Solicitation

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In regard to the article entitled "Telephone Solicitation Upsets Merchants," Winchester Star, July 5, - I wish to express my amazement and dismay upon reading remarks attributed to me by a Star staff member. I was, to say the least, quoted out of context, thus altering the very essence of the conversation in question.

Nowhere in his article does the writer even allude to my comments in support of the Police Association whose members have expended considerable time and effort each year in a most worthy cause.

Additionally, I am not now, nor have I ever been, nor do I consider myself to be a spokesman for the Winchester Chamber of Commerce where I am currently employed as a part-time staff assistant. If The Star wishes to obtain a statement from the Chamber on any issue (and I am certain they are aware of this) they must, of course, contact an official of that organization, (president, executive vice president.)

Unfortunately, due to a heretofore fairly relaxed and informal relationship with some members of The Star staff, I was not privy to the fact that in this case my response would be taken out of context and used for publication. In retrospect, I can see that this was an extremely naive assumption on my part.

In conclusion, I wish to voice my sincere regret to Officer Charles Culhane and the Police Association for any distress they may have suffered because of this publication. It is embarrassing to have been used in this fashion. Rest assured, it will not happen again.

Janet R. Boone

Editor's Note: The Star agrees that Ms. Boone was, in retrospect, not the proper person to be solicited for a statement of the Chamber's position on this issue. Otherwise, as far as context or accuracy, The Star stands by its story.)

Skylab

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Space aged technology, isn't it great!

From sonar and radar to a computerized date.

With their intensive training to moniter and plan,

The technicians in summer have no time to tan.

The Skylab project, a U.S. creation.

Reinforces our position as a powerful nation.

As it circles the earth in its celestrial pattern,

Photos are snapped of Venus, Mars and Saturn.

It's an American marvel, known world around.

Just one problem though is in getting it down.

July 16 is the estimated date,

Wherever it crashes to be determined by fate.

Our own Walter C. will be waiting on call,

To keep us in touch as to where it may fall.

The odds are for you, millions to one.

You'll probably be spared but be ready to run.

New advancements come out as science expands,

We need one now to help Skylab land.

Mid-July aprroaches soon, the days go by fast.

Enjoy this last week, it could be your last!

They Handspring Their Way Through Summer

By DONNA FARRELL

At the summer gymnastics program, instructors Mary Donlon and Martha Cresse (center) and their students are all smiles about the evening classes held at Lynch Junior High. (Photo by Peter Accardo)

She stands poised, her eyes staring straight ahead, arms stretched out horizontally, muscles tense. Suddenly she runs across the mat, assisted first through a back walkover, and then right into a round-off. She completes the move, landing poised once again on her feet. The instructor demonstrates the weaknesses of her performance, and she trys the move again, not once, but three times. The third time she performs it unassisted. A smile breaks out on her face as her classmates applaud her improvement.

Sound familiar? "She" might be your daughter. "She" is just one of the many young gymnasts taking gymnastics lessons from the Winchester Recreation Department this summer at Lynch Junior High School. And although the classes are predominantly female, there are more boys enrolled in the program now than ever before.

Jason Boyd, a sixth grader at Lincoln School says that he "likes gymnastics" and "thinks more guys should do it." This summer is Jason's first experience with gymnastics, although he is experienced in baseball and water-skiing. He says he does gymnastics "to learn more about it."

Spencer Roy, an 11-year-old, is taking gymnastics for the second time. He comes "to try it out" and "for fun."

Jason and Spencer are just two of the 40 Winchester children enrolled in the first session of summer classes. An additional 40 children will be allowed into the second session of the program beginning in late July. There are four instructors who teach the children gymnastics, featuring floor exercises, balance beam, uneven parallel bars, ropes, and vault. And just about everyone has a favorite piece of equipment.

Twelve-year-old Donna Ralphs and eight-year old Amanda Roy prefer vaulting on the horse. Both girls expressed interest in the Olympics. Ralphs commented, "I'd definitely try out (for the Olympics) if I was good enough, but it takes too much money."

Eleven-year-old Linda Guild likes the uneven bars, while nine-year old Whitney Hyson prefers floor exercise. Hyson remakred, "I like doing gymnastics...the teachers are nice."

The instructors are all knowledgeable in gymnastics, and are on their feet constantly, spotting the children through various moves, and demonstrating proper technique. Led by Head Instructor Richard Trabucco, the team of Martha Cresse, Mimi Began, and Mary Donlon work well with each other. Each possesses an individual teaching style, but not one instructor dominates the echoing gym.

The veteran teachers have noticed a tremendous tightening of the program under the guidance of Recreation Director Ken Cereghino. Mary Donlon, who is pursuing a career in physical education, commented that "the kids are learning a lot more than they ever did before; it's more organized, and there's more time to spend on each piece."

Reducing the possibility for injury was one of Cereghino's primary goals for the program. Through the reduction of class size, and adherence to strict rules of conduct and discipline, this has already been achieved. In fact, the only injury to date has been a leg bruise to instructor Mary Donlon, who received the injury while spotting a child through a back handspring.

The concern shown for the slightly injured Donlon by the childrn was a typical display of the positive attitude the youngsters have toward their instructors.

It prompted the cheerful Donlon to comment "We have a relationship with the kids here, we're friends...It makes gymnastics fun for both of us and they learn a lot, too." Instructors Began and Cresse nodded in agreement.

And nine-year old Kara Rossi laughed "I'd give up school anyday to just do gymnastics."

Masked Man Robs $1750 From Cumberland Farms

A man wearing a white ski-mask robbed a 24 year- old Cumberland Farms employee at knife point Sunday, making off with close to $1750 in cash and checks.

Douglas Reed, an employee at the Cumberland Farms market on Washington street, was carrying two bags of money with him Sunday evening as he headed home to get his bike.

Reed had planned on riding to the Shawmut Bank to deposit the cash, when he was stopped by the robber at the intersection of Washington and Hancock streets.

According to police report, as he pointed a hunting knife about six inches long at Reed, the robber said "Give me the money and you won't get hurt." Upon doing this, Reed was then told to "turn around and don't look back."

Reed then went back to the Cumberland Farms store where he called the police.

A 1972 Camaro was reported stolen from a Washington street residen's driveway last week, according to police records.

Police also report bicycles stolen on Wildwood lane, Winthrop street, Symmes road, Main street, Glen road, Sheffield road and the Winchester Boat Club.

A Highland avenue resident reported that vandals threw her children's toys down the hill and emptied a full bag of dried cement in the rear seat.

Vandalism was also reported on Old Oak lane, as a garden hose was put inside one residents car and turned on.

Two 16 year old Winchester youths were arrested and turned over to their parents for unlawful possession of alcohol on Monday. The youths were arrested at West Side Field.

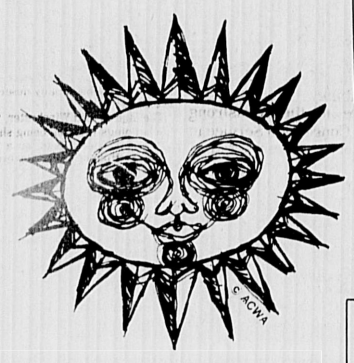
Beat the Heat



Sun and heat can really do a number on your car. Dulling it, streaking it and even bleaching the color right out of the finish.

Sun's heat and chemical pollutants in the air can pit and corrode your car's finish before your payments are even halfway through.

The only way to beat the heat is to wash your car every week. So come in out of the hot sun to our cool and friendly car wash. We'll even apply a protective shield of tough silicone wax (slightly extra)... the best sun beater your car ever had.

Swim-A-Cross To Benefit Red Cross

Details of the townwide Swim-A-Cross to benefit Winchester Red Cross were announced this week by Barbara Minutoli, chairman of the event.

Although Winchester's official Swim-A-Cross day is July 25 from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. at Leonard Pond Mrs. Minutoli explained that swimmers can do their laps for the Swim-A-Cross at the pool of their choice at any convenient time during the week of July 23-28.

Cooperating swim facilities include the town beaches and the Winchester Boat Club, Country Club, and Swim Club.

Mrs. Minutoli urged swimmers of all ages to join in the fun and help the local Red Cross. Sign-up sheets are posted at all local beaches and clubs,and sponsor sheets are also available at these facilities, as well as at the Red Cross Chapter House, 39 Church st.

Mrs. Minutoli suggested that swimmers enlist friends, neighbors and businesses as sponsors at any number of cents or dollars per lap they choose. A complete list of Winchester businesses, from which swimmers can select potential sponsors, was generously provided by the Chamber of Commerce, according to Mrs. Minutoli, and is available at the Chapter House as a refence for swimmers.

Explaining that all swimmers will be supervised by an American Red Cross water safety instructor or lifesaver, Mrs. Minutoli emphasized the need for swimmers to have their sponso4 sheets with them on the day they swim in order that their laps can be validated. Swimmers will be asked to collect the money pledged and return it with the sponsor sheet after the event.

The swimmer in each age category who raises the most moeny will receive an official Swim-A-Cross T-shirt. The age groups are as follows: three to six; seven to 10; eleven to 14; fifteen to eighteen; nineteen to twenty-five; twenty-six to forty; forty-one to sixty-two; sixty-three and up. A plaque will be awarded to the swimming facility which wins the team competition.

"Come swim a few laps for the Red Cross," said Mrs. Minutoli. "Here's a good way o help the organization that helps us all by training our lifeguards and swimming instructors. The money raised will help us get films and equipment we need for more and better training."

Carrier

HOW TO SLEEP ON A MUGGY NIGHT

by Al LaPointe

Imagine a summer when you not only sleep well at night, but tempers stay cool, the kids stay calm, and your family stays collected in the evening! It can happen with Carrier central air conditioning.

Sleep is not only wonderful, it's necessary. If you are to awake refreshed and "raring to go" into a full day, sleep must be sound and undistrubed. Without air conditioning, heat and humidity cause you to toss and turn, and the slightest sound in the night can cause your nerves to react like a gong struck by a hammer.

The air supplied by a single Carrier central air conditioning unit, working with ductwork that distributes cool, healthful air to the entire house; will make quite a difference in your living habits.

With windows closed, heat, humidity, and noise stay out, and you not only sleep better but feel better.

Mom won't feel fatigued and limp when six o'clock comes and the man of the house arrives. She'll be as crisp and cool as an iced dessert. Instead of a diet of cold cuts, cold beans, and potato salad, she'll feel like fixing a hot, balanced meal, and still be fresh enough to welcome you at the door.

That "escape" problem won't exist. With every room air conditioned instead of one or two as is the case with window units, you won't want to get out as much. No urge for expensive and time-consuming eating out.

Carrier central air conditioning is an investment for your home, not a luxury.

We at Federal Heating will carefully measure your home's air conditioning needs, and fit unit and distribution system together for a system to cool every room in the house.

For a free survey or any questions call Federal Heating day or night at 623-1515 or 729-6866.

*Federal regulations prohibit compounding of interest for Six-Month Money Market Certificates within the term of the certificate and subject withdrawals prior to maturity to forfeiture of three months' interest on the amount withdrawn. The effective annual yield is the amount of interest your money would earn if your principal and interest remain on deposit for an additional 26 weeks at the same rate (the actual rate may be higher or lower at the time of renewal). A $10,000 minimum is required.

The rate is guaranteed for the term of the certificate and interest is compounded continuously. A minimum deposit of $500 is required. Federal law subjects early withdrawals to forfeiture of six months' interest on the amount withdrawn.

Hospital Certified For Cancer Prog.

Winchester Hospital was one of five Massachusetts hospitals to receive an American College of Surgeons' certificate of approval for its cancer program at an American Cancer Society Seminar held recently at the Marriott Hotel in Newton.

Last year, the American Cancer Society established a national objective to increase the number of hospitals with cancer programs approved by the College of Surgeons. To this end, the Cancer Society has encouraged hospitals to develop cancer registeries and strengthen their cancer programs, according to Dr. Peter Mozden, the Massachusetts Cancer Society;s liaison fellow to the American College of Surgeons.

"The purpose of this objective is to bring quality care for the cancer patient within easy reach of everyone," said Dr. Mozden, "and Winchester Hospital has fully met the objective."

The hospital cancer program consists of four parts: a patient-care oriented hospital cancer registry to provide reliable information concerning patients treated at the hospital; a multidisciplinary cancer committee to review cancer management in the hospital; patient care and cancer education programs for medical staff and other employees involved in cancer control; and an annual evaluation of patient care.

Together with the American College of Surgeons and the National Cancer Institute, the American Cancer Society funds a program of visits to hospitals for the evaluation of their hospital cancer programs. These visits are made by special physicians on the staff of the American College of Surgeons.

Winchester surgeon Richard A. Kingsbury, M.D., (right) chairman of Winchester Hospital's Cancer Committee, received a certificate of approval for the hospital's cancer program from the American College of Surgeons (ACOS) during a special presentation held recently at the Marriott Hotel in Newton. Representing the ACOS was Peter Mozden, M.D., (left) a member of the American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division board of directors and liaison fellow to the American College of Surgeons.

In New England, a good old wintertime means more than sitting by a blazing fire. It means a snug, winterproof house and a lower heating bill.

That's why a good old wintertime starts in the good old summertime. At least when it comes to fixing up your house.

Think of it this way. Replacing a furnace in the dead of winter, installing storm windows in an icy wind, or patching up a roof in the middle of a blizzard is not a rewarding experience. On a balmy, summer day, however, the work will not only go easier, you may even get a tan.

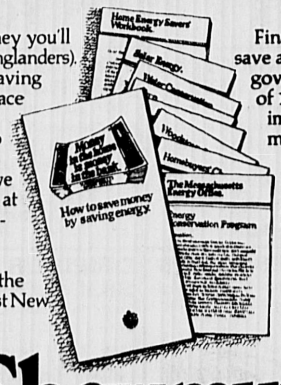
starts in the good old summertime.

Then there's how much money you'll save (a thought dear to all New Englanders).

First, you'll save money by saving energy. Insulate your attic or replace an old burner, and the energy you save will start showing up in lower heating bills.

Secondly (and this is where we come in), you'll get good terms at the bank. Shawmut offers competitive rates on any home improvement loan.

A glance at the examples in the chart would warm the staunchest New England heart.



Finally, there's a good chance you'll save a bundle on taxes. Last year the government offered a federal tax credit of 15% of the cost of making energy improvements to your home (up to a maximum credit of $300).

So stop by your nearest Shawmut bank today. And apply for a Shawmut Energy-Saving Home Improvement Loan.

Johnson Has Summer Job At Consumer Affairs Office

Tony Johnson, a student enrolled in the ABC (A Better Chance) program, is working for the summer as a research assistant in the Massachusetts Office of Consumer Affairs. A native of Memphis, Tenn., Tony was recruited as an ABC student to attend the Winchester public school program, one of 130 secondary schools across the country affiliated with ABC.

Tony responds to consumer requests for assitance and has represented the Office of Consumer Affairs in meetings with other groups seeking to provide better constituent services. He will be vice-president of the Winchester High School student government this fall. He plans to pursue a legal career.

Mrs. Eileen Schell, Secretary of Consumer Affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has been an ABC volunteer in Winchester for eight years and invited Tony to join her staff for the summer.

Out of more than 1400 applicants each year, ABC places over 400 outstanding minority students at some of the nation's finest secondary schools.

There are 61-member independent boarding schools and 44 member independent day schools.

In addition to the Winchester public school program, there are 25 others working with ABC across the country. Through this college preparatory approach, ABC seeks to increase the number of highly qualified minority citizens who can assume positions of responsibility and leadership in American society.

Tony Johnson, a Winchester ABC student is working this summer in the Consumer Affairs office. Eileen Schell of Winchester is head of Consumer Affairs for the state.

Phillips-Andover

Mark Mulvaney of Winchester recently received a diploma at the 201st commencement at Phillips Academy, Andover.

Mark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mulvaney, 10 Madison ave. west, was a three-sport varsity athlete at Andover. This past fall his outstanding play as a starting fullback on the soccer team was one of the highlights of the team's successful season of 10 wins, three losses and one tie.

During the winter he participated in gymnastics and in the spring played baseball.

In addition to his athletic activities, Mark was a sports reporter for "The Phillipian," the school newspaper which recently marked its 100th anniversary, and served on the Charities Committee and as a volunteer in the admissions office.

He was a student at Winchester High School before coming to Andover. Next fall Mark will enter Middlebury College.

Winchester residents George F. Parker and Bradford J. Holmes have also graduated from Phillips Academy.

George, son of Mrs. Elinor Parker, 9 Warren st., will enter Harvard University in the fall.

Brad, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Holmes, 3 Fairlane ter., is headed for Dartmouth

Constance Williams Honored With State LWV Award

Constance Williams of Winchester has been selected by the Mass. League of Women Voters as the recipient of the Lucy Wilson Benson Award.

The announcement was made at the League's State Convention recently. The award is to be presented to Williams at a ceremony at the Boston LWV headquarters on July 31.

Williams was honored for extraordinary service to, and profound impact upon, citizen action organizations and the community at large; for being a visionary and projecting a sense of adventure that inspires others to work together toward a common goal; for generating a high level of achievement and a sense of purpose that better enables citizens to realize their potential as participants in government.

Recently she chaired the League's Municipal Management seminars. In previous years she headed the Urban Crisis study and has been a long-time activist in the area of human resources, particularly concerning herself with housing needs.

As a volunteer with the Citizens Housing and Planning Association of Boston, Williams worked primarily on evaluation of housing policies, budgets of state departments, and the state growth policy. She has written housing guides published by Citizens Housing for planning boards, housing authorities, and state agencies.

In the words of Bob McKay, executive director of Citizens Housing and Planning, "Connie is known not only for her leadership but also for her unconquerable energies, enthusiasm, persistence, and single mindedness. She has the ability to generate ideas and move them toward their goals. Above all she is concerned about keeping people aware of what the responsibilities of government are in providing for human needs. As Connie says, 'we have the definitions of what those needs are, and what we need is the will to move forward.' "

U. Of S. Carolina

Joseph Charles Vancini of 12 Harvard st. received a bachelor of arts degree during spring commencement ceremonies May 12 at the University of South Carolina.

More than 2800 students who completed degree requirements during the fall and spring semesters at Carolina were recognized at the ceremonies.

Savings Bank Named To National Register

The Winchester Savings Bank in Winchester, an example of Richardsonian Romanesque style adapted to a small scale, has just been listed in the National Register of Historic Places, according to State Secretary Michael Joseph Connolly, chairman of the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

"The bank was the first established in Winchester to meet the needs of a growing population of factory workers and suburbanites commuting to Boston on the Boston, Lowell and Nashua Railway," commented Connolly. "The present building, constructed in 1892, was also the first structure in Winchester to be used only for banking purposes."

"The architects of the building were members of the Blaikie family from Nova Scotia. Two of the brothers, Edward K. and William E. were architects for the bank," Connolly continued.

The National Register is the nation's official list of places and sites important in America's history, culture and architecture. The nomination of the Winchester Savings Bank to the National Register was made by Susan Keats of the Winchester Historical Commission through the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

Spring hours of the Winchester Archival Center, located behind the Ambrose School are Mondays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursdays, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Violence In Children's Books Addressed By Longview Club

Violence in children's literature, its uses and misuses, was discussed when the Wheelock College Longivew Club met in Wakefield, at the home of Mrs. Carl Vik for their annual pot-luck supper.

With books and slides, Christine Moustakis, a member of the Wheelock English Department, reminded the group, all teachers or former teachers of young children, that children today are concerned about "being safe" as they grow up in a world where there is the potential for strong passion. It only "bottles up" the feelings a child sees or hears all around him, if he or she is read just the beatuiful, non-violent stories.

"We must help children to express their anger, with words, not action. To violence, assault, rape and force, a child's reaction is, "did it hurt?" We all learn a lesson better by talking, by acting, not hurting. Take a child on your lap, when you read him a story. It gives him the security he needs. A child who is loved soon forgets the picture of the ugly wolf," Ms. Moustakis assured the Longview members.

This being the end of Longview's 20th anniversary year, Mrs. Phillip Ansell, the president, of Melrose, congratulated the members for supporting the club's many projects and introduced the guests - Lois Mirsky, director of Alumnae Affairs at Wheelock College and Margo Loutrel, chairman of club activities.

Two Washington School teachers, Mrs. Merrill Wells (retired) and Helen Clark, will be serving on the Longview Board as recording and corresponding secretaries, and Mrs. George L. Connor, of Belmont, formerly of Winchetser, will continue as publicity reporter.

Mrs. William M. Beal, Mrs. Edwin P. Hall and Mrs. Ernest E. Leavitt, all of Wincheter have contributed to the success of Longview Club.

Wheelock graduates in this "North of Boston" area, are urged to save now for the Longview Club's Flea Market, sponsored each year by the Winchester JayCees and held in the Town Hall parking lot. This year the Flea Market is scheduled for Sept. 29.

Graduates, new to the area are most welcome at Longview Club meetings. For information, contact one of the Winchester members or the president - Mrs. Paul Mattatal, of Marble street, Stoneham.

WTA Supports Junior Tennis

By JAMES R. STEWART JR

Mrs. John A. Mills, president of the Winchester Tennis Association has announced the latest efforts of her organization to assist junior tennis players of Winchester.

At a recent board of director's meeting, it was decided, in cooperation with the Recreation Department, to donate two tennis ball retrievers for instructional use.

In addition, the WTA paid for the sponsorship of Winchester representatives in the Junior Wightman Cup competitions and donated a case of new tennis balls for their use.

The Recreation Department conducts many tennis clinics at the William S. Packer tennis courts, for youngsters and for adults, but the wear and tear on the tennis balls is terrific.

Any readers who would care to are asked to donate any used tennis balls they have for use in these worthwhile insturction periods. Take them to Whit Gray supervisor at the Packer courts or to the Recreation Department at Town Hall.

The IBM 5110 Computing System, with a price that starts at under $18,000, is proving to be what many business firms need to get started with their own small computer:
IBM invites you to an "open house" to see how a small computer can help you manage a growing business. You can drop in whenever you like on the continuous demonstrations and presentations.
You'll discover how the 5110 can handle such jobs as payroll, accounts receivable, inventory control and general ledger, as well as provide timely management reports. And how your own people can learn to run it in just a few days.
Make a note now on your calendar to stop by the 5110 "open house" at a time convenient for you.
Open house to be held July 17 and 18 at the Holiday Inn in Burlington. Demonstrations of the 5110 Computing System will be every hour on the hour. For more information call (617) 895-2561 in Waltham.

FUTURE, YES — INFINITY, NO

If you are a househunter, no doubt you already have some preconceived notions about the fundamental requirements of your new home. Here's a thought to consider which may help facilitate the image of your new home's "master plan" as well as your long range financial planning.

Consider the stage of your family life, and how it should change within the next five or ten years. As your family numbers decrease by means of vocation, campus living, and marriage, so will your space requirements.

Don't imagine that your task is to find a home in which you will live happily all the rest of your days. A home is not forever. For perfectly sound reasons, such as advancing age, changing career prospects, changing family size and requirements, people tend to move on, often in less than ten years. So plan for the foreseeable future - not for infinity.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at

Rotondi Backs Fight For Bottle Bill In Senate

Senator Sam Rotondi led the successful floor fight in the Senate for legislation which would mandate a five-cent minimum deposit on beer and carbonated beverage containers under 32 ounces and a dime deposit on larger containers, the so-called "Bottle Bill."

After receiving approval from the Senate and the House, the bill has been sent on to the Governor for action.

Senator Rotondi is a co-sponsor of the legislation and has been active in the move to insure that Massachusetts has a Bottle Bill this year. The Senator feels that the energy crunch makes a Bottle Bill vital. "The effects of the Bottle Bill will have a favorable impact on the environmental and the economy in Massachusetts."

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh, also a leader in the bottle bill legislation, expressed his support in last week's Star.

Rotondi noted that two reports done by Governor King's administration on the affects of the Bottle Bill in Massachusetts, one by the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and the other one by the Executive Office of Consumer Affairs, demonstrate that a mandatory deposit-return system for beverage containers will result in a sizable reduction of litter, a slight reduction in consumer prices, a net increase of jobs by 1200 newly created positions, $4,500,000 savings in solid waste disposal, and more importantly, a $70,000,000 capital investment by business in the Massachusetts economy.

Senator Rotondi also emphasized that an intensive study conducted by the Federal Energy Administration indicated that a national Bottle Bill would cut beverage container manufacturing energy use by 44 percent, the equivalent of 81,000 barrels of oil per day. The bill would reduce steel, and aluminum consumption, as well as reducing bauxite imports. The bill's enactment would result in a reduction of items entering the nation's solid waste streams by 180,000 tons annually.

Summing up the arguments of all proponents of the Bottle Bill in front of the full Senate, Senator Rotondi emphasized, "The Bottle Bill is no longer a little toddler having trouble standing. It is a mature adult that can stand on its own feet."

The Bottle Bill legislation passed by the Senate exempts 54 communities that border the states of Rhode Island and New Hampshire. Senator Rotondi feels that, if Massachusetts passed a Bottle Bill, the other states like New Hampshire and Rhode Island will follow suit and thus eliminate the border state problems.

"The Bottle Bill has been debated in Massachusetts for over seven years," concluded Senator Rotondi. "The energy savings and the economic consequences of this legislation can no longer be ignored. The Bottle Bill has been successful in other neighboring states and now Massachusetts, which is the critical industrial state in New England, must adopt a Bottle Bill and set forth the impetus for a national Bottle Bill."

Full Funding For Commissions Supported By Sen. Rotondi

Senator Sam Rotondi recently announced his support for the full funding for the state's Ethic Commission and additional funding for the Special Commission investigating state contracts.

Senator Rotondi has supported legislative action to make certain that both the state Ethic Commission and the Special Commission on the MBM scandal do not become "paper tigers."

Rotondi stated, "I strongly support adequate funding for both of these commissions so that they can carry out the mandate the legislature has given them."

The Ethics Commission which has full investigatory powers to oversee the activities of all elected state and county officials as well as key decision makers in state and county departments and agencies, was in jeopardy of losing one-third of its budget request with Governor King's budget recommendation. The Ethic's Commission had requested these monies to investigate possible conflicts of interest and abuses of the ethics code.

Senator Rotondi indicated that, "I strongly supported the creation of an Ethics Commission and recognize that unless it is sufficiently funded, it would be impossible to perform its intended duties of investigating possible abuses of the ethics code. The budget recommendations of both the House and the Senate to restore the Ethics Commission's budget represent a will on the part of the legislature to maintain the Commission at an efficient operational level," he said.

This year, the Commission submitted a budget of $581,350. The Governor cut this budget to $403,150 resulting in a reduction of $178,200 or nearly 30 percent of the Commission's total request.

"I strongly supported the creation of the Ethics Commission and recognize that unless it is sufficiently funded, it would be impossible to perform its intended duties of investigating possible abuses of the ethics code," stated Senator Rotondi. However, the House Committee on Ways and Means in its budget recommendations restored the Commission's budget to $580,000. The Senate went along with the House's recommendation.

Senator Rotondi led the fight last year to establish a special Blue Ribbon Commission to investigate allegations of corruption in the state's awarding of contracts, the so-called MBM Commission. At that time, Senator Rotondi shared with his colleagues numerous discussions with constituents as a senator who has gone door-to-door throughout his district.

"The people have lost faith in their government," noted Senator Rotondi, and "the only way to restore that faith is by showing them that we, as public officials, are not afraid to allow an independent commission to conduct an intensive investigation of how the peoples monies has been spent in the area of building contracts."

This Special Commission was threatened this year when the Governor refused to recommend additional funding for the Commission. The legislature, however, appropriated $1,135,000 so that the Special Commission could hire needed staff and to effectively complete their investigation. This money was placed in the Deficiency Budget which was recently signed into law by Governor King.

Senator Rotondi concluded by stating, "State government must earn back the public trust which has erroded away over the past years. Elected public officials have an obligation to restore public confidence and the State Ethics Commission and the Special Commission studying state awarded contracts are steps in this direction, and are absolutely necessary."

Winchester church leaders who participated in relaying of cornerstone at Boston's downtown Tremont Temple Baptist Church during 140th anniversary services were Deacons James Swallow (left) and Berner Vikre. Vikre holds a copper box filled with artifacts which will go into the foundation. The church is one of the largest in New England.

Alpine Slide Trip Sponsored By Recreation Department

On Wednesday the Winchester Recreation Department is sponsoring its second annual day trip to the Alpine Slide, located at the Boston Hills ski area in North Andover. Playground director Nancy DiZio, who has organized both last year's and this year's Alpine Slide excursions, encourages all interested youths to sign up right away, as this is one of the most popular Recreation Department sponsored trips. Nancy reports that "the Alpine Slide requires no special skills, and should be enjoyed by all."

The Alpine Slide is a 1550 foot down hill run, similar to a bobsled run without the snow. Instead, the sled is propelled on teflon runners. Riders reach the summit by a scenic chairlift ride. Before taking off down the course, which includes high banked turns, curves, hairpin turns, and straight-aways, all riders receive full instruction on the very simple operation of their sleds. Each participant has complete control over his slide and can go as fast as he or she wants on the course.

Anyone eight years or older is invited to take advantage of this trip to the only Alpine Slide located in Eastern Massachusetts. Buses will leave the Town Hall parking lot at noon and will return by 3:30 p.m.

Riders can expect to have between six and 10 rides on the Alpide Slide during the hour and a half they will be at the slope. In addition, participants can purchase food at the Boston Hills snack bar. The trip is limited to 75 youths. Youth may sign up with one of the playground leaders (at Leonard, Ginn, McDonald, Ambrose, or the High School). Bus and admission feds must be turned in with permission forms. Registration closes when buses are full and no later than Monday.

Two Weeks Of Playground Activities Start Summer

The Playground program sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Department is one for children of ages five and one-half through 13 years. The program is diverse, with various activities scheduled daily.

The choice of activities is geared to the age and interests of the participating youths. Sports like baseball, softball, whiffleball, and kickball, are interspersed with games such as "Polly" and "In My Grandmother's Attic."

In addition, special field trips to places such as Benson's Animal Farm and the Alpine Slide are scheduled weekly. Individual leaders also organize their own mini-field trips, and special activities.

All the fun begins daily at the playgrounds (Leonard, MacDonald, Ambrose, and Ginn) at 9 a.m., and continues until 1 p.m., except on Wednesdays, when the good times are extended until 4, to allow for special events.

In addition, the cultural arts program is offered at the high school for those youths wishing an intensified arts program. However, cultural arts is available on a weekly basis as part of the regular playground program, for all children.

The playground and arts leaders have summarized their activities during the opening two weeks of the summer season. People who would like to join should call the Recreation Department at 729-4514.

Ambrose School

This past week was the second week of Recreation Department work at Ambose Field. The conditions were above average, weather excellent, and interest keen, all making for a good week.

Monday was a very active day, highlighted by a competitive game of baseball. Denise Preston played an outstanding game as did her brother Stephen. Both members of the family also did a good job pitching, each escaping vicious line drives back up the middle, with only minor injuries.

Later during the day the whole field participated in games of "Polly," and "Red Light." Other activities were also pursued.

Tuesday was crisp and cool during the morning, a good morning for a one-lap race around the field. Two of the younger boys did especially well, Brian Pothier and Mike McGehun each winning their respective heats. Some of the younger children not able to race, worked with colored chalk on the hard-top. Many of their drawings merited second glances.

Later during the day an Arts and Crafts exercise was conducted by Beth Russell. This exercise involved painting sheets for use in constructing tents. The themes used for the painting were "favorite foods," "baseball," and "Star Wars."

Lou Evangilista of the Winchester Hospital, and Rose Carucci of 14 Main st. donated the old sheets used in this exercise, and did so on very short notice.

Wednesday was the July 4 holiday, and Thursday, the field trip to Canobie Lake Park.

Friday was once again a good day to be outdoors for playground activities. - Two main activities were held during playground, after a one-hour game of baseball. Staff leader Ellen Donahue conducted what proved to be an excellent candyhunt. After carefully explaining the rules the candy was hidden and all was ready.

What followed was the expected: mass confusion, with a little supervised chaos mixed in. Some of the older boys shared their loot with the younger children not quite as adept at the fine art of candy hunting.

The second order of excitement during the day was the trip to Baskin Robbins and the feeding station at the Duck Pond. The ice cream was enjoyed by all, except for Brendon Maney, who lost his cone on the sidewalk, a very tough loss indeed.

The ducks, however, made out a good deal better, as a whole loaf of bread was dispensed and digested in a record 70 seconds. Whoever said Winchester ducks don't know a good deal when they see it!

The troops were taken back to Ambrose for a little art work to close the week and once again, six year old Kelly "Soup" Campbell, left for home with more artwork on her, than on her paper.

Ginn Field

Despite a break for the July 4 holiday, the second week of Summer Recreation at Ginn Field was better than the first. Although attendance was low due to the holiday, the children enjoyed many activities. The main activity choices on Monday were kickball, badminton, baseball and relievio.

On Tuesday, Beth Russell of the arts and crafts program taught the youngsters how to do string paintings. The children enjoyed the lesson and many of the paintings were brought home, destined for the refrigerator door. After arts and crafts, a badminton tournament was held and Charlie Cowan became the Ginn Field badminton champ.

Thursday's trip to Canobie Lake Park was an all-day affair. The buses arrived at the park at approximately noon and returned to the Town Hall shortly after 4 p.m.

The roller coaster was a big attraction and the youngsters all wanted either the front or back seat. Some of the braver children rode the coaster with their hands up in the air during the short, but fast and exciting trip.

The penny arcade was another big attraction, and featured games of all kinds. The snack bars supplied the traditional foods: cotton candy, pizza, hotdogs, hamburgers, and fried dough.

On Friday, the children played kickball, took batting practice, and challenged Charlie Cowan's championship in badminton.

The girls coached by Kelly Gately and her assistants, Maria Montouri and Liz Bracken, traveled to MacDonald Field for a softball game. They came out victorious with a 12-4 win. A great effort was turned in by everyone.

The winning team included Paula Russo, Susie Allard, Michelle Powers, Joan Cornell, Tara Gurry, Tina Lane, Lori Dantas, Diana Howland, Natalie Hill, Tricia Bracken, Heather Innes and Beth Wilfert.

Arts And Crafts

Arts and crafts had another exciting week of projects, starting off the week with papier mache masks that were decorated on Friday.

The afternoon sunshine was perfect for making shadow drawings outside. The group also did papier mache collages in the morning class which decorated the giant windows for a couple of days.

Playground murals were a success, with children painting what they did on the playground, and the July 4 holiday.

The ducks in the Town Hall pond are always ready to nibble a few pieces of bread, or to waddle about for onlookers.

MacDonald

On July 2, the second week of activities began at MacDonald Field. The weather continued to be warm and sunny, and conducive to having a good time at the playground.

In the morning, arts and crafts instructor Stephanie Ruta was aided by Red Campbell and Mary Ann Beaton in organizing the children to create papier mache masks, made from paper, flour paste, and balloons.

After all the balloons popped once, the group got down to serious creativity and came up with masks that were funny, scary, and very unusual.

Monday afternoon brought many croquet champs to MacDonald. John Haggerty, Mike Breen, Billy Gannon, Mike Haggerty, and Ericka Gannon tolerated each other for nine games and produced four-time winner John Haggerty.

Mike Haggerty won three times, while Mike Breen and Billy Gannon each won one game. Although Ericka was not a victor, she certainly deserves the "sport-of-the-day" award.

In trac-ball, Richard Haggerty beat Jack Delorey in a close 25-24 match; Jack later returned to beat Richard 25-23. Kate O'Connor beat instructor Mary Ann by 25-12.

Tuesday morning at the field the children had an early croquet match. The first game was dominated and finally won by Peter DiZio. Immediately following his victory, Peter and sidekick Tommy Gibbons were chauffered to New Hampshire for a restful July 4 holiday. But John O'Connell returned to save the morning, winning the next three games.

Team No. 2 featured David Anderson, Patty Taylor, Mike Breen, Greg Winn, Sandy Young, Kelly Powers, Beth O'Connell, Kathy Morandi, Eileen O'Connor and Jimmy Hennelly. Team No. 1 defeated Team No. 2 by a score of 13-8. Some excellent hustling was shown by Colleen O'Connor, Patty Taylor, Mike Breen, Scott Paine and Jimmy Hennelley, for their respective teams.

The groupstayed together to engage in a game of "bombardment" on the tennis court. Patty Taylor's team included Debbie Taylor, Beth O'Connell, David Anderson, Mike Breen, Jimmy Hennelly, Diane O'Connell, and Kim Grano.

Nannette Langone and her squad were on the other side of the net, and included Joe Anderson, Eileen O'Conoor, John O'Connell, Kathy Morandi, Kelly Powers and Sheila Connolly. Not long into the game, Beth O'Connell decided the action was a bit too fast, so she retired to play "Grandmother's Attic." Beth is thanked by her teammates for all her hard work.

As the noon sun beat hard on the courts, the teams decided to end in a 1-1 tie. The group then decided to try their arms at horseshoes. Jimmy Hennelly and Kim Grano were defeated by Sheila Connolly and Patty Taylor 7-1.

Special mention should be made of Sheila Connolly; she had never thrown a horseshoe before and got a ringer. Meanwhile in trac-ball, Mike Breen beat David Della Grotte 5-4.

Later, the exhausted, sun beaten group departed to enjoy the July 4 holiday and to await their Canobie Lake trip on Thursday.

Friday morning, activities resumed at MacDonald. Lisa Vercollone and Stephanie Ruta from arts and crafts, and Red and Mary Ann gathered all the children on the field to work on a large mural. The children painted either something they saw on July 4, or at Canobie Lake Park. When it was done the mural reflected the good times that were had by all. Firecrackers of organge, red, and blue were next to sparkling ocean waves, and the Canobie Lake roller coaster.

Friday afternoon the boys played baseball while the MacDonald girls softball team hosted their first game with Ginn. Kelly Gately and her girls defeated the MacDonald girls by a score of 12-3, but both teams played very hard. Both teams appreciate the fine umpiring job performed by Playground Director Nancy DiZio.

Ginn dominated the game 7-0 until Cindy McHugh hit a double and then was able to make it home on Diane O'Connell's single to make it 7-1. Ginn scored again to make it 8-1, until MacDonald scored again when Patty Taylor came home on her sister Debbie's single, making the score 8-2.

Ginn scored four more runs to make it 12-2.

But then Cindy McHugh came home again on Debbie Taylor's single to make it 12-3.

The MacDonald team included Colleen O'Connor, Kathy Morandi, Sheila Connolly, Kim Grano, Cindy McHugh, Kelly Powers, Heidi MacDonald, Debbie Taylor, Diane O'Connell, Amy Morse, Sandy Young and Patty Taylor.

All the girls did a fine job and coach Mary Ann Beaton was especially proud of their cooperation ahd teamwork in alternating positions so everyone was able to play. The MacDonald boys are thanked for their support and cheers, and putting the equipment away.

Leonard Field

Although the week was shortened due to July 4, Leonard was hardly short on activities. Exploring a little of everything in the second week. Children tried their hands at nose-bag plays, papier mache masks, and the first annual croquet tournament.

In the first baseball game of the season, Leonard defeated MacDonald by a score of 7-6. Home runs by John Boyle and Robbie Mistretta as well as a seventh inning error by MacDonald, paved the way for the victory.

The game was a total team effort, with pitchers Mike and Ricky Harrington, leading John Boyle, Eddie Connolly, John Mangano, and Robbie Mistretta to victory. They are waiting for the match-up with Ginn Field next week.

Canobie Lake was the highlight of this week. For more information on the trip see Ginn Field news.

For next week, the group plans to tye-dye special Leonard shirts, and to take a picnic trip up to the Fells. Permission slips for the Alpine Slide are due on Monday.

Week One

Ginn Field

As the summer recreation program began on June 25 Ginn Field supervisors were greeted at 9 by approximately 15 youngsters and several parents. As the day progressed the number of children grew and exceeded 50 children for a good part of the day.

The older boys were playing baseball most of the morning, later switching to soccer. The younger boys and girls played kickball and whiffleball.

The children who didn't want to play team games, used the swings, played croquet or used the various pieces of equipment provided by the Recreation Department. The activities of June 26 were basically the same as the day before, and several distinct groups were forming as the children found new friends and learned names.

On June 27, McDonald Field's two baseball teams traveled to Ginn for a grudge match. Ginn's younger or B team destroyed McDonald by a score of 22-6. Ginn was hitting the baseball all over the field despite the frequent change of pitchers by McDonald's team. McDonald A team evened the score however, by beating Ginn 11-4. John Meyers pitched well but was hurt by a few errors and hanging curve balls.

On June 28, the arts and crafts department visited Ginn and the children learned the art of stencil drawing.

After arts and crafts the main activities were soccer, kickball and baseball.

On June 29 Ginn visited McDonald for a rematch of Wednesday's games. The A game was cancelled because McDonald didn't have enough players. The B team did it again, winning this time by a score of 20-2.

The McDonald pitchers couldn't stop the mighty Ginn batters. John Meyers made his umpiring debut and the Ginn A team coached the B team to victory. Plans are being made for a girls' softball league which will start next week.

Arts and crafts is looking forward to an exciting and creative summer. Over 100 children have registered. The program is expanding service to visit the playgrounds twice a week.

On June 26, the group experiemented with mirror images and string paintings. Other projects included wire mobiles and stencil drawings.

The afternoon group worked on nature faces, a farm mural and construction paper weavings.

MacDonald

On June 25, the parks opened and the boys and girls at McDonald were anxious to begin playground activities. The weather was sunny and pleasant the whole week.

During the week, the traditional park games of baseball and croquet were most popular. The older boys dominated the baseball diamond for most of Monday, enjoying inning after inning of their favorite pastime. Meanwhile the younger children played croquet and horseshoes. Wordgames such as "In My Grandmother's Attic" and "Categories" were played by the young children.

June 26 was sunny again. The boys could be found on the basketball court while the rest of the children played "Frisbee Keep Away," "Polly" and croquet.

June 27, park instructor Red Campbell traveled with the A and B teams to Ginn Field to play baseball. Meanwhile back at McDonald, trac-ball and badminton contests were underway.

On June 28, Lisa Vercollone from the arts and crafts program delivered materials to the field. The children sat under the trees and became involved with paints, rollers and scissors, creating to their heart's content. Later they settled down to play word games "Soda Pop" and "Fonzie." Meanwhile the boys played horseshoes and croquet.

That afternoon McDonald girls had their first softball meeting. They are interested in organizing a park softball league. The McDonald girls would like to challenge girls from other fields in softball games. Any girl between eight and 14 who is interested in encouraged to notify the instructor at her respective field. The McDonald girls are anxious to play!

On June 29, Stephanie Ruta from the DATES: The period for comment will be ninety (90) days following the second publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in the above-named community.

1. The functions of the Federal Insurance Administration Department of Housing and Urban Development, were transferred to the newly established Federal Emergency Management Agency by Reorganization Plan No. 3 of 1978 (43 FR 41943, September 19, 1978) and Executive Order 12127 (44 FR 19367, April 3, 1979).

ADDRESSES: Maps and other information showing the detailed outlines of the flood-prone areas and the proposed base (100-year) flood elevations are available for review at the Office of the Town Engineer, Winchester, Massachusetts.

Send comments to: Mr. Thomas Groux, Town Manager of Winchester, 71 Mount Vernon Street, Winchester, Massachusetts 01890.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Mr. Richard Krimm, National Flood Insurance Program, (202) 755-5581 or Toll Free Line (800) 424-8872, Room 5270, 451 Seventh Street, SW, Washington, D.C. 20410.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Federal Insurance Administrator gives notice of the proposed determinations of base (100-year) flood elevations for the Town of Winchester, Middlesex County, Massachusetts in accordance with section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-448)), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR 67.4(a).

These elevations, together with the flood plain management measures required by Section 60.3 of the program regulations, are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their flood plain management requirements. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and their contents.

The proposed base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations are:

Century Rallies For 21-20 Win

Down 20-8 in the fifth inning of a seven inning game, the Cardiac Kids of Century Publications put on a furious charge, scoring 13 runs in the final three innings to nip the Winchester Town Hallies, 21-20 last Friday night.

The Town Hallies, looking to avenge an earlier 12-8 loss to Century, jumped to a quick 9-0 lead in the first inning, thanks to the four errors of Century's shortstop.

The two teams traded runs over the next four innings as the Town Hallies added four in the third, three in the fourth and four more in the fifth. Century, though falling in quite a hole, did not fall out of the game.

In the bottom of the fifth, Century added one run to pull to 20-9. At this point the CPI defense, slightly shabby to that point, clamped down and kept the Town Hallies off the board for the final two innings.

A nine run sixth pulled Century to within two as they got up in the bottom of the seventh. Momentum had clearly swung Century's way and Hally Jake Ciarcia, who again led his club in both spirit and play, looked worried. Bill Donovan led off the seventh with a homer to right. Following a fly out, CPI's Bob Nickerson doubled to left and Peter Accaro brought him in with an opposite field homer to left.

It was a stunning come from behind triumph for Century, as the Town Hallies thought they had a sure win in the fifth inning. When it was over, a shell-shocked Ciarcia could only shake his head in disbelief.

What with one thing and another, one thing being summer and another being gasoline, the appearance of two new books on the New England bookshelf is especially timely. Either would be a good companion on a day-trip or long weekend; both will fill up your two-week vacation with the pleasure of looking at New England.

New England Gardens Open to the Public, by Rolce Redard Payne with photographs by Cymie R Payne, is a state-by-state, town-by-town tour of great and little gardens in New England, from Connecticut to Maine.

Among the 150 or so gardens mentioned in the text are the famous and familiar ones like the Boston Public Garden, the Arnold Arboretum, and the Garden in the Woods in Framingham. More than that, Payne is serendipitous about gardens: she finds them everywhere. When one is tearing along on some errand, it's easy to overlook the plantings around Trinity Church in Copley Square, but Payne reminds us that windy corner is a garden. Cemeteries are gardens too — Mount Auburn in Cambridge and Swan Point in Providence are two notable examples — and so are towns: Woodstock, Vermont, it cited for its village green and its ubiquitous window boxes.

The text is accompanied by well-chosen black and white photographs (not every garden is illustrated). Each entry is prefaced by information about location, hours, entrance fees if any, and wheelchair accessibility. The book itself is grass-green, long, and slender: you could almost carry it in your hip pocket. New England Gardens Open to the Public is published by David R Godine, Boston; $8.95 paper, $17.95 hardcover.

Exploring Coastal New England, by Barbara Clayton and Kathleen Whitley, takes the broad view. The authors mention a few gardens, of course, but their real purpose is a town-by-town tour from Gloucester, around Cape Ann, and up the coast to Kennebunkport. With such a lot of territory to cover, Clayton and Whitley are occasionally brisk, and there is sometimes a kind of "everybody-back-on-the-bus" tone; on the other hand, there is a lot of information in the book's 270 pages. Domestic architecture is given special attention, and several towns are explored house by house and street by street. Pertinent information about directions and parking — both of which can be frustrating in small towns by the shore — is given in boldface type, a rare convenience. Each of the 13 chapters presents a detailed tour; you could "do" the whole book at once, or bit by bit, now through the fall. Exploring Coastal New England is published by Dodd, Mead and Company, New York; $6.95 paper, $10.95 cloth.

Plautus, Feydeau, and Shaw are among the attractions on the bill for the upcoming season at the Spingold Theatre of Brandeis University.

The Braggart Soldier, translated by Eric (Love Story) Segal from Plautus' Miles Gloriosus — written in the second century BC — opens the season on October 17, followed on November 7 by Lotte Goslar's Pantomime Circus. Actress Irene Worth will appear in a limited run of Letters of Love and Affection November 16 and 17 before Georges Feydeau's A Flea in Her Ear, in a new translation by Arthur Chaisson, moves in on December 5.

A double bill of American premieres — first runs of two new plays from Israel — opens on March 5, with Naim, from A B Yehoshua's The Lover and Endgame in Kiryat Gat, from a story by John Auerbach, both adapted and staged by Nola Chilton. To close out the season next spring, the Spingold presents You Never Can Tell, by George Bernard Shaw, from April 30.

Do we have room for another museum? The board of directors of the Museum of Sports think so. Still in the planning stages, the Museum of Sports is conceived to combine the cultural proclivities of Boston, with the absolute sports mania of her citizens. The Museum would feature sports memorabilia and multi-media shows, as well as "outreach programs" that would travel throughout New England. Matthew R Sgan, associate dean of Southeastern Massachusetts University, is president of the Museum of Sports, and is currently at work putting together a financial package and considering sites for the Museum's permanent home. Stay tuned for more news as it develops.

The North End and its Festivals

By Stan Bicknell

The North End of Boston is at any time a lively, gregarious neighborhood with a lot of al fresco activity, but six times each summer it really comes into its own. When North End-ers celebrate the feast days of the patron saints of their fraternal societies, they pull out all the stops. The societies were originally formed to help newly-arrived immigrants settle in; the festivals then were fund-raising events, and they retain that function today. But the North End festivals have also come of age as a reaffirmation of a community where people eat, worship, and have fun together.

The festivals are usually three-day events beginning on Friday and running through Sunday, although two are longer. The season begins with the Feast of Saint Rocco, from July 13 to 15. The Feast of Saint Joseph is celebrated from July 27 to 29, the Feast of Saint Agrippina from August 3 to 5, and the Feast of the Madonna della Cava from August 10 to 12. The Feast of the Madonna della Socorso begins on Thursday, August 16, and runs through Sunday, August 19. The "festa di tutti feste" is the Feast of Saint Anthony, from Friday, August 24, through Monday, August 27. If you can only fit one North End festival into your summer schedule, make it this last one: the Feast of Saint Anthony is considered the grandest.

> High Mass is celebrated on the eve of each festival, and after that, everything comes into the streets.

High Mass is celebrated on the eve of each festival, and after that, everything comes into the streets — dancing and band concerts, dozens and dozens of food stands, games and rides for the children. The culmination of the celebration comes when a statue of the honored saint is carried through the streets, with most of the North End in procession around it. As the statue passes, money, usually the folding kind, is thrown from the streets and windows all along the route; by the end of the parade, the statue is cloaked with hundreds and hundreds of dollar bills for the immigrants and the indigent. It's a scene that could be played on any street from Palermo to Pisa, for more than anything else, the North End represents the coming-together of the Old World and the New. Consider the following vignette:

A man dressed in a short-sleeved white shirt and dark trousers walks out of a caffe on Hanover Street and is about to cross the street when he sees a friend, an older man, walking toward him. The younger man stops in mid-stride and raises his arm in greeting. "Hey, where you been?"

"We had company from Foggia. I had to spend time with them, but they've gone home now."

"Oh sure, my wife's family came over last year. We took them everywhere."

"They don't like to miss a thing, do they?" The older man laughs and then grabs his friend's arm, and they retire to the caffe for espresso and anisette. The conversation is in Italian, but it's easy to catch the drift. Like in so many similar conversations in the North End, someone is either coming from or going to Italy, more specifically Sicily or Calabria.

Just like the conversations, nothing ever really changes in the North End. The Pizza Regina on Thacher Street — only the fussiest call it Pizzeria Regina — looks exactly as it did 30 years ago when a large tomato-and-cheese pizza was only a dollar and beer was a quarter. The prices have gone up to $3.20 for the same pizza and 60 cents for the beer, but those are the only differences.

At some time in the distant past, the Italians discovered the truly important things in life — family, food, community, church — when, taken together, make the 25,000 or so days we have on earth pleasant and meaningful. Once they discovered this truth, change or even embellishment wasn't necessary.

The Italians remain conceited about this knowledge. Maybe because it's so simple, they reason, no one else can really grasp it. The Polcaris who own the Pizza Regina still can't understand after all these years why anyone would want to add mushrooms, peppers, or sausages to a pizza. "That's not real pizza. But it's what people ask for, so we give it to them," a family spokesman says with a shrug of incomprehension.

The North End remains a neighborhood designed to serve and please those people who fully understand the eternal verities. Some accommodations (like mushrooms and peppers) have been made for the sake of business, but not many.

The visitor willing to accept the North End on its own terms can find great delight here. And the delight is renewable on every visit.

Pace's on Salem Street is an example. Though always the same, it never ceases to surprise. Here is the most consistently interesting and least compromising grocery in Boston. The barrels of green and black olives, the bulk anchovies sold on the sidewalk, and the smoked fish and provolone hanging from meat racks inside are meant for the Italian families in the neighborhood and those who appreciate the Italian table. Who but an Italian could make the fine distinction between any of the eight different brands of olive oil sold in gallon cans or the dozens of different sizes and shapes of pasta?

If you want your Parmesan and Romano packaged in plastic film and certified by Kraft or digital cash registers, then you will have to look elsewhere. In Pace's the cheese comes in enormous wheels, and change is made from the apron pocket to the nearest nickel on busy Saturdays.

Food, of course, is the great magnet that draws people to the North End. Whether it be the "slush" — shaved ice covered with sweet, brightly-colored syrups and served in paper cups — sold from stands on Cross Street or the dressed rabbits and oxtails hanging in the windows of butcher shops like Del Bene's and Abruzzese's on Salem Street, the strangeness has an allure to the meat-and-potatoes palate of the American diet.

Yet the question to the visitor is how to make a judgment — what to buy and where? The best rule of thumb is how many people are patronizing the establishment and doing business in Italian.

The same scale can be used when browsing for a restaurant. Take a look inside and see if there are two or three tables pushed together and a family of a dozen or so crowded around talking in Italian. Unless it's the owner's family, chances are excellent the restaurant has earned a reputation as a good Italian restaurant.

The restaurants in the North End that have held on to their reputations over the years are Felicia's, Francesca's, Polcari's, and Joe Tecce's. But again, to be certain, look for the large party and listen for the language.

During festival time, any restaurant in the North End is likely to be busy, and you can plan on waiting for a table if you haven't a reservation. On the other hand, you may be able to fill up at the outdoor stands, which can provide a four-course dinner without any trouble. You'll never go hungry in the North End.□

Food

Plaza Inn

By Steven Raichlen

I must confess, the whole idea of the place made me nervous. A continental-style restaurant right on Route 1, with a bright yellow sign emblazoned with a nondescript name like the Plaza Inn. Now I've had good food in some pretty unlikely places before, but stopping at a restaurant which ran so counter to my instincts seemed like begging for trouble.

My fears proved groundless, I'm pleased to report. Not only did the Plaza Inn in Wrentham far surpass my expectations, but much that it had to offer was downright delectable.

The fare at the Plaza Inn is what I call hotel-style-continental. Nothing flashy or particularly inventive. The food is traditional, predictable, and good. The cuisines of France and Italy are amply represented on the menu, as are selected favorites of this country. Many of the house specialties bear tribute to the hotels — the Boca Raton Hotel, the Eden Roc in Florida, the Bon Vivant Room of the Hilton — where owner/chef Steven Spaneas worked prior to opening the Plaza Inn in 1974.

If the main bill of fare is fairly conservative, the hors d'oeuvres salad spread, with which each meal opens, will pique your palate and your imagination. The evening we were there, there were 15 hors d'oeuvres and salads to choose from, ranging from pedestrian bean and beet salads, to cold poached mussels and an intriguing cold mashed potato vinaigrette. The squid salad was my favorite — squid in a tangy tomato marinade, a dish reminiscent of the Mediterranean. Cold ratatouille — a succulent medley of eggplant, green pepper, and tomato — likewise had Mediterranean overtones, as did the marinated zucchini with red peppers. The marinated mushrooms were of high mettle, though a little too sweet for my taste. The chopped liver was buttery and unctuous.

> The hors d'oeuvres salad spread will pique your palate and your imagination.

It's the little touches which make a restaurant memorable and one of those touches at the Plaza is the butter, which comes swirled in dainty rosettes, instead of in conventional pats. The bread, a square Italian-style loaf topped with sesame seeds, proved perfectly palatable. The salad — preprandial iceburg with a sweetish cheese dressing — was nothing to write home about.

The appetizers had their strong points and shortcomings. The Fettucini Alfredo ($2.50) — prepared with packaged pasta — lacked the cheesy richness of superior versions of the dish, but a pinch of cinnamon lent it an intriguing and uncommon touch. The Clams Eden Roc ($3.25) — a veritable seafood casserole on the half shell — brimmed with sweet bay scallops and fish chunks in addition to clams. Only its thick white sauce lacked finesse. The Consomme Double ($1.25) was a dark clear soup loaded with sherry. I suspect the salty broth was based on a commercial extract.

The main courses, likewise, had their merits. Boneless Rainbow Trout ($7.95) came à la Meuniere, "Miller-style": like the miller or his wife, the fish is thoroughly dusted with flour before being sautéed in butter. The fish had plenty of flavor, but was somewhat dry. In terms of vegetable accompaniments, the bright-red, bread-crumbed broiled tomato made a marvelous side dish. The peas should probably have remained in the freezer.

The Scallopini of Veal Marsala ($8.95), one of the six classic Italian specialties on the menu, wore the traditional ebony-colored wine sauce. It was further enhanced with fresh mushrooms. The Linguini Marinara served as a side dish did not seem overly generous on the clams.

Plume de Veau Oscar ($12.95) — veal scallopini with asparagus, buttery-sweet king crab meat, and bearnaise sauce — was a dish brilliantly conceived, but one which suffered from its execution. It's true that the white asparagus, considered a delicacy by many, enables the Plaza Inn to offer Veal Oscar year round. My own feeling is that it's a crime to use canned asparagus when lovely fresh green asparagus is in season. The sauce — vinegar, tarragon, shallots notwithstanding — lacked the tangy zip a proper bearnaise should have.

The veal of neither dish was particularly tender.

Dessert brought a positive triumph to the table of the Metroguide wayfarers. It took the form of an egg-rich, ethereal Zabaglione ($3.50) flavored with Grand Marnier — a dish which merited a golden spoon and poet's laurels. The Coupe Mona Lisa ($1.95) — vanilla ice-cream with warm wine-and-cinnamon-soaked black cherries — earned an honorable mention. The Sweet of the Day ($1.50) turned out to be a Black Forest Cake

Dracula
It's our loss, here in the space age, that Count Dracula is more likely to provoke a grin than a shudder. This production, based on the play by Hamilton Deane and John L Balderston, which was in turn derived from the Bram Stocker book (which was scary) is camp-y and heavily produced. However — and this is a big however — Frank Langella in the title role is supernatural. Having played the part for years on Broadway, he wears it like a Brooks Brothers suit, with great elegance and circumspection. Cheri; Brockton, Burlington, Danvers, Framingham, Newton.

Escape from Alcatraz

The In-Laws
The picture has almost nothing to do with weddings or marriage or in-laws. What it does have to do with is: a CIA lunatic (Peter Falk), a Park Avenue dentist (Alan Arkin), the US Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the Mob, a BMW with a bizarre paint job, a banana republic run by a man who paints puppets on his hand, and money. That at least is the gist of the matter. Falk is certifiable; Arkin has a gimlet-eyed, oh-my-God look; In-Laws has many funny moments. A return to having a good time at the movies. Cheri; Chestnut Hill, Natick, Peabody.

The Main Event
Barbra Streisand stars as a formerly rich woman named Hilary Kramer who falls owner to a down-at-the-heels fighter named Kid Natural (Ryan O'Neal). The movie's alleged gimmick is the reversal of gender functions: she owns his contract, she bosses him around, and finally she seduces him. It's a disservice to both sexes. The Streisand-Kramer character is brass-lunged and wooden-headed, and all you can think about is how much you want somebody to punch her in the face. Cinema 57; Braintree, Danvers, Framingham.

Moonraker
Summer is here, and you can tell because the annual James Bond thriller has arrived. One of its most appealing qualities is the way it happily pulls its own legs: Moonraker makes fun of the whole spy genre. In fact, it's more funny than it is thrilling. All the requisite parts are here: the villainous megalomaniac with the sinister Oriental bodyguard, beautiful girls, beautiful gadgets, beautiful cars. Roger Moore is — for the fourth time — Agent 007, and Lois Chiles is the lovely at his side, but Moonraker doesn't come up to the level of its immediate predecessor, The Spy Who Loved Me. It's formulaic and a little out of control without being exciting, and there's a Star Wars-style ending, without any of that film's ingenuous energy. Richard Kiel returns as "Jaws," and Michael Lonsdale is Dr Drax, the baddy. Cinema 57; Brockton, Danvers, Natick.

Newsfront
From Australia, Phillip Noyce's pleasant film about the life and death of the newsreel business, and incidentally of the people who work in it. In a starring role as chief cameraman, Bill Hunter is paunchy and ruddy-faced and not getting any younger, but he's as engaging a leading man as you're likely to see. He embodies a good liberal decency that you can almost touch. The film uses real news footage (you can't always tell when), and shifts from color to black and white apparently at random, which isn't nearly as messy as it sounds. With Gerard Kennedy, Wendy Hughes, and Chris Haywood. Orson Welles.

Rocky Horror Picture Show
The camp phenomenon of midnight, with Susan Sarandon, Barry Bostwick, Tim Curry, and Meat Loaf. Audience participatin is definitely the order of the day, er, night. Exeter.

Rocky II
Rocky II is Rocky, back in the ring against Apollo Creed for the world title, with a new ending tacked on and all the rough edges taken off. There isn't a trace of grit anywhere. The movie is as amiable and as lumbering as Rocky Balboa himself. How can you dislike anything as good-hearted as this? By the eighth round of the final fight the audience in the theatre is standing up and cheering out loud. This isn't a fighting picture, it's a love match. With the usual personnel: Sylvester Stallone, Talia Shire, Burgess Meredith, and Carl Weathers. Pi Alley; Brockton, Danvers, Natick.

Sidney Sheldon's Bloodline
A five-pound box of chocolates movie, what used to be called lady-fiction, with lush decor, rich locations, and an all-star cast. The plot — which you shouldn't for one minute take seriously — concerns the heiress to a pharmaceutical empire being endangered by one or more of her unsavory friends and relations. It's almost as entertaining to speculate on how any of these people could possibly be related: Audrey Hepburn (who gets to wear the most smashing Givenchy clothes) James Mason, Michelle Phillips, Romy Schneider, Irene Pappas, Omar Shariff (as a music-hall adulterer), Ben Gazzarra, Maurice Ronet, and Beatrice Straight. Gert Frobe, unrelated, plays a sweatery old police inspector who works with computers. Cheri; Braintree, Danvers, Framingham.

Dracula-Frank Langella is Count Dracula.

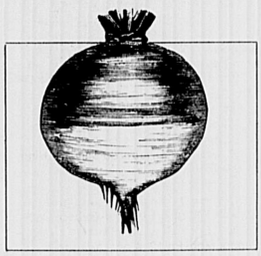
loaded with sour cherry preserves. It was tasty, if less exciting than its colleagues.

The Plaza Inn has a limited, reasonable selection of wines. We ordered the 1977 Cruse Pinot Chardonnay, which made a terrific tipple for the money.



The dining room, accented in red, is eclectically decorated. Chef Spaneas's numerous culinary awards adorn the wall by the salad bar. The service is solicitous, friendly, and prompt. I won't say the place is worth a special detour. But if you find yourself in the neighborhood — and well you might with Schaefer Stadium and the New England Harness Raceway just down the road — you can count on the Plaza Inn for a solid, dependable meal.□

Notes:
Located on Route 1 in Wrentham, the Plaza Inn opens at 11 for lunch. Dinner is served every night, and there is a brunch on Sundays. American Express and Master Charge are both accepted. For reservations, dial 384-2800.

After August 1st, things won't be the same.

In the past 3 years, more than 125 people have purchased quality condominium homes at The Tower at Ferncroft in Danvers. At prices which have been as much as 50% less than comparable properties in Boston. You have until August 1 to join them, before prices on remaining units increase.

It means service like 24-hour attendant personnel, electronic security, garage parking and established management. It means enjoying outdoor swimming in a heated pool, exercise rooms and saunas. It means a chance for golf on the adjoining Robert Trent Jones course; magnificent views of the New England countryside; North Shore beaches; convenient shopping and entertainment. And, Boston, only 20 minutes away.

Until August 1, two-bedroom homes at Ferncroft are available from the low $70's. Less than 50 units remain, so the time to reserve is now. Call 599-3280 or 774-4317 for an appointment. Hours are 10-6, Sundays, 12-6. From Boston, take I-95 North to the Topsfield Exit and follow the signs to Ferncroft Drive.

THE TOWER AT FERNCROFT

It could only have happened at Jason's.

She wasn't an easy woman to impress. I told her about Jason's spinach salad. She preferred his swordfish with bernaise.

I described the beef wellington but she deftly topped me with a description of baked fish en papillote that left me weak with hunger.

I reminisced about Jason's Sunday brunch. She recited the whole brunch menu and told me what I'd missed.

In desperation I brought up Downstairs at Jason's. And when she didn't tell me about the handcut sandwiches and Jason's spectacular seafood bar I knew I had a chance.

I took her downstairs for drinks, and she was impressed.

Proving once again that the only way to impress someone who's been to Jason's is to take them there again.

#87 It Figures

By Don Rubin

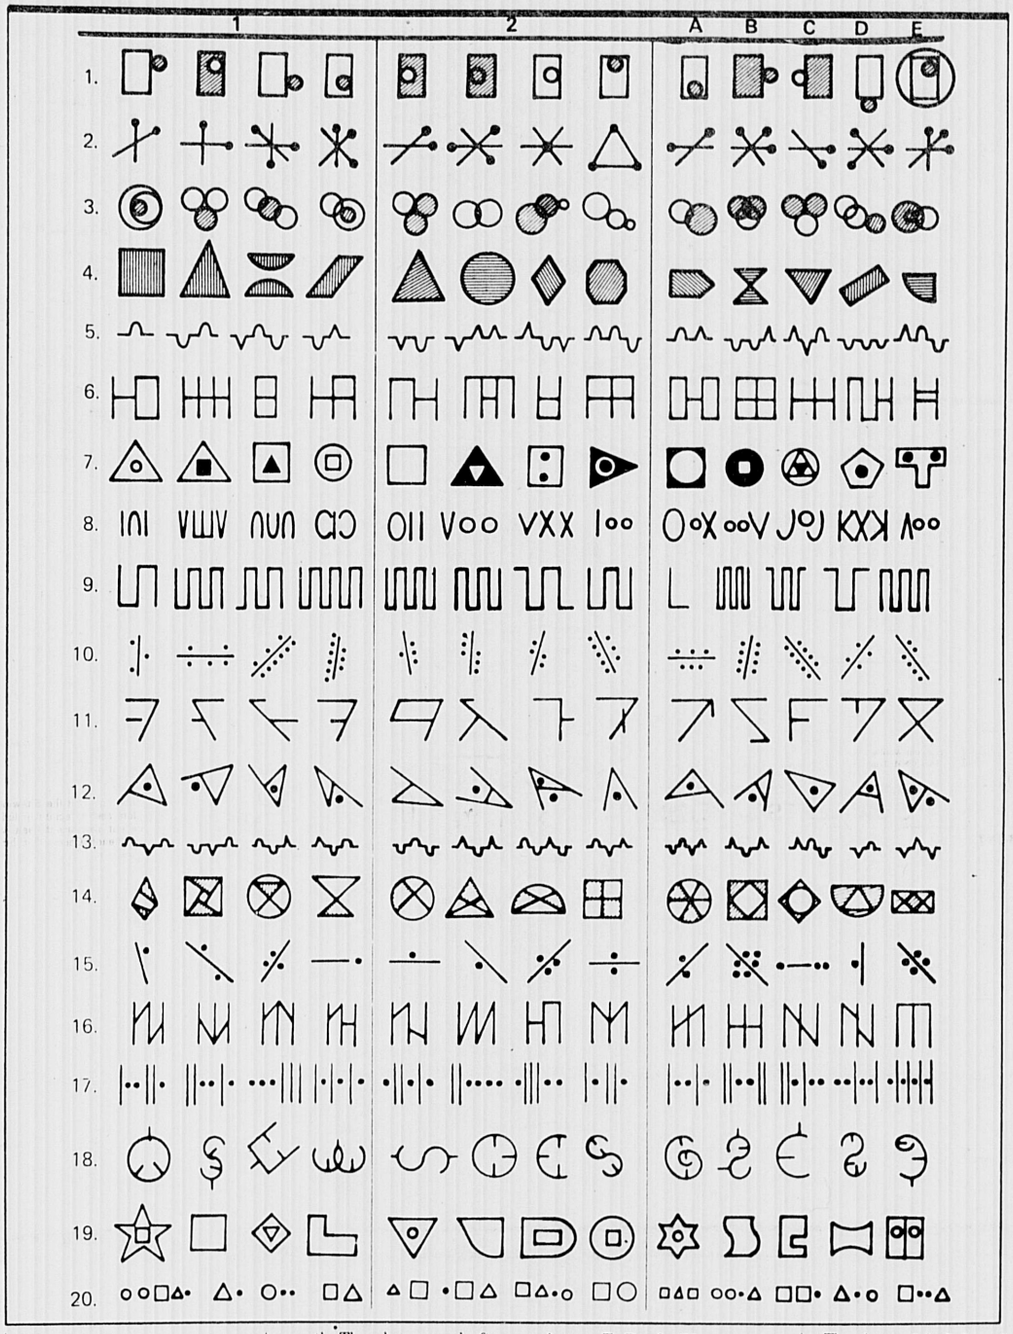
Wouldn't you know it? With our educational background, we couldn't even figure out the instructions.

Each of the following problems consists of two groups of figures labeled 1 and 2. These are followed by five answer figures, lettered A, B, C, D, and E. For each problem you must decide what characteristic each of the figures in Group 1 has that none of the figures in Group 2 has. Then select the lettered answer figure that has this characteristic.



Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through September 6 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Labor Day Lottery and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the September 13 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE puzzle desk, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

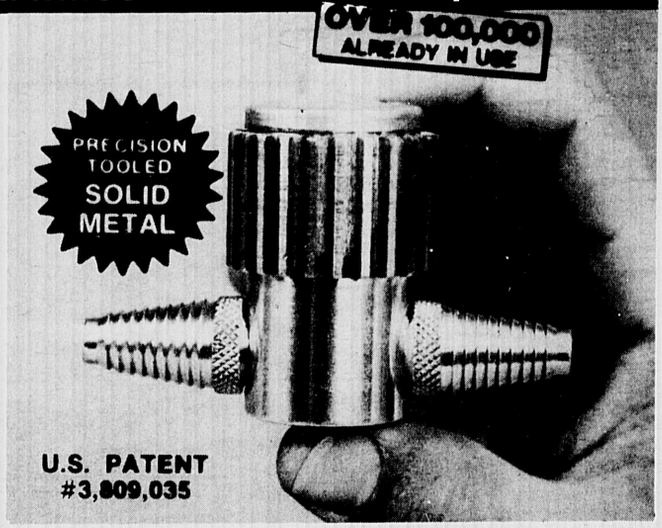
The first ten winners are: T Towey, Billerica; John Cade, Winchester; Jay Morin, Dracut; Scott Ruegg, Holliston; Theresa Falzone, Malden; Paul Blumenstein, Newton Centre; Joseph Erbacher, Chelmsford; Pat Snyder, S Chelmsford; Walter Caughey, Framingham; Peter Schact, Newburyport.

The winner of the Independence Day Lottery is Dan Loring of Ayer. Congratulations and enjoy your MetroDinner for two.

Get Up To 4 Extra Miles Per Gallon ...100 Extra Miles Between Fill-Ups

SAVE UP TO $200 A YEAR ON GAS



Think of it! Thanks to an important automotive invention, every single car owner, every fleet operator, every truck or camper owner . . . everyone who operates a gas-powered internal combustion engine, may now be able to save up to 20% and more on their gasoline bills!

Yes, you may actually get up to 70 . . . 80 . . . 90 . . . even 100 extra miles from every single tankful! No matter how old or run-down your car may be . . . no matter how many gallons of gas it now devours each week . . . FROM THE VERY INSTANT YOU INSTALL THE BALL-MATIC™ GAS SAVER VALVE IN YOUR CAR YOU SHOULD EXPERIENCE A NOTICEABLE DECREASE IN GAS CONSUMPTION!

Here's why:

The carburetor is a major component in your car's engine which can cause a significant waste of gasoline. Under actual day to day driving conditions its ability to perform is never fully efficient. During peak load conditions . . . or when driving at higher speeds . . . or starting up from a dead stop . . . or negotiating grades and steep hills . . . or pulling a trailer or camper . . . or carrying a full load of passengers, the carburetor can allow too much gas to feed into the combustion chamber which considerably reduces your fuel economy. Every time that happens, it's just like pouring money down the drain.

Stops Your Car From Wasting Gasoline

Adding the BALL-MATIC GAS SAVER VALVE to your engine is like having a "mini computer brain" which actually controls the air-to-fuel balance on a constant basis. As soon as an improper over-rich condition develops, it opens to permit a precise measure of additional air to enter the system. The result: more effective combustion and a fuel savings of up to 20% or more!

Controlled Tests Confirm Big Dollar Savings

In the Spring of 1978, we arranged for a local Shell Service Station to conduct a controlled, supervised, test using seven different cars owned and driven by non-professional drivers. Each car was fitted with a locked gas cap and the keys kept in the possession of the testers.

After establishing base mileage consumption data for the various cars, the BALL-MATIC was installed and miles-per-gallon figures were re-checked. Every single car in the test showed meaningful improvement.

Make Of Car	MPG Improvement
Cadillac Eldorado	21%
Chrysler Imperial	28%
Oldsmobile Cutlass	8%
Chevrolet Vega	10%
Ford Gran Torino	19%
Chevrolet Camaro	16%
Cadillac Eldorado	40%
IMPROVEMENT RANGE	8% to 40%

Start Saving Immediately

As of now, tens of thousands of motorists all over the country have put the BALL-MATIC GAS SAVER VALVE in their cars. It takes only a few minutes to install and no special tools are required (easy-to-follow instructions are provided) — it's so easy, anyone can do it! But best of all, the BALL-MATIC works immediately There's no "breaking-in period" — you experience a significant savings with the very first tankful.

The BALL-MATIC fits all American and foreign cars except Volkswagens. Do not use on diesel or fuel injected models.

READ THE RESULTS FOR YOURSELF!

I have had a remarkable improvement starting with my very first tankful going from 17-20 MPG in my 1979 Oldsmobile Cutlass. Since I am Executive Vice President in Charge of Sales for my company, I total well over 35,000 miles a year. According to my calculations, the BALL-MATIC will save me over $300.00 in the next 12 months alone. Needless to say, it was one of my best investments of the year!

Joseph D'Errico, Sr., Hamden, Connecticut

Just a short note to inform you of the performance of your BALL-MATIC unit that I have installed in my 1972 Ford station wagon. Prior to using your device, I averaged 12 to 13 MPG, now that I have installed your unit my mileage has gone up to 16 MPG around town.

A. Coutts, Sheriff, Orange County, California

I want to express my thanks for the BALL-MATIC. Since it has been installed in my car, my gas mileage has not been under 18 miles per gallon. This is an increase of 5.5 miles per gallon.

Rev. R. N., Claremont, California

After installing the BALL-MATIC on my 1972 Oldsmobile Toronado I increased from 7.5 to 10.5 miles to the gallon.

Seeing this I took my station on as a BALL-MATIC dealer and within the first week sold over 100 valves. This is the kind of extra income producer that other service stations should consider during this energy crisis to service their customers.

Louis Michaud
Mobil Service, New Britain, Connecticut

LOOK HOW EASY IT IS TO INSTALL THE BALL-MATIC YOURSELF

All you do is simply slip the BALL-MATIC onto the line leading from the PCV valve and twist into place. (It's as easy as screwing in a light bulb). In fact even if you never lifted the hood of your car before . . . you can install the BALL-MATIC in just a few minutes (no special tools required). Easy to follow instructions are included.

GUARANTEED SAVINGS

We firmly believe the BALL-MATIC to be one of the best investments you can make to save money this year. The exact savings you will receive may vary significantly depending on the kind of car you drive, the condition of your engine, weather, your driving habits and the amount of driving you do; however we guarantee that you MUST SAVE AT LEAST FIVE TIMES the amount you paid for your BALL-MATIC in the first year or you may return it for a full refund.

© 1979, Cliffdale Associates, Inc.

Order One Today Entirely At Our Risk

There may be a reason why you don't install a BALL-MATIC on your car immediately. But, for the life of us, we can't figure it out! If after reading this ad you have any doubts whatsoever, just drop a note and we'll gladly forward a copy of our test reports for your inspection.

Test the BALL-MATIC yourself entirely at our risk. Install it in your own family or company car and if it doesn't deliver everything we say it will — starting with the very first tankful, just return it and we'll refund your purchase price. We wouldn't make that kind of guarantee in writing if we weren't positive of the performance of the BALL-MATIC!

Please don't delay. Every day you drive without a BALL-MATIC GAS SAVER VALVE in your car costs you money and needlessly wastes precious gasoline. Call or send in your coupon today.

Selectmen Meet With Higgins, Discuss Holton St., Flooding Problem

Discussing such issues as Holton street and the Horn Pond Brook flooding problem, Mayor Thomas Higgins of Woburn met with the Board of Selectmen Monday night at the Selectmen's office.

Higgins, who brought with him a number of Woburn town officials in what was perhaps the first meeting of this type, stated that he feels the solution to the trucking problem on Holton street, in both Winchester and Woburn, will be the construction of a new Montvale avenue bridge in Woburn.

The residents of Holton street have been complaining to the town for the past decade about the heavy trucks that pass through their neighborhood. The truckers are using Holton street as an axis to routes 128, 93 and 38, rather than travelling back through Woburn from where most of their companies are located.

"Once the bridge is in it's going to resolve the problem," Higgins said "But the new bridge is a least a year away."

Town Meeting member John Harris, a resident of Holton street and the spokesman for the neighbors of that area, differed with Higgins about the impact of the bridge.

"It is virtually a hazard to travel through Woburn to that bridge," Harris stated. "Going down Holton street is the most convential and safe route."

Harris suggested a number of actions that Woburn might take which he feels would be both immediate and not demand a large outlay of money. He mentioned that "Woburn could take steps to see that no further construction could be done in that area until these problems are ironed out."

Selectman Edward O'Connell asked Higgins about the possibility of completing Draper street in Woburn. According to Woburn officials, plans have been made to complete the route, but would probably take longer to finish than the Montvale bridge.

"No matter what you do at Draper street or any other of these streets it really isn't going to make any difference until the bridge is finished," Higgins pointed out.

O'Connell also suggested such possibilities as monitoring the hours of operation at the industrial area in Woburn and supervising when the stations are fueled. He added that these might be some ways to provide partial relief for the residents of that area.

Higgins pointed out that Holton street was a long standing problem that could not be solved over night. "I just don't have a solution," admitted the mayor.

Higgins and the Selectmen also discussed the overflowing of Horn Pond Brook. During the flooding last spring, the water level at Spot Pond and 6 Horn Pond in Woburn reached exceedingly high proportions. Woburn officials decided to release some of the water to relieve the pressure.

Releasing the water created a large problem for the people on streets such as Canal street in Winchester. As Horn Pond Brook overflowed a number of homes had up to three or four feet of water in their basements.

"There has to be close cooperation between the city of Woburn and the town in terms of water arrangements," said Richard N. Wilsack, chairman of the Board of Selectmen on Tuesday.

To correct the situation, although the extent of the storm was unusual, Woburn is considering enlarging Horn Pond.

After the meeting both Higgins and the Selectmen agreed that more joint meetings should be conducted between Winchester and Woburn.

Selectmen Set Date For Special Tax Cap Town Meeting

With Town Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano reporting that the town's tax cap problems have not improved, the Board of Selectmen voted 3-2 Monday night to hold a special Town Meeting on Aug. 13 to correct the town's $180,708 overage.

The actual wording of the single article on the special warrant reads:

"To see if the town will vote to authorize the establishment of a tax levy for fiscal 1980 in excess of the limitations contained in Chapter 151, Acts of 1979; reconsider each and every item in the budget or other appropriation made at the annual Town Meeting convened on May 7, 1979 and dissolved on June 4, 1979, including the allocation of federal revenue sharing funds and the use of available funds to reduce the tax rate; consider the funding of the appropriations for departmental equipment by borrowing under General Laws Chapter 44 or take any other lawful and appropriate action to comply with the provisions of said Chapter 151."

Approximately four weeks ago the town learned from the state that it was $180,708 over the state imposed four percent tax cap. At that time, Faggiano stated that the reason the town was over the cap was due to a change in the formula at the state level.

At Monday night's meeting, Faggiano, who had met with state officials, stated that he was unable to acquire any compromise by the state and that tue town was in "the same position as three weeks ago."

Faggiano stated that the state feels that it cannot make any exceptions for one community and not another.

At the time of the vote, Selectmen Arthur Dunbar and Wade Welch voted against setting a date at that time because an expected report from the tax-cap sub-committee had not been received.

"I want a report from that committee before that date is set," said Dunbar. Welch added that he "supports Mr. Dunbar's position completely" and wanted to see the report.

Selectmen Barbara Hankins stated that she was "certainly disappointed" about not getting a report from the committee. But she added that she felt it was important that a date be set because of personal schedules.

Selectmen Edward O'Connell supported her position and Chairman Richard Wilsack cast the deciding vote in favor of setting a date.

Finance Committee member John Kupjian, a member of the sub-committee, said Tuesday tuat the sub-committee never planned on giving the Selectmen a written document.

"There was nothing in terms of a formal report that I was aware of," said Kupjian. He went on to mention that their job was to see that Faggiano was interpreting the law correctly. "We all felt that Al did an excellent job."

Kupjian added that if the Selectmen want some formal presentation, "they're just going to hear the exact same thing they heard from Al. If they want to go into what we did I'd be happy to show them. But the conclusions will be the same."

Booster Shots Needed For Some Students

Over 200 letters have been mailed to Winchester parents whose children are due for a 10-year diptheria tetnus booster shot for the 1979-80 school year, according to Frank J. Bianco, director of Special Education in the Winchester public schools.

Tentative arrangements have been made with the Board of Health to offer an immunization clinic sometime in the third or fourth week in September, however, Bianchi urges all parents to have their children properly immunized before the opening of school.

Arson Suspected In Early Morning Main Street Blaze

Winchester police are investigating the cause of a two-alarm blaze early Friday morning which resulted in heavy damage to Swensen Carpentry Shop at 931 Main st.

Fire Chief Robert McElhinney estimates damage to the three story structure and its contents at $10,000. It appears, he said, the fire was set.

One occupant of the Swenson building, George Murray, was arroused from sleep by Winchester Fire Department Lt. Robert Swynmer, and escaped injury.

McElhinney said a truck driver passing the Main street building, first spotted the fire and notified Winchester fire and police officials.

On arrival at 5:04 a.m., the Winchester firefighters found flames and heavy smoke coming from the rear of the 931 Main st. building. Also, a second fire was discovered in the back of 929 Main st., a building owned by Swen Realty Trust.

Firefighters extended hose lines to the sides and rear of 931 Main st., and the roof of the building was opened for ventilation. After a forced entry, lines were brought up into the building to extinguish the fire.

The fire at 931 Main, officials say, appears to have started at the outside of the building and worked its way inside. The smaller fire at 929 Main st. was confined to the outside of the building. Damage at 929 was to the left rear corner of the building.

Damage to the Swensen building at 931 Main st., fire officials say, included fire damage to the inside back wall, benches and building supplies. There was water damage throughout the shop.

The two buildings on upper Main street where the fire occurred, were built in the early 1900s by the Blanchard Co., to be used as mills for making finished lumber, according to Historical Commission member, Henry Simonds.

Firefighters at the scene were Chief McElhinney, Capt. William O'Leary, Lt. Robert Swymer, John Kimball, Dave O'Leary, Lou Capello, Peter Skerry, R.C. Sullivan, and Frank Hennelly.

MTA President O'Brien 'Knows What She's About'

By JON KELLER

"If you're going to manage an organization of 65,000 people, you'd better know what you're about," Massachusetts Teacher's Association president, Ellen O'Brien.

Winchester's Ellen O'Brien, of Edgewood road, knows what she's about. When asked, she jokes, "about five-foot-six."

A dry sense of humor is part of what O'Brien is about. Add in a varied background, a clear sense of purpose, and an outspoken nature, and you have the ingredients of assertive leadership for one of the state's most powerful organizations.

Born in Somerville 45 years ago, Ellen O'Brien attended St. Joseph's School from first grade through high school.

"It was great," she recalls, "having the same classmates all the way through, small classes, graduating in a class of only 40. Imagine my surprise to find out in college that public school kids knew just as much as I did!"

O'Brien recovered from that shock to earn a bachelor's degree from Boston State. Upon graduation in 1955, she enlisted in the Navy and served two years as an operations watch officer in New York City.

"That was an invaluable experience," she remembers, "to be 21 and have five people working under me was an opportunity I couldn't have had anywhere else."

O'Brien remained in the Naval Reserve after her stint, advancing in rank to full commander. She will retire from her commission in August to devote full time to her job as MTA president, a job she has worked long and hard to get.

From 1957 until 1978 O'Brien taught fifth and sixth graders in the Somerville schools.

"As a teacher, I'm a disciplinarian," she says. "I rule my classroom with a firm hand. The kids hate me at first, and some of them tell me so. I just say, 'well, you're going to have to come to grips with that problem.' Children that age need an anchor, someone they can rely on to control the situation - and they know it. They look to me to provide it, and I earn their respect and co-operation by doing so."

O'Brien favors enforced codes of behavior in the classroom, and decries the failure of society and the family to provide enough discipline.

"I strongly believe a youngster needs direction and individual attention. I hate to see crowd scenes in a classroom because demands on a teacher's time are so tremendous. They just don't have enough respect for education."

Who's they? "It's not so much the students or parents as the administrators."

For the head administrator of a large and visible group, Ellen O'Brien is decidedly anti-administration. As a teacher, she protests the amount of repetitive paperwork required by programs such as Chapter 766, the state's special education law.

"For one student you might have a dozen different reports to fill out and process - white cards, yellow cards, pink cards - with a lot of duplication. Why don't we call a one-year moratorium on reports and see if we really missed anything?"

As a union official, O'Brien is equally rebellious. She first gained notoriety as a leader in the 1972 Somerville teacher strike. Working her way peg by peg up the MTA ladder, O'Brien gained a seat on the Board of Directors. Her election as president actually came over a year ago, but under MTA rules she has "interned" as president-elect for the first 12 months of her two-year term. Sworn into office on the first of July, she is less than coy about her future plans - "I will likely run for another term next July," she confides.

That may be bad news for future adversaries across the negotiation table. O'Brien is an ardent supporter of collective bargaining for teachers.

"Administrators have had a hard time dealing with the idea of contracts for teachers," she asserts, "and collective bargaining is still relatively new to many of them. But let's face facts - the days of the old paternalistic system are gone forever."

To hasten their departure, O'Brien lists as a top priority establishment of a commission to close loopholes in the bargaining law, such as one that allowed the Franklin school committee to stall negotiations and, ultimately, provoke a strike several years ago.

Other topics on O'Brien's agenda include Proposition 2½, which she opposes, and excellence in teaching, which she vows to pursue.

"A good teacher is one who is concerned about the student, who is well-prepared, confident, loves children, and enjoys teaching." O'Brien supports the idea of a standard evaluation system for teachers - "if the elements of excellence can be isolated, such a system can work."

Ellen O'Brien is blonde, young-looking, and quick to smile. She delivers articulate opinions on controversial subjects with ease and grace, and without hesitation. Some examples:

- On Chapter 766: "The intent is good, but I'm concerned with its implementation. Nothing short-circuits a program quicker than poor administration."

- On the METCO program, which busses inner-city blacks to suburban high schools: "That's a very good program. It's too bad it has to be artificially contrived, because there are tremendous benefits to be gained from cross-pollination of school systems."

- Boston's court-supervised school system: "I feel sorry the court had to come in, because people rebel against that, and what you get is no compliance with the spirit of the law."

- On corporal punishment: "That functions mainly as a release for the anger of the administrator."

- On Scared Straight, a controversial documentary advocating harsh scare tactics in dealing with juvenile offenders: "Some fear is a healthy thing, but it should be a last resort to 'scare anybody straight.' I rarely raise my voice."

O'Brien's smile fades quickly when asked to comment on an incident at Winchester High last June. A white senior was barred from graduation after vandalizing a black teacher's car.

To Ellen O'Brien, the reaction to the affair in some quarters reveals a basic flaw in today's social and education attitudes. "I was stunned to hear people pass this incident off with 'it happens to everybody' or 'he wasn't the only offender,'" she snaps. "That's not an acceptable response. I don't think any student has the right to touch someone's property."

While she feels that racial problems in Winchester and elsewhere have not been "properly addressed," O'Brien sees this particular incident as "a failure of discipline, a failure of the family. Anyone found vandalizing property should be dealt with equally. We have to talk to our children, discipline them, and prepare them for the world they have to live in."

O'Brien says her biggest weakness is her "quiet and gentle appearnce. When people first see me they think 'oh boy, a pushover.' That's when I reach right over, grab them by the collar, and start laying down the law."

Students, teachers, parents, administrators, and legislators beware - Ellen O'Brien knows what she's about.

Unified Energy Policy Needed Says Welch

Citing the need for a comprehensive energy policy in Winchester, Selectman Wade Welch gave a brief energy report to the Board of Selectmen Monday night.

Welch, who has attended energy meetings on the last two Wednesday mornings, along with Town Manager Thomas Groux, School Committee Chairman Connie Papas and other town officials, feels there is a need for a unified energy statement.

"There are reams of policies that just cannot go anywhere because they can't be monitored," said Welch. He mentioned that he learned, for the first time, at his first energy meeting that the school department has an energy policy. He added, however, that there is no way to tell if it's ever been enforced.

Welch mentioned Monday night that "We need to have some kind of an activity run-down for the schools." He added that it might be feasible to consolidate groups such as the cub scouts and the brownies in one school when they meet. "We could save a ton of energy,'" said Welch.

Speaking from his office Tuesday, Welch again mentioned the importance of a single energy program. "The basics of it is that you have to have one cohesive policy, townwide," said the first year Selectman. "And it has to be enforced. If you don't do that you can't get to first base in energy."

"Our primary interest is finding out right now who's using energy," Welch continued. He added that the Winchester Department of Public Works and the Town Hall are two areas where some noticeable effort is being made to conserve.

Welch stressed the potential savings that could be made with a strong effort. "I'm talking savings of over half a million."

Welch was asked, in light of President Jimmy Carter's recent speeches on energy, if the various boards in Winchester would take a more active role in the energy struggle.

"I think we were taking an active role before the President's speech," he stated. Welch mentioned talks with gas dealers, the energy meetings and discussions at Selectmen's meetings as examples of their concern.

But the key, according to Welch, is the pressure put on by the town. "You can't have a policy that isn't both monitored and enforced," he concluded. "Because then it becomes a laughing stock."

2 Local Men Charged For Gambling

Two Winchester men pled innocent Tuesday in Middlesex Superior Court, Cambridge, to charges of illegal gambling.

John A. Marquardo, 43, and his son, John A. Marquardo Jr., 19 both of 1 Windsong lane, were two of 16 people indicted by a Grand Jury last week in connection with a $40 million per year gambling syndicate which covers three counties.

According to Winchester Police reports, the two were arrested before 7 a.m. Tuesday by state troopers, assisted by Sgt. Rolland Roy of the Winchester Police Department.

According to Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti's office, a conference will be held Aug. 22 to set a trial date.

Assistant Attorneys General Stephen Delinsky and John Bonistalli of the criminal division, with assistance from the organized crime unit and the special service section of the state police, are handling the case.

Bonistalli said it is estimated the gambling syndicate, which covers Middlesex, Suffolk and Norfolk counties, has been in operation for several years. It is also estimated, he said, the syndicate made $40 million a year from illegal registration of bets on sporting events, horse racing, and a number's pool.

According to Bonistalli, the evidence which lead to the 16 indictments was obtained from a series of court-authorized wire taps and raids on various rooms and buildings believed to be used as book making offices. The syndicate was investigated by the Attorney General's office and the state police units for eight months.

A spokesman for the Attorney General said Tuesday, profits from the syndicate have infiltrated legitimate business activities such as restaurants and lounges.

The indictment handed down last week says the defendants are charged with three violations of Massachusetts laws, Chapter 271.

First, is violation of section 16A, which is organizing and promoting a gambling facility; second, is conspiracy to violate section 16A.

Third, the defendants were charged with violating sections 7, 17 and 17A, which deal with promoting a lottery, keeping a place for illegal registering of bets, and using a telephone for gambling.

John A. Marquardo Sr., was charged with all three violations and pled innocent. His son, John Jr., was charged with keeping a place for illegal registering of bets and using a telephone for gambling and also pled innocent.

Violation for Chapter 271, section 16A can bring a maximum of 15 years in prison and-or a $10,000 fine.

Others taken into custody Tuesday, who also pled innocent in Middlesex Superior Court were: Mario Marquardo (according to the Attorney General's office, a brother of John A. Marquardo Sr.,) of Wakefield; Peter J. Sawtelle of Lynn and his brother, Jospeh P. Sawtelle of Waltham; John Ruscio of Needham; Joseph A. Yerardi Jr. of Newton; James Ciccarello of East Boston; Joanne Allen of Dorchester; Joseph Flanagan of Boston; Richard Tomelson of Weymouth; and Edgar Ferguson of Charlestown.

At press time, there were four outstanding indictments to be served.

Swimmers To Do Laps For Red Cross Benefit Wednesday

There are still a few days to sign up for the Winchester Red Cross first annual Swim-A-Cross, scheduled for next Wednesday, at Leonard Pond.

According to chairperson, Barbara Minutoli, anyone wishing to participate can pick up a sponsor sheet at any town beach or private swim club. A swimmer may then enlist friends, neighbors, and businesses as sponsors, and come to Leonard Pond on July 25 prepared to swim as many laps as possible.

In an opening ceremony at 10 a.m., Chapter Chairman Walter Armstrong and Executive Bob Gerrity will review the official Red Cross Swim-A-Cross rules. The first swimmers will start at 10:30. Stressing the fact that scheduling will be flexible, Mrs. Minutoli urges swimmers to come down to Leonard Pond any time during the day. The Swim-A-Cross will continue until 7:30 p.m.

Other activities scheduled for Swim-A-Cross Day include CPR demonstrations under the supervision of David Thompson and Bob Gerrity, and water safety demonstrations supervised by Town Water Safety Director John Henriquez. Participating in the water safety demonstrations will be town lifeguards Richard Palumbo, Martha Cresse, Tom Russo, and Laurie Grant.

In addition to the above activities, Red Cross volunteer nurses will be on hand at various times during the day to give free blood pressure readings, and Disaster Team volunteers will staff a first aid station. The chapter's disaster equipment will be on display for public inspection, and Red Cross safety films will be shown at intervals during the day.

The general public is invited to watch the Swim-A-Cross and participate in any of the day's activities.

A closing ceremony will be held at 6:30 p.m., and Swim-A-Cross T-shirt winners in each age category will be announced. There will also be prizes for the youngest and oldest participants. In addition, every participant will receive an official Swim-A-Cross button, provided by Northeast A-R, Inc., through the generosity of its president, Mike Minutoli.

Swimmers who would like to participate in the Swim-A-Cross, and who belongs to the Winchester Country Club or Boat Club, may swim their laps for the Red Cross at these facilities any day next week. At the Winchester Swim Club, the lifeguards will validate laps swam at that pool on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday.

Whether the laps are taken at Leonard Pond or at a private pool, all swimmers will be supervised by a Red Cross lifesaver or water safety instructor, and the total number of laps will be validated officially.

Mrs. Minutoli added that a plaque commemmorating the 1979 Swim-A-Cross will be awarded to the swim facility team which raises the most money for Red Cross.

Winchester Savings Bank has volunteered to sponsor a swimmer, according to Mrs. Minutoli, who expressed the hope that other businesses will contact the Red Cross with offers to help with the Swim-A-Cross.

"Another generous offer came from the W.G. Ayre Company, through its local sales representative, Steve Cumack," Said Mrs. Minutoli. "The Ayre Company plans to contribute a penny for every lap swam by all swimmers. Since we look forward to having a minimum of 2500 laps W.G. Ayre's contribution will help a lot in keeping Red Cross programs afloat."

"We hope other businesses will join the Penny-A-Lap Club," she added.

Police Report Woburn Youth Beaten In Winchester

A 19 year-old Woburn youth was severly beaten after he was involved in an alleged bottle throwing incident and auto accident last week, according to Winchester Police reports.

According to the report, Winchester police went to the scene of an auto accident at the intersection of Main street and Town Way.

When they arrived, according to the report they were told by the Woburn youth that he was travelling south on Main street when a Pontiac Firebird passed his vehicle and someone in the Firebird started t throwing beer bottles at his car.

The report goes on to state that the Woburn youth's car then came into contact with a third car. When all three stopped, the Woburn youth told the police that the operator of the Firebird approached him and started hitting him in the face.

According to the police records, both of the Woburn youth's eyes were closed shut, both lips were swollen and his nose appeared broken from the beating.

The driver of the Firebird, an 18 year-old Winchester youth, told the police that as he was travelling south on Main street, the Woburn youth began throwing full bottles of beer at his car. Police report that some damage had been done to part of his car although they did not attribute the cause of the damage as a full beer bottle.

According to the report, the Winchester youth claimed that he passed the Woburn car, pulled over and as he approached the Woburn youth, he had a number of bottles thrown at him He then beat up the Woburn youth and left.

The driver of the third car, seeing trouble, left immediately according to the police report. He later contacted the police and identified himself as a witness.

A hearing has been set at Woburn District Court for the two youths.

In other police news, a Clearwater road resident reported his home was broken into and ransacked last Saturday. Intruders, who gained entrance by forcing open a side window, stole a collection of pocketwatches as well as silverware and jewelry.

Police report gas stolen from cars on Irving street, Thornberry road and James street as thieves siphoned the gas from the automobile tanks of the owners.

Bicycles were stolen on Norwood street, and Yale street last week.

The Selectmen decided not to put an article on the warrant for the special Town Meeting that would seek funds for repair work on the high school roof.

Wilsack stated Tuesday that the Selectmen are anticipating a master's report as early as Labor Day. At that time, the entire case could be layed out for the Town Meeting.

The master's report is a review on of the case given by a court appointed expert on the situation. His decision is not binding and whichever side he rules against can carry the case to a higher court.

"We don't want to delay the repairs to the roof any longer," Wilsack pointed out. But he added that any premature action could damage the town's case in the suit.

Spring hours of the Winchester Archival Center, located behind the Ambrose School are Mondays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursdays, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Generations Of Symmes Family Live At Main St. House

By HENRY E. SIMONDS

The Symmes House at 230 Main st. is a fine brick-ended house, perhaps the largest Federal period house in this town. It is two and one-half stories tall and two stories deep, with four separate chimney stacks.

The house was built in 1817 by Marshall Symmes Jr., a direct descendant of Rev. Zechariah Symmes who came to this country from England on the ship Griffin, Sept. 18, 1634. Rev. Zercharíah Symmes was the first pastor of the church in Charlestown in 1634. In 1640 he received a grant of land from the town of Charlestown and settled in Wakefield which is now Winchester.

Marshall Symmes, of the sixth generation, was the son of Captain John Symmes who served in the Revolutionary War with a company from Medford. After Capt. John came home from the war in 1780, he built himself a house on Grove street near Bacon street. He also built a wheelwright shop and a black-smith shop near his home.

Marshall Symmes was born July 30, 1789, and married Lephe Stowell January 26, 1818. He worked as a blacksmith in his father's shop and carried on the business with his brother, John Jr.

This blacksmith shop stood on the corner of Bacon street and Main street where the brick house at 222 Main st.now stands.

Marshall joined in the petition with his brother, Deacon John, and others in Medford that their farm not be included in the new town of Winchester.

However he later served as town assessor in 1852-1853 and 1856-1860. He lived in this house until his death on April 19, 1877.

The next owner was Charles Thomas Symmes, born March 9, 1832, the son of Marshall and Lephe Symmes. He received his education in the schools of Medford and later at the Old Warren Academy in Woburn. He became a farmer and market gardener. He was married March 30, 1865, to Abbey Elizabeth Hunt of Roxbury. He had two sons, Charles Herbert and Irving Livington Symmes.

Charles joined the Winchester Fire Department in 1851. He served first as leading hose man on the old Hunneman fire engine until 1858, when he was placed in charge of the suction pipe. In 1862 he was elected second foreman and in 1864, as an engineer.

He served with credit in that capacity, until 1873 when he assumed the duties of chief engineer which position he held until his retirement in May 1891 after 40 years of faithful service to the town. He also served as president of the Winchester Fire Relief Association until his retirement. He died on Feb. 9, 1914.

After his father's death, Charles H. Symmes became the next owner. He was born Nov. 15, 1869, and was educated in the Winchester Public Schools graduating from the high school. In his early life he worked on the farm and on June 26, 1895, he married Mary Wellington Parker of Woburn.

In 1896 he founded the business of Charles H. Symmes & Co., dealers in hay and grain and other farm supplies. When the business was first started it was located in a freight house on the old Manchester Field next to the railroad.

By 1905 the business had grown and he moved to a new building at 747 Main st. which stood on the present site next to where the Saltmarsh Insurance office now is located. In 1913 his brother, Irving L. Symmes, joined him and they extended the business to produce. Charles H. Symmes retired in 1945 and died June 17, 1949.

Chandler W. Symmes, the son of Charles H. born in 1897 became the owner of the house after his fathers death. He joined his father's business in 1923 and when his father retired in 1945 he ran the business alone.

After World War II the grain business started to get smaller. At this time the business was changed over and the building was renovated. The retail store which was started in the 1930's was enlargled in 1954.

In addition to the grain and seeds, he added lumber, wallboards, doors and windows and garden supplies which include fertilizers, seeds, tools etc.

He retired in 1964 and is still living with his wife, the former Lorna C. Bugbee, whom he married on Dec. 8, 1923, in the old family homestead.

He is one of the few persons now living in Winchester who is a direct descendant of one of the early settlers of Winchester.

The House

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representative's votes on five key roll calls from last week's session.

Increased Exemptions (H 6600) - House rejected 113-33, an amendment to the bill filed by Governor King, as part of the House-Senate Conference Committee compromise, to provide increased income tax exemptions. The amendment would increase exemptions from $600 to $1200 for taxpayers with dependent children under 12 and for taxpayers who are over 65.

Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. voted for it.

Repeal Surtax (H 6600) - House rejected 103-43, another amendment to the Governor's income tax relief proposal. The amendment would repeal the 7.5 percent income surtax, and would take effect in 1980.

Saltmarsh voted for it.

Firemen and Policemen's Children (H 6574) - House approved 89-62, a bill giving absolute preference to the children of any firefighter or policemen killed in the line of duty. The bill provides that the children, if they pass the exam, be placed at the top of the eligible list for appointment as a policeman or fireman.

Supporters argued the bill was designed to provide some compensation for families who have lost a parent in the line of duty, noting it would help a child in the family to become a fireman or policeman and help support the family.

Opponents said they understood and felt sympathy for any family that loses a parent in one of these lines of duty, but said it was a very dangerous precedent to set absolute preference.

Police and Firemen Discipline (H 5991) - House approved 78-72, an amendment to a bill prohibiting cities or towns from imposing punishment duty upon any police officer or firefighter without his consent. The amendment would make the bill subject to local option, which means that it is only effective in a city or town which votes to accept it.

Amendment supporters argued the Legislature has no business interfering in the personnel policies of cities and towns, and noted this amendment would leave the decision on whether to abolish punishment duty up to the communities to themselves. Many noted that imposing the bill without the local option amendment, would mean that management would only be left with the option of dismissing someone who refuses to follow an order.

Opponents of the amendment argued the punishment duty law was an archaic one which should be abolished, and whose purpose has been wiped out. They said punishment days should be over so that communities can take disciplinary action in a more sophisticated manner. They said the local option amendment kills the bill.

Saltmarsh voted for the amendment.

$5.4 Billion Compromise Budget (H 6601) - House approved 132-22, the compromise $5.4 billion budget hammered out by the House-Senate Conference Committee. The key provision is a $166 million local aid reserve to be distributed for tax relief, with the formula used to distribute the money to be determined later.

Saltmarsh voted for the $5.4 billion package.

The Senate

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators votes on four key roll calls from last week's session.

Kennedy Health Proposal (S 1936) - Senate approved 23-14, resolutions urging the U.S. Congress to enact the national health insurance plan sponsored by Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Sen. Samuel Rotondi voted for the proposal.

Increased Exemptions (H 6600) - Senate rejected 25-7, an amendment to the bill, filed by Governor King, as part of the budget package compromise, to provide increased income tax exemptions. One of the sections in the bill provides an increase from $600 to $700 in exemptions for people over 65. The amendment would increase exemptions by providing an $800 exemption for people over 70, $900 for people over 75, and $1000 for people over 80

Rotondi voted against the amendment.

7.5 Percent Surtax (H 6600) - Senate rejected 26-8, another amendment to the income tax relief program filed by the Governor. This amendment would reduce the 7.5 percent income surtax to 5 percent.

Rotondi voted against the amendment.

$5.4 Billion Compromise Budget (H 6601) - Senate approved 24-4, the compromise $5.4 billion budget worked out by the House-Senate Conference Committee. The key provision is a $166 million local aid reserve to be distributed for tax relief. The formula used to distribute the money is to be determined later. As part of the compromise, both the House and Senate passed a separate bill providing some $27 million in income tax reductions.

Supporters argued the budget was a responsible and reasonable budget which takes into consideration the need for tax relief as well as the need to provide services and operate the state. Many noted they preferred more and perhaps a different type of tax relief in the budget, but said they would vote for this compromise version and work hard for additional and other types of relief next year.

Some opponents said the package was inflated and did not provide enough or the proper kind of tax relief for the citizens. Many objected to the fact that six members of the Legislature, those on the Conference Committee, actually decided the final budget. Others said the Legislature has no say in how the $166 million in tax relief will be distriubted.

Rotondi voted for the $5.4 billion budget.

Mill Pond Tributaries Cleaned

By HENRY SIMONDS

The appearance of the Mill Pond and river during the present dry, hot weather has caused considerable comment among those who pass through the central part of Winchester. The extremely dirty water, with the unsightly debris and shoals is particularly uniniting.

Until the situation at the Woburn end of our streams is cleared up, this condition of the water probably will not be remediated. The sewer problem at present has reached a standstill. It is of interesting note, however, to view the great strides recently made by the town's Waterways Committee in cleaning the tributary streams and getting everything within our own borders ready for the coming of cleaner waters.

The work is wholly out of sight. Probably not over a dozen citizens know what has been done. It is to a large degree Missionary work, but never the less, much has been accomplished.

Horn Pond Brook, long a bone of contention, has been practically cleared from its source to Wedge Pond. The word practically is used advisedly, for while this brook has been cleaned of debris and it's banks restored, it's location is such that constant removal of rubbish is still necessary to keep it in a clean condition.

Fortunately this task is no longer necessary on a daily basis. The feed of this brook is directly out of Horn Pond, a clean water supply. This phase of the situation is now under control.

The Russell Brook is another matter. Originating in the tanning section of the south end of Woburn, it's course is through a section difficult to reach and in swampy territory that is hard to govern. Nevertheless this brook has been thoroughly cleaned and numerous swampy sections banked up and channeled. Heavy rain still causes trouble and the lack of sewerage accommodations still makes it the only outlet for much factory waste.

In the cleaning of these two brooks, wonders have been accomplished by our local authorities. Out of sight and unsuspected by our citizens, to those familiar with the age-long conditions, the work accomplished is marvelous.

The next step in the work will be in the vicinity of the Main street section of Wedge Pond. Already much has been accomplished toward the removal of the buildings on this shore and plans call for an opening of the river channel and an even filling of the waste land to a clean water edge. This work will go on steadily to completion.

The Mill Pond, as it was in the late 1890's. The view shows Joel Whitney's the house on the left, Nancy Howe's in the center.

Winchester residents realize that the cleaning of our waterways must start at the source of the water supply and work down to the main river. To clean the lower waters, with the constantly entering flow of filth, would mean much work to be repeatedly done.

The shore line of Black Ball Pond, where the town dump is located, is now completely carried out, and present dumping is being carried on only to raise this land to the proper level. Each year has seen considerable settling. It will be a comparatively short time before this section of the waterways improvement will assume an entirely different aspect and gradually become the beauty spot it is designed it is designed to be.

It should be realized that a constant patrol is necessary in the work of clearing the tributaries, and in addition to this, the town departments have taken necessary steps to fill in many waste places to clear them of mosquitos. Other waste land has been cleared of trash.

It will be some time before the work reaches a point where it will become visible to all. Much waits upon the solution of the sewerage problem. Meanwhile our local boards are steadily working at the matter.

The Waterways Committee is of course the directing head, but the work has the co-operation of all branches of our local government. Particularly valuable has been the co-operation and assisting work of the Board of Health and Park Department.

That Winchester intends to clean up its waters within its town limits is very apparent by the great amount of work already done, and with the assistance of other communities and state's authorities, there appears little question but what visible results will gradually be noted.

Meanwhile our Mill Pond and river must continue to bear the brunt of the criticism, but the town cannot spend money in any wiser way than to aid our able committee in carrying on its work so carefully and ably planned.

Letters From Readers

Taxes

(Editor's note: Copies of the following letter were sent to the Board of Selectmen, the Board of Appeals, the Planning Board, the Board of Assessors, and the Winchester Housing Authority.)

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing in regard to the proposed elderly housing complex on Waterfield road. It seems that the main objection is the payment in lieu of real estate taxes under Chapter 121-A.

To bring another perspective to this proposal, which as I understand it will provide the town with $68,000 the first year, with increased payments in subsequent years, I have researched current tax income figures in adjacent business zones and come up with the following:

22 through 40 Church st. and Waterfield road - 1977-78 taxes $32,880.

27 through 47 Church st. - 1977-78 taxes $32,750.

Total taxes - both sides of Church plus Waterfield road $65,630.

Both sides of Thompson street, including the Locatelli Building, Winchester Drug building on Main street and the Vernon Realty building on Waterfield road 1977-78 taxes $58,860.

Current taxes on the parcels of land owned by Waterfield Associates Trust and Richard Realty Trust included in the elderly housing proposal, including the railroad office building 1977-78 taxes $4,870.

In addition, the Winchester Housing Authority has a total of 6.94 acres providing in excess of 100 dwelling units with no tax payments to the town.

It would seem that in addition to fulfilling an acknowledged social need, the town would be receiving $63,000 more in tax income than it now receives from the subject site.

For the past seven years I have been trying to find a use for this property which would benefit the downtown shopping area, provide tax income to the town and at the same time help relieve a pressing need for our senior citizens, many of whom have had to leave Winchester for lack of accommodations in apartment houses, condominiums or available rooms in single residences.

It seems that we are working at cross purposes when Mr. Jenks and many other generous citizens provide an elegant senior center and yet we fail to provide housing so that these seniors can continue to live in Winchester.

I hope you will consider my comments when your board and the other town boards meet to decide this issue.

Survey

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Citizen Survey on Winchester Center, prepared by the Planning Board, will now be nearing completion. Before answers are summarized and conclusions drawn, I would like to draw attention to one question which, it seems to me, was phrased in a biased manner and might stultify a form of development in the Center which could be both charming and useful.

Question 24 reads, "Would you be in favor of a zoning change to allow selected sections of Winchester Center to accommodate new walk-up apartments above the first floor, with commercial and business uses on the ground floor?"

The purpose of this question is, presumably, to find out if people would consider having some kind of combination of commercial and residential use in the center, not to find out if they like walk-up apartments.

To specify "new walk-up apartments above the first floor" ("bed over bread") makes a premature judgment about the type of configuration the residential-commercial combination is to take.

In fact there are other forms of multi-family housing. One form is the use of a courtyard. The section facing the front (the road) would be commercial; the buildlings behind would be the apartments built around a quiet interior courtyard. ("bed inside bread"). One would have access to the apartments through an opening built through the commercial space.

If I were to answer Question 24 as it stands I would answer "no." If I were to answer a more general question about having multi-use buildings in the Center, I would answer "yes," and add the proviso (for which the questionnaire allows space), "that it be done with taste and charm."

Kindness

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is the first time I have ever written to the editor of any paper, but after reading under the Selectmen's Notes, a dated July 5, about King being banned, I felt it necessary to make some comment.

I was a neighbor who welcomed King in my yard instead of throwing rocks and it wasn't very long before King trusted me and let me pat him.

I think if some of my neighbors had acted in this manner, the incident mentioned might never have happened.

It is nice to have a lovely landscaped lawn, but much more satisfying and rewarding to take care of one of God's lesser creatures. The time has come for children and adults to be taught kindness to animals.

We are very fortunate to have dog officers that set such a fine example.

If King became a little vicious, let's all look into our hearts to find the answer, "why?"

Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We wish to thank the Winchester Fire Department and Police Department for their good work in controlling the fire at the Swenson building and George Murray's building. We appreciate and thank the truck driver that took the time to report the fire at five a.m.

Sometimes, if we wonder what this country is coming to, you also realize that there are many good people left. We also appreciate the many friends that stopped by and offered assistance. Our heartfelt thanks to you all.

Sidewalks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Has anyone in town noticed the appearance of the sidewalks surrounding the duck pond? What I saw while taking my baby for a walk was less than attractive.

The sidewalks are littered with debris and covered with the excrement of the birds inhabiting the pond. This is not only an unappealing sight, but also, in my opinion, an unhealthy one.

We in Winchester are fortunate enough to possess a potentially beautiful public pond area. Unfortunately this is not so for as long as the sidewalks remain in their present condition.

Red Cross Help

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Due to the excellent referral by Sergeant Roy of the Winchester Police Department to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wolf of Loring avenue, I was able to receive the much needed and excellent medical care at the Mass. Eye and Ear Institute in Boston.

I understand Mr. Wolf has been recently elected as the Red Cross chairman for the Winchester Chapter. Due to his quick response by providing the Red Cross vehicle on July 10, I was given the vital care for an injured eye cornea.

Having been an active participant for 24 years in the American Red Cross Military Hospital Service, I valued the response provided by this well known agency.

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to both the police and the American Red Cross for the services provided for my welfare.

May they continue to give their time and service to those in the community who count on their availability.

Meredith B. Wagner

Approve Project

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Need of apartments at reasonable rents in Winchester is a well accepted fact, especially for elder citizens that want to stay near family and friends.

Our zoning by-laws do not recognize the above need. Such zoning laws and present construction costs limit taxes that Winchester presently receives from the property under consideration for the Winchester House development to $4000 per year.

Proposal by the developer would result in taxes of $68,000 per year, 17 times present taxes, with only slight increased costs to the town. If this property were fully developed as presently zoned, the town would not be able to obtain $30,000 per year from the total developed property.

I do not like all the hidden federal subsidies in this matter but if Winchester does not get them some other Massachusetts community will get a development that these subsidies will aid. We will be paying for these subsidies whether Winchester approves this project or not.

This housing should help to revitalize our center.

Let's face the facts honestly and approve a much needed project. If we do not approve this project let's zone this property realistically and not leave it as a dumping ground, as at present.

Malcolm H. Masters

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am a little disgrunted about some of the policies this town is pursuing.

First, I couldn't believe that in the midst of a gas shortage, the town purchased three gas eating buses that have few passengers. Certainly there could have been alternatives to this.

Secondly, there is a drinking problem in this town that is growing fast. I ask, where are the programs for our youth? Why are we spending thousands on the beautification of Winchester, while drinking and drug problems are very ugly?

Thirdly, I was amazed to hear that some town workers may be layed off while a new town yard is being constructed. Should the workers come first?

Finally, on the new hours at the dump. The people were asked to vote on the old policy staying. Shouldn't it have been the other way around? It's the new policy that should have been voted on, not the old one.

The logic in this town seems to be backwards. Don't we have anyone left that can think straight?

Peter Tello

Welfare

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is about our deserving mothers whose husbands have run out on them leaving them with four or five children. I am not condoning the others who are dishonest, I am talking about a state allowing this to go on.

These mothers, so the paper says, are living on peanut butter and bread. Some times they live on just peanut butter and no bread.

I should think our big boys in government would be ashamed to sit down to steak and lobsters while this goes on.

This kind of diet will produce a lot of illness later which someone will have to pay for.

For example, how would you like to have to borrow bread from someone, and use up all your peanut butter, and wait from month to month for a check that after your rent is paid, has little money left for food.

Why doesn't our great state find these cowards who have disappeared and make them take care of their own?

Too bad for the poor little kids.

Portsmouth Chamber Group In Final Cloister Concert

The Portsmouth Chamber Ensemble, a string trio from the Strawbery Banke Chamber Music Festival, will be featured in the final concert of the Cloister Garden Series on July 26 at 8:30 in the garden of the Church of the Epiphany.

As the resident ensemble of the 11-year-old Strawbery Banke Chamber Music Festival, this group of gifted young musicians has played to capacity audiences and has been generously supported by state, federal, and private foundation sources.

The trio has performed on educational television and radio stations, and has performed with many guest artists, including pianists Yehudi Wyner and Ward Davenny, and soprano D'Anna Fortunato.

They have been invited to perform as guests of the Rockport and Machias Bay Chamber Concerts as well as the Harvard Musical Association.

She has participated in chamber music festivals across the country and has appeared with the Orpheus Chamber Ensemble, the New York Baroque Ensemble, the Sea Cliff Chamber Players, and the St. Stephen's Chamber Ensemble in New York City.

Violist Ronald Carbone is a graduate of Florida State and Yale Universities, and has studied under Richard Burgin, Harold Coletta, Joseph Silverstein, and George Neikrug. As a free-lance artist he performs regularly with the Opera Company of Boston; the New England Opera Company, the Boston Ballet, the Boston Pops, and the National Philharmonia Orchestra, as well as other smaller ensembles.

Frank Dodge, cellist and founder of the Strawbery Banke Chamber Music Festival, studied with Alfred Zighera, Aldo Parisot, and Mischa Nieland. A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music and Yale University, he has presented concerts extensively throughout New England.

For the concert on July 26 the group has chosen to play string trios by Schubert, Street, and Dohanyi. Funds for this performance are provided by the New England Foundation for the Arts, the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Information about the concert may be obtained by calling 729-1922. Tickets will be available at the door.

A new bike rack was recently installed by the MBTA at the Winchester Center train station. The racks, which are of the "bring your own lock" variety, have not seen much use. Perhaps no one knows they are there? (Staff photo)

"I just thought of all those anonymous people who had held me in my need," he said. This time he was able to pass the requirements and did donate. "It really made me feel good to be able to do this. I appreciated being asked by the Red Cross," he added.

The business firms taking part in this drive were Micro-Dynamics, Winchester Evaluation and Analytic Center, Micro-Dynamics and L.L. Rowe.

Wedge Opens Late Today

Today, Wedge Beach will not open until 10:15 a.m. The beach will be opening late to allow the lifeguards to attend a lifeguard training session at Leonard's pool.

During the training session the guards will be dealing with hypothetical emergency and rescue situations. These simulations will enable the guards to work together as a unit. The sessions will also uncover any inconsistencies among the guards' skills, problems with the equipment, or problems with the beach areas themselves.

If problems do arise, they can be dealt with during the training session so in the event of an actual emergency there will be no delay or problems which could result in further injury to a victim.

Future sessions will also be held. Dates and times will be posted at the beaches.

MR. HOME COMFORT
AIR CONDITIONING, HEATING,
HUMIDIFICATION, ELECTRONIC AIR CLEANING
DON'T PAY MONEY FOR DISCOMFORT!
Maybe you've never had to buy a new furnace for your home. It may have already been there when you moved in or was installed when you built your home. If you have to buy a furnace, how much is your comfort worth to you?
You'll probably never die from the discomfort brought on by a poor furnace installation, but why pay money for it? The initial cost of your heating system is often forgotten quickly; but the cost of fuel goes on and on.
If you need a new furnace system because the present one has about seen its days, think of it this way. That initial cost will soon be over. What about the thousands of dollars you'll spend for fuel in the next 20 years? Will it buy you real comfort, or clammy off and on heating? Maybe we can help you decide.
How that furnace is installed will determine just how much comfort your fuel dollars will deliver in the next twenty years. At FEDERAL we design a furnace system guaranteed to provide the right kind of toasty warmth for every room . . . one that makes the most of every fuel dollar you spend. The key to the system is a well designed network of ductwork and registers, placed correctly on outside walls for good heat distribution. And, best of all, the furnace is set to deliver heat as often as possible, without long on and off periods and blasts of hot or cold air.
We recommend a furnace system that starts with a new CARRIER furnace. It's a furnace that will handle warmth for every room in your home . . . no matter what the weather. With a size CARRIER furnace to fit every type of home and FEDERAL'S ability to fit the right size to the right home, you acquire an efficient, economical and comfortable home for years to come.
For a free survey or any questions call FEDERAL HEATING day or nite at 623-1515 or 729-6866.

CASH PLANNING IMPORTANT

If you are considering the purchase of your first home, you should also consider taking a close look at your financial balance sheet so that your decision will be one of pleasure rather than pain.

Items to take into consideration are, first and foremost, the down payment, settlement fees and moving costs. These will make the biggest dent in your savings. You should have enough margin to draw on for such items as furniture, carpeting, storm windows, etc., if needed.

After figuring what your mortgage payments will be, don't forget to add on the cost of utilities and services that may be included in the rent you are now paying.

FHA and VA mortgages, if available, can be used to keep the down payment low. And don't be shy about asking your Realtor to spell out all the closing costs in advance - on paper. Financial surprises — you don't need!

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at

Deadline For Second Session Programs Today, Monday

Registration dates for the Recreation Department's second session courses in gymnastics, swimming, and tennis are rapidly approaching. Based on the success of the first session courses, the department expects the second session vacancies to fill very quickly.

The gymnastics classes are held for youths entering grades two through seven. The program begins with the basics and builds upon those skills, based upon the ability and interst of the individual student. The child-teacher ratio shall not exceed 10 to 1, and therefore registration is limited.

Registration was held Tuesday. Check the Recreation Office at the Town Hall to see if there are any openings.

Swimming lessons for youths are held daily at both Leonard and Wedge Beaches. Courses range from non-swimmer through advanced life-saving. Also offered is a basic lifesaving course recommended for all members of the family. No special swimming skills are required, rather lifesaving reaches and water safety is emphasized.

All registration for second session swimming lessons will be held on Monday, only, from 9 to noon at Leonard and 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at Wedge. Adult swimming lessons will be arranged upon request. Call the Recreation Department at 729-4514, for more information.

Youth tennis instruction is also provided daily for youths. Classes are leveled to accommodate the ability of the individual student. All sessions are held at the Packer Courts on Palmer street.

Registration for the second session will be held today at the Packer Courts, between 8:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. There is no fee for youth instruction.

Tennis is also offered for adults and senior citizens. Classes to be held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 are presently being arranged. Check the Recreation office for details.

Adult lessons are given on the high school courts. Register at the Recreation Office by today. There is a registration fee for the eight one-hour adult classes.

White No-Hits Maynard In Senior All-Star Tourney

Paul White's nearly perfect no-hitter put an abrupt end to the hopes of the Assabet Valley Senior League All-Stars at Maynard on July 14, as Winchester came home with an easy 10-0 victory in the single elimination baseball tournament.

In seven innings, only one Assabet Valley runner reached base, the result of an errant relay at first as White struck out eight and walked none. A line drive at left fielder Brian Guarnotta and a sinking drive into right center that was caught by Steve Dionne after a run were the only threats to White's no-hitter.

Winchester struck quickly in the first inning when Dionne walked, stole second, and scored what proved to be the winning run on a single up the middle by White. Rich Fennell, White, and Guarnotta eventually scored to provide all the runs necessary to insure the victory. The locals added three more runs in the second inning, with White and Guarnotta supplying the base hits, an eighth run in the third on hits by Ken Jacobson, John Boyle, and Jeff Perkins, and the final two in the fourth on a triple by Guarnotta, a single by Jacobson, and a double by Boyle.

Junior Players Recruited For Harris-Wightman

By JAMES R. STEWART JR.

Mrs. Harry A. Rothmann, 21 Prince ave., is the Winchjester Tennis Association's member who is in charge of recruiting 18 and under junior tennis players for the up-coming Harris-Wightman League.

The teams will be sponsored by the WTA and will include four boys and four girls who are under 18 and are not ranked in this section of New England.

Any boy or girl who is interested in competitive tennis should contact Mrs. Rothmann at her home or by calling 729-8348.

Matches will be played once a week at the William S. Packer Courts. The VASS no-add scoring system will be the format as all matches compete in 12-game pro sets.

The teams will play two singles matches and one doubles match each week which, under ordinary circumstances should last approximately one hour. A fine opportunity for an 18 or under junior tennis player to see just how well he or she can stand up under match competition.

Tennis Umpires Attend Newport Championships

By JAMES R. STEWART JR

Winchester was well represented at the recently concluded tennis championships in Newport, R.I., last week. This first-of-the-year Grand Prix grass court championship is sponosred by the Miller Brewing Co. and takes place at the Tennis Hall of Fame where are the last championship-calibre grass courts in the United States.

James R. Stewart Jr., 7 Winslow rd., secretary of the New England Tennis Umpires Association, was the chief of umpires controlling the assignment of other members of the NETUA to the matches.

Also taking an active part in the 32-draw singles and the 16-draw doubles professional participation were Mr. and Mrs. William T. Bird, 8 Lawrence st. and Lawrence T. Smith residing at 6 Meadowcroft rd.

The Winchester residents spent the week at Newport in support of the Tennis Association's professional umpiring contract and all are expected to perform similar jobs at the Longwood Tennis Championships in August.

Hampton Beach Trip Highlights Playground Activities

The playground program sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Department is one for children of ages five and a half through 13 years. The program is diverse, with various activities scheduled daily.

The choice of activities is geared to the age and interests of the participating youths. Sports like baseball, softball, whiffleball, and kickball, are interspersed with games cuh as "Polly" and "In My Grandmother's Attic."

In addition, special field trips to places such as Benson's Animal Farm and the Alpine Slide are scheduled weekly. Individual leaders also organize their own mini-field trips, and special activities.

All the fun begins daily at the playgrounds (Leonard, MacDonald, Ambrose, and Ginn) at 9 a.m., and continues until 1 p.m., except on Wednesdays, when the good times are extended until 4, to allow for special events. In addition, the cultural arts program is offered at the high school for those youths wishing an intensified arts program. However, cultural arts is available on a weekly basis as part of the regular playground program, for all children.

The playground and arts leaders have summarized their activities during the past week of the summer season. For more information call the Recreation Department at 729-4514.

Ginn Field

The hot weather during the week changed the format of the daily activities at Ginn. The normal games such as baseball and soccer were still played, but for much shorter lengths of time.

A new version of whiffle ball was invented and played under the shade of a few large trees. The younger children enjoyed sit-down games such as "Duck-Duck-Goose," "Polly," and "In My Grandmother's Attic."

On Wednesday the Recreation Department sponsored a trip to Hampton Beach, N.H. In addition to the beach itself, Hampton has a board walk, various penny arcades, and numerous gift shops and eating establishments. The majority of children went in the water and found it to be cold, but a lot warmer than usual.

On Friday, Ginn's baseball team travelled to Leonard and wound up losing 7-5. Jeff "Ice" Cahill pitched well but was hurt by a few long fly balls. Rob Williard had his rib cage rearranged by an inside pitch from Ricky "Bullethead" Harrington.

Although the boys' team wasn't successful, the Ginn Field girls' softball team defeated MacDonald Field 9-6 with only seven players. Playing with only one outfielder, they handily beat the full MacDonald team with a big second inning.

Outstanding performances were given by Tricia Bracken, Paula Russo, Michelle Powers, Beth Wilfert, Lori Dantas, Heather Innes and Liz Bracken, who was celebrating her birthday that day with the victory!

Ambrose

Three weeks and not a cloud in the sky, who could ask for anything more? Certainly not the Ambrose Field contingent!

Monday morning began with a good kickball game for all those who chose not to sleep away the morning sunshine. The game was fast, the ball was flying, and by mid-morning everyone was ready for blueberry muffins and donuts provided by the staff.

After brunch, the second great candy hunt was held, and once again Brendon Maney proved he had a keen eye for spotting candy, collecting a record nine pieces.

After the candy was found, a tired but enthusiastic group played a quiet game of "In My Grandmother's Attic." By noon the remaining children, with urging from Ellen Donahue, challenged staff leader Joe Mozzicato to a game of kickball "Eight Against One!"

Joe accepted the challenge, and played his heart out, but the odds were too great and he finally succumbed 9-8.

Tuesday began with a spirited game of soccer, with an even dozen per team, featuring the superior play of Eddie Farley. The action was rugged, as the ball flew from one end of the field to the other. With the score tied at 3-3, neither team had energy left to break the deadlock. An injury to staff leader Ellen Donahue's ankle, and a laceration of the knee to Heather Solamon proved to be crippling blows for their team.

Later in the morning arts and crafts supervisor Beth Russell conducted a lesson in shadow drawing, using colored chalk. Mother Nature cooperated in the form of bright sunshine. Some of the drawings proved to be outstanding, especially Matthew Mallio's, which depicted a laser gun being fired, quite similar to action viewed in "Star Wars." Another interesting drawing was done of supervisor Beth Russell, making her look like the flying arts and crafts lady! Sally Fields move over! With the art work finished for the day, those remaining played some games, including "Simon Says," and "Charades," to conclude the day.

Wednesday Ambrose Field went to Hampton Beach with the Recreation Department.

Thursday was a good morning to hear the umpire's cry of "play ball." A thriller of a contest ensued with the two teams playing to a tough 25-12 final. Robert and Bruce Gaeta contributed mightily to their teams' performance, with great catches and timely hitting, quite naturally in the form of "Gaeta-aide."

The second arts and crafts lesson for the week was based on texture rubbings. Many objects were used. Leaves, branches and other botanical items were featured. Beth Russell attempted to make the children aware of nature's way of constructing things, showing the fine patterns and tiny veins to be found in an ordinary leaf, during her demonstration. After arts and crafts, at the suggestion of Scott Coultier, a game of "The Minister's Cat" was used to end the day.

On Friday morning a good brisk game of kickball was organized by Paula, a staff leader. Again, Brian Pothier had an integral part in the proceedings, leading his team to victory with many strong boots scoring.

Later during the morning, at little Mary Murray's suggestion, many games of "Redlight-Greenlight" were played. The action was fast and furious, with the time taken to say "1-2-3 Red light!" being lowered to .333 nan-o seconds, an Ambrose Field record! As the morning progressed, and the temperature climbed, the idea to take a trip to Friendly's Ice Cream Shoppe was met by unanimous approval.

In particular, little Kelley Campbell told staff leader Ellen Donahue "I can go to Friendly's at least six times during a one minute span! The ice cream was cold, and everyone won 10 cents off their cone by playing Butch Hobson's Friendly Baseball Game. And so smiling faces ended the week's activities at Ambrose Field.

Arts & Crafts

The moring class got its first taste of print-making, with nature collographs. Prints were made of natural objects such as leaves, weeds, and flowers, glued to cardboard.

Colorful weavings were created on Tuesday and Thursday. A favorite on the playground was also a favorite in the artroom: maracas, which ended off the week for the morning class.

Asking the question, "Have you ever seen the end of the rainbow,"? the art classes invented their own land, complete with a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, on Monday.

Throughout the rest of the week the classes experimented with different ways to paint, without using brushes. Some techniques included finger-painting, stick and sponge painting, and straw painting.

Next week the classes will be making kites.

Leonard

As the summer continues, and the days get hotter, so do the activities at Leonard Field! Everyone is familiar with each other now, which makes all the activities more interesting and enjoyable.

On Monday, the playground leaders and participants discussed the Fourth of July weekend and played games such as "statue maker," "categories," "water balloon toss," and "wonderball." Then everyone painted murals of their activities of the Fourth of July weekend, which everyone enjoyed.

Tuesday was highlighted by a trip to the Fells. All 30 kids on the trip brought picnic lunches and climbed the Stoneham Tower. Those who stayed at the field stayed cool, in spite of the hot weather, by having a water balloon fight and going swimming at Leonard Beach.

On Wednesday the annual trip to Hampton Beach took place. Everyone went to the beach and enjoyed the sunny day swimming, lying on he beach, and playing various games that are featured at the shops and arcades along Hampton Beach.

In softball, although the B team lost its first game to MacDonald Field on Thursday, everyone played hard and lost with respect.

John Mangano pitched the first four innings and was relieved by Jim Coughlin in the fifth. Those kids not playing softball enjoyed a game of wiffle ball at Leonard Field.

On Friday, the A team played Ginn Field and was victorious.

Bruce Campbell, Rick Harrington, and Paul Matheson pitched, while Bruce Campbell and John Boyle scored the game homeruns. Also, a great defensive play was made by Peter Reagan in the field.

Those not involved in the softball game on this hot Friday, made prints in an arts and crafts session.

Everyone at Leonard is looking forward to the Alpine Slide field trip, baseball games against Ginn and MacDonald, and more visits from the arts and crafts department next week.

MacDonald

Monday was a sunny but humid day for playground activities. Arts instructor Stephanie Ruta showed the children how to create colorful and very unusual string paintings.

As muggy as it was, most of the MacDonald boys engaged in a game of "Capture the Flag."

Although there was no organized softball practice, some of the spirited players came to the field for a short workout. The younger children have been enjoying "Soft Frisbee," a game that is played with sponge-like Frisbee discs and a target.

Tuesday, Richard Haggerty challenged and defeated Mike Breen, Mike Gangi, and Mike Haggerty in a game of croquet. Later, Sandy Young and Mike Haggerty were the croquet victors. Kate O'Connor defeated Tara Griffin in "Soft Frisbee" 15-10. In horseshoes, Kate O'Connor defeated Ericka Gannon 10-3. Jimmy Hennelly's kickball team beat Beth O'Connnell's team by a score of 11-4.

Thursday the children returned to MacDonald after a successful day at Hampton Beach on Wednesday.

Thursday morning the B team boys hosted Leonard in baseball and came up with a win.

In croquet, Mike Breen defeated John O'Connor, Mike Haggerty and Danny O'Connell. Debbie Taylor, Pam Taylor, Sandy Young, and Katie O'Connor, joined leaders Tyaeste Smith and Mary Ann Beaton in a game of "Countdown Cules." In the afternoon, the softball team had a brief practice to prepare for their Friday game at Ginn Field.

Friday, arts instructor Stephanie Ruta led the children in creating "potato prints." The children carved unique designs in their potatoes and painted them and printed with them on construction paper.

After engaging in a game of "Keep Away Frisbee," most of the children traveled to Ginn Field for a softball game. The MacDonald girls included: Julie Gibbons, Cindy McHugh, Kate O'Connor, Colleen O'Connor, Debbie Taylor, Lisa Maney, Amy Morse, Kim Grano, Diane O'Connell, Kathy Morandi, Sandy Young, Patty Taylor, and Sheila Connolly.

The MacDonald girls lost 9-6 but did a superb job in the heat. Again the girls alternated positions in the field to give everyone an opportunity to play. The MacDonald boys cheering section is thanked for their support and encouragement.

The New England Home for Little Wanderers and the Museum of Fine Arts have joined forces to present, at the MFA, a Little Wanderers art exhibit. The show is in the Children's Gallery on the first floor, just to the right of the Huntington Avenue entrance to the Museum. The first thing you see as you come around the corner from the ticket-taker is a papier-mache hamburger with french fries, pickles, and melted cheese. The burger is about a foot in diameter and the 11-year-old artist, whose work shows the influence of Claes Oldenberg, is named Brian. On the opposite wall, there is a large hanging made of panels of felt applique work. Each panel in the composition was made by a different young artist, but all have a common theme of "Caring" and represent vignettes like Friendship, Going Together, and Birthdays.

Another hanging, in shuttle hook (loops of fabric caught with a hook against a backing), is called the Enchanted Forest. It too is a group effort, signed across the bottom in large maroon letters. The forest scene shows a prince and princess meeting under the watchful eyes of the forest animals. At one side, but still dominant, there is a large tree with a mournful, ghostly expression in contrast to the gay colors of the tapestry.

Other media represented in the show include lost wax casting, sand casting, cut paper collage, and poster paint. There is a certain effort to adapt the medium to the message, and the effort is nowhere more successfully realized than in Rainy Day, a scratch-board composition by David, age 11. Remember scratch-board? You coat the paper with wax or crayon then apply paint, and scratch off a pattern. The technique makes Rainy Day look very rainy, with strong vertical strokes of black like slashing rain all through the composition, enlivened with yellow slickers.

Very small, but not to be overlooked, is a block print called Ship, by David, age 12. David's ship is brilliant blue and purple and black and it hangs in a corner of the gallery glowing like a little jewel.

The Little Wanderers show remains at the Museum of Fine Arts through the middle of August.

That noise you've been listening to this past week, that gentle whoosh in the treetops, was us, breathing a collective sigh of relief that — against all probable odds — Skylab and Friday the Thirteenth did not usher in the end of the world. Except for a few cynics who are convinced that the whole space program is a CIA hoax, we're all glad it's over, and we expect that Skylab jokes will go the rounds for a week or two, and then fade away. Almost lost in the space shuffle: the fact that this Friday, July 20, is the tenth anniversary of Neil Armstrong's first step on the moon. You can see that famous step on film at the Museum of Science daily at noon and 2 pm, through the 20th. Also in honor of a decade of lunacy, the Sheraton-Boston has devised a special dessert, to be served on Friday only. With NASA-like (or CIA-like) secrecy, Sheraton spokeswoman Leslie Kress declined to give any details of the confection, other than calling it A Heavenly Surprise.

On another culinary note, a reader telephoned to take issue with our recent review of the Plaza Inn in Wrentham. Her Saturday-night experience was reportedly less enjoyable by far than was critic Steven Raichlen's Wednesday night dinner. Cooking, of course, is less an exact science than it is an art, and off-nights are not unheard of in the restaurant business. We regret a mediocre meal, but we stand by our review.

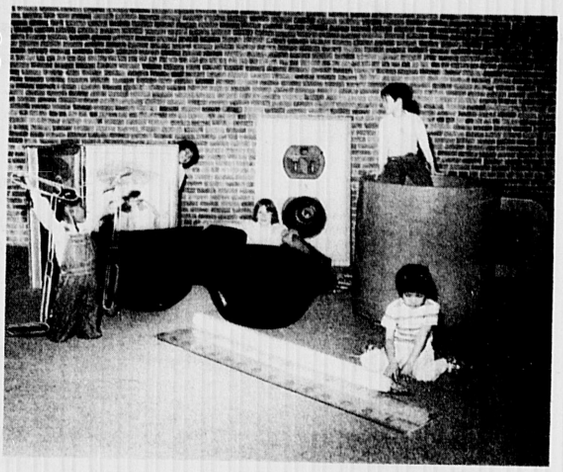
Museum Wharf: Two by the Sea



By Kimberly French

A scamper across the wooden slats of the wharf, a headlong rush through the yellow-rope maze to the ticket counter to receive a silver computer printout for admission, and a mad dash up the wide-angle wooden stairway. That's the route scores of little feet have taken their little owners in the past few weeks to undoubtedly one of the best times of their little lives. Since the opening and expansion of the Children's Museum along with the Museum of Transportation at Museum Wharf on July 1, kids of all sizes, ages, colors and abilities have found a new source for hours of absorbing entertainment.

The first haven in this veritable children's paradise comes at the very top of that wooden staircase when the young museumgoers find themselves suddenly the size of insects. Or so it might seem, as they realize they are completely out of proportion with their surroundings. In the exhibit called Giant's Desktop, everything is 12 times its normal size, to accommodate the absent giant (who, fortunately, never shows up — at least not so far). Set on an expansive desk blotter complete with heavily cushioned corners, this exhibit features a push-button telephone, a tank-size drinking cup, a box of paper clips, a ruler, a pen, an electrical outlet, sunglasses, and a picture frame — all giant-sized and durable enough for children to romp and stomp on.

As the hordes of children move on past the ticket checker and through the museum, one cannot help but marvel at the provision of something for everyone. From the smallest toddler to the early adolescent, from the handicapped to the most precocious, children of all kinds will find exhibits that meet them at their level (literally, since explanatory signs and some ceilings are lowered) and especially interest them. Even parents, grandparents, older siblings, babysitters and other adult friends will find the museum a nice place to spend half a day or an evening. There is one limiting prerequisite, however: You have to either be a kid or like them, even if just a little bit — because they're everywhere.

From there, a tour of the museum becomes a free-for-all, with captivating exhibits in all directions. Depending on the maturity levels of the children, families may want to split up, with each member pursuing a special interest. But on the other hand, adults can often lend helpful insights to the exhibits, particularly Grandfather's Cellar and Grandmother's House and Attic, which are full of antiques and memorabilia. When you walk into grandmother's parlor, you'll know exactly where you are, though only an embroidered sampler labels the exhibit. From the lace curtains to the antique furniture and "grandmotherly" wallpaper and decorations, the whole house is definitely authentic. The attic is perhaps the most intriguing, with trunks of old-fashioned "dress-ups," a schoolroom with old desks and pictures, and antique bureaus that beckon with signs reading, "Open me."

On the outside of grandmother's house is an exhibit called City Slice, a three-story cross section of a city street. Just outside the attic exit, children can climb down into an exposed manhole, a curiosity-grabber for all ages.

Out of the manhole, it's only a few steps over to a do-it-yourself exhibit on cartoons. You can make your own moving cartoon by drawing a series of pictures on strips of paper and spinning it in a zoetrope carousel. Nearby, kids can be in the movies themselves, or at least on television news at station WKID, where new news personalities are born every minute. Steps away are 12 computer terminals that ask your name and play games with you.

Several other exhibits are also related to science and technology. A tool department allows children and adults to experiment with elementary tools, including a treadle lathe and a bow-and-pump drill. An exhibit on living things gives children an opportunity to Build a Sheep into a skeleton with bones. This part of the museum is not for the faint-hearted, for at the entrance to the Living Things exhibit a human skeleton with a stuffed monkey perched on its shoulder greets you. Chests of drawers are labeled "Snakes," "Death," "Birds," "Spiders," etc., and filled with appropriate specimens. So if parent or child is the least bit squeamish you may want to muster up some courage before entering this exhibit. Science and technology are also emphasized in exhibits in which children can learn to stencil their names or to manufacture toy tops in an assembly line.

> Even in a museum-crazy town such as Boston, these two newly expanded specimens are truly something to see.

Children can learn more about work through role playing in the Congress Street Superette and the Health Care Clinic, where they can take a mock job interview. And they can learn about play in the Ruth Harmony Green Hall of Toys, filled with doll houses, dolls, and other toys. This is one of the few exhibits in which touching the display is not allowed since many of the items are old and fragile.

Though all the exhibits are creative, educational, and fun, the museum staff thoughtfully saves the best for near the last of the tour. The most refreshing and most interesting exhibits are those that educate in order to dispel prejudices. The first of these is an exhibit on Indians called We're Still Here, which tells the story from the Indians' point of view, a rarity both in American museums and children's literature and textbooks. The theme is a comparison of how New England Indians lived then and now. A wigwam is filled with pelts, pottery, and herbs to touch and smell (be sure to take a whiff of the sassafras root bark; it smells just like root beer), while a modern house explains what Indians are like now.

Another exhibit of this type is called What If You Couldn't? and focuses on handicaps. Children and adults both may feel what it is like to have a handicap through use of prostheses, crutches, leg braces, and a walker; a Braille typewriter, glasses, blindfolds, and walking sticks; and tape recordings demonstrating what it is like to have a hearing impairment and to what extent it can be corrected with a hearing aid.

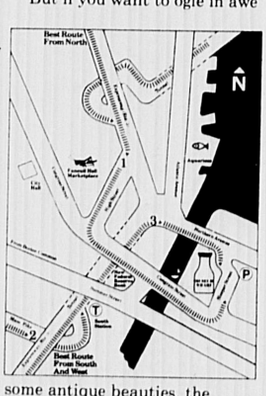
Still another enlightening exhibit is one called Meeting Ground, a demonstration of ethnic diversity. The main focus is on Italians, a display that was developed with members of the Boston Italian community. There are also smaller displays on the Irish and Caribbean cultures. This area includes a puppet show, tape recordings of stories in another language, and a free jukebox with songs from many cultures.

When you get to the end of the Children's Museum on the first three floors of the Museum Wharf, you probably won't have the time nor energy to visit its neighbor, the Museum of Transportation, on the top three floors. But those floors would be well worth the time and the price of another admission fee on a return trip. You may want to wait on the Museum of Transportation until after Labor Day, when it is expected to be completed. The Museum of Transportation also opened July 1, even though parts of several of its exhibits are unfinished.

Like the Children's Museum, some exhibits in the Museum of Transportation are "hands-on" activities, which means they are demonstrations you do yourself. These exhibits are on the fourth floor in an area called Crossroads. Play clothes are a good idea at this museum, also, in case you want to crawl under an old Model T Ford to inspect its engine or to climb four steps up to hop aboard a 95-year-old high-wheeler bicycle.

The rest of the museum features many beautiful and interesting specimens of various modes of transportation, but the museum is more than that, too. A completely new exhibit called Boston: A City in Transit makes the history of the city come alive through its transportation. The exhibit will cover from 1630 to 1973 when completed; the first and last segments are largely unfinished. The exhibit begins with a fascinating "dissolving map," a light show demonstrating the growth of the city through land fills since 1630. Some of the more interesting features of this lengthy exhibit include: a wooden bicycle with wooden spokes and wheels covered with metal, guaranteed to be one of the bumpiest rides in town; information about the mass "epizootic," which killed most of the horses in the city, and the fire that destroyed 60 percent of Boston, both in the late 1800s; an exhibit on the Good Roads Movement, pointing out that bicyclists initially pushed for good roads, an irony since they still are fighting for safe paths; a taped re-creation of the debate over the subway; several early-model automobiles, including a bright-red Stanley Steamer, of particular interest since it may be revived with the frenzy of the gas crunch.

But if you want to ogle in awe some antique beauties, the exhibit to be sure not to miss is one called Riding in Style. Even fanatical anti-technology naturalists will have to admire the hand-crafted mahogany body of a 1914 Benz. Also be sure to look over the 1911 Simplex nearby. Once left out in a barnyard for chickens to roost in, the car has been lovingly and painstakingly restored by the present owner, who is loaning it to the museum for this special exhibit. Motor experts will be interested to note that this early auto has a 603-cubic-inch engine and can travel 90 miles per hour. In this same area, be sure to see: a pastel-green 1953 Kaiser Darrin, a now-rare model that was the first to be made of Fiberglas; a 1930 Rolls Royce, which was considered mid-size at the time, although it is quite long and lean — truly an art form!; and a 1906 Model K Ford, which originally sold for $2,500 (a sizable sum at the time) and has a "mother-in-law's seat."



Car buffs will especially enjoy the museum, but also like the Children's Museum, there is something for everyone. Even in a museum-crazy town such as Boston, these two newly expanded specimens are truly something to see.

If You Decide To Go . . .

Both the Children's Museum and the Museum of Transportation, at Museum Wharf, 300 Congress St, are open daily from 10 am to 6 pm except Mondays. Friday nights the museums will be open until 9. Admission for each museum is $3 for adults, $2 for children from ages three to 15, and free for children under three and museum members. On Fridays from 6 to 9 pm, which is Family Night, admission is $1 per person. Group rates are available.

Museum Wharf is accessible by the MBTA Red Line. Take the subway to South Station, and walk down Summer Street around the new Federal Reserve Building and take a left at Dorchester Street to Congress Street. Cross the bridge by the Boston Tea Party, and you'll be in sight of the 40-foot-high Hood's Milk Bottle, which sells dairy and other concessions at Museum Wharf.

Parking is available for $1.50 in several lots nearby.

The Muppets Go Hollywood

The Muppet Movie is playing at the Exeter Street Theatre near Copley Square. Telephone 536-7067 for schedule information.

By Harriet Webster

A new kind of show is in town, a G-rated movie that is really for adults, although kids will love it too. The Muppet Movie is a serendipitous mixture of adventure, wit, spoof, and humor that can be enjoyed on a number of levels.

The film begins with a scene showing Kermit the Frog strumming on his banjo and singing romantically, perched afloat a log in a Mississippi swamp. Along comes a lost fisherman, a vacationing Hollywood agent (Dom DeLuise), who pulls out a copy of Variety announcing open auditions "for frogs wishing to become rich and famous." Quickly convinced that it is his destiny to make millions of people happy, Kermit is soon off and running on the proverbial mission "to be discovered."

On route to Tinseltown, Kermit encounters many a danger. After narrowly escaping death by steamroller (as he says, "That's pretty dangerous, putting a road in the middle of the street."), he finds himself in a cabaret where he makes the acquaintance of Fozzie Bear, the first of many to join him on his quest for fame.

Fozzie has a Studebaker, which speeds up the cross-country trek. Good thing, too, because Kermit has been spotted by the evil Dr Hopper who wants to hire him to promote a new fast-food craze, French-fried frog legs. Social comment is interjected by Kermit, who remarks sadly, "All I can see is millions of frogs on tiny crutches." Fozzie, a mite less scrupulous in the pursuit of fame, queries Hopper: "Would you consider a bear in a frog suit?"

The trip to Hollywood closely resembles Dorothy's trip to Oz, although in this case not everyone agrees to join forces. When Big Bird is asked if he would like to go along he replies in the negative saying, "I'm on my way to Limerick City to try and break into public television."

Others encountered by Kermit and Fozzie include Dr Teeth and the Electric Mayhem, a mellow, laid-back rock band that is trying to convert an old church into a coffee house "with real good music and organic refreshments." They also tie up with The Great Gonzo, Plumbing Artiste, who wants to go to Bombay, India, to become a movie star.

Deep in the Midwest, Kermit and cronies attend a country fair, just in time to see Miss Piggy selected beauty queen by judges Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. Miss Piggy's eyes unite with those of Kermit, who is standing the crowd, and it is love at first sight, at least on her part. Gonzo is quite taken with her and remarks wistfully, "If you were a chicken, you'd be impeccable"; Gonzo is himself a buzzard.

Eventually Kermit does surrender to Miss Piggy's charms. They are served a romantic dinner in a fancy restaurant by a nasty waiter (Steve Martin) who asks Kermit, "Wouldn't you like to smell the bottle cap?" as he decants a sparkling muscatel, Idaho's finest. Later, when Miss Piggy jilts him, Kermit moons over a drink in a piano bar causing the bartender to remark, "It's not often you see a guy in green have the blues so bad."

As Professor K M D (Mel Brooks), hired by Dr Hopper, notes, "If I can inflict a little pain in the afternoon, I sleep good at night." Just at the crucial moment, as Dr K's electronic yarmulke is about to render Kermit's brain to guacamole, Miss Piggy breaks forth from the ropes that bind her and saves the day with a hard-hitting, high-kicking scene straight out of every Western you've ever seen.

> On route to Tinseltown, Kermit encounters many a danger.

When the showdown comes, it is strictly out of High Noon, but we don't give away the particulars. Suffice it to say that in the end Kermit and friends are issued a "standard rich-and-famous contract" by a producer played by none other than Orson Welles.

The Muppet Movie is full of color and motion, and the pace is quick and crisp. It is laden with clever lines and cameo appearances by famous faces. But more than all this, The Muppet Movie is proof of the possible compatibility of puppetry and the big screen. Indeed, the effects are so clever that it becomes difficult to remember that the Muppets are really puppets at heart. We see no strings or other signs of outward manipulation. They seem to have lives of their own. If there is a drawback to the film, it is that the characters are sometimes a bit difficult to understand. But as the picture moves forward, the ears adjusts.

Producer Jim Henson, who also plays the voice and spirit (if not the body) of Kermit, has done himself proud. The Muppet Movie is a G-rated flick that's worth going to even if you don't have kids. □

Editor's Note: Kids Trips columnist Harriet Webster took her family to the opening of The Muppet Movie and filed this report.

Outdoors

How to Canoe

By Stan Bicknell

Why is it that once an outdoor sport becomes popular, one that seemed so ideal for you and your family, it also becomes demanding and complicated? In the past you could go to the nearest campground at the end of a day and flop. No more. Now you have to make reservations, sometimes weeks and even months in advance. Or, if you decide to hike the Long Trail in Vermont or Mount Washington in New Hampshire, you can't just mosey along at your own pace. Yesterday you could. Today, someone is either dawdling in front of you or, stricken with a Sir Edmund Hillary complex, pressing you from the rear.

The problem, of course, is people. As more people latch on to an activity, the more structured and inhibited it becomes. Which is exactly what you don't want.

Now we have the further problem of a gas crunch. Getting out to the western part of the state or upcountry will in all likelihood become more chancy as the summer wears on.

Metroguide has a suggestion that won't entirely solve your problem, but will make it less imposing. It's canoeing, a sport that can be done within MetroBoston on our very own rivers — the Charles, the Concord, and the Ipswich. And it's cheap, too. At the Charles River Canoe Service in Newton, the cost of renting a 17-foot fiberglass canoe on a Saturday or Sunday (one seating three adults or two adults and two children) is $4 for the first hour, $3 for the second and $2 for each additional hour. (Three hours in a canoe the first two or three times is enough; adults get arm weary and kids become restless.)

The first time you try to get into a canoe you will wonder if it's possible to do so without capsizing the thing. And paddling. Try to paddle without some instruction and you will find yourself going in one enormous circle, ending up where you started from, more or less.

All of this is by way of saying that no one — especially where kids are involved — should step into a canoe without some prior instruction. A book might do, but better by far is to have someone at the rental agencies explain as much as he can before you set off.

Canoes have a way of capsizing even under expert hands and paddles seem to go adrift for no reason, so plan on getting wet early on in your canoeing adventures. Be sure to have your car keys fastened to your person and your papers and money locked up on shore. Wear life vests (actually, by law you have to, but people treat them like seatbelts in a car). Wear old clothes. Have towels handy. Be ready. Be brave.

Understand that a canoe is highly unstable. Weight must be centered along the keel, the board or plate running lengthwise along the center of the bottom of the canoe. The lower the center of gravity the better. When you enter a canoe, do so from the rear — or if from the side, do it by bending down and taking that first step gingerly to the center of the canoe. Quick, jerky movements are bad business in a canoe. You can lose your balance easily, upsetting the canoe or at the least giving everyone a scare.

The best all-around canoe is the 17-footer mentioned above. Canoes are delicate things and the difference between the 16-foot and 18-foot canoe is an increase of 40 percent capacity on one hand and a proportionate lessening in handling ability. The longer the craft, the more skill is needed to handle it.

You may, once you become a canoe fancier, begin to daydream about a birch bark canoe or one made of wood and canvas. Forget it. Once you get involved with these specimens, your hobby is maintenance. As handsome and romantic as they may be, they just aren't as practical as either aluminum or Fiberglas, which require no maintenance to speak of. (Birch bark becomes easily waterlogged and requires long stretches to dry out.)

Aluminum is the most widely used material today. It is light and easy to transport, will never rust, and is almost indestructible. It takes concentrated effort to poke a hole in aluminum canoes. However, they are clattery, and when the sun shines on them they can become as hot as blazes.

Fiberglas is heavier than aluminum, requires a bit more maintenance (fixing scratches) but has none of aluminum's drawbacks. Unfortunately, everyone and his brother makes Fiberglas canoes, so there is a chance of getting a dud. Aluminum canoes are always well made.

Paddling is quite simple to do but almost impossible to describe with any brevity. It's like learning to ride a bike, in that sense, and takes no longer to learn. Once you see it done you will grasp and never forget the techniques. There are, though, a few things you will have to keep reminding yourself not to do. One is not to overwhelm the canoe with muscle power. It takes several thousand strokes to go a few miles, so smooth and easy will take you a long way. With two people in a canoe, paddle in tandem and develop the same rhythm. If one or the other is an enthusiast or, worse still, wishes to loll and watch the river drift by, problems are bound to arise.

The Charles River Canoe Service, 2401 Commonwealth Avenue, Newton (527-9885), has 150 canoes you can rent. As already mentioned, the rates are reasonable — as they are everywhere. At this landing you have three miles in either direction to paddle, with coves and inlets to explore. Basic instruction is offered when you rent a canoe for a day; you can also take a course in canoeing one night a week for three weeks on Wednesday and Thursday starting at 6 pm on June 13 and 14 and again on July 11 and 12 for just $18.

(Various Red Cross chapters in Greater Boston offer canoe safety courses on an irregular basis. Do call your local chapter to find out what it has planned for the summer.)

Up on the Ipswich River, Foote Brothers on Topsfield Road (356-9771) rents canoes for $2.50 an hour on both weekdays and weekends. The all-day rate is $8 during the week and $10 on weekends.

What they do here is take you upriver by van and let you paddle downriver. There are three excursions: the first is 17 miles and takes four hours, the second is 28 miles and lasts roughly six hours, and the "grand tour" is 35 miles in scope, and eight hours long. The Ipswich is an easy river and you simply go with the current all the way. The canoes here are 15- to 17-foot aluminum ones. Foote Brothers offers no formal instruction, but will be willing to go over the fundamentals. The hours are sunup to sunset.

Out in Concord, the South Bridge Boat House at 496 Main Street (369-9438) has 75 aluminum and Fiberglas canoes from 15 to 18 feet in length. All are rented for the same price: $2.75 an hour or $12 all day on weekdays, and $3.95 an hour, $18 a day on weekends. The Boat House offers no excursions, but you have the Concord, the Sudbury, and the Assabet rivers to choose from. One of the nicest jaunts is the mile and a half round trip to the Old North Bridge where you can pull in, go sightseeing, and have a picnic. The hours are 9 am to whenever you get back.

Almost any book or pamphlet you come across on canoeing will be adequate for a beginner. Once beyond the fundamentals, there isn't much to say. It's all in the doing. After a while, you will throw the manuals aside and never look at them again. □

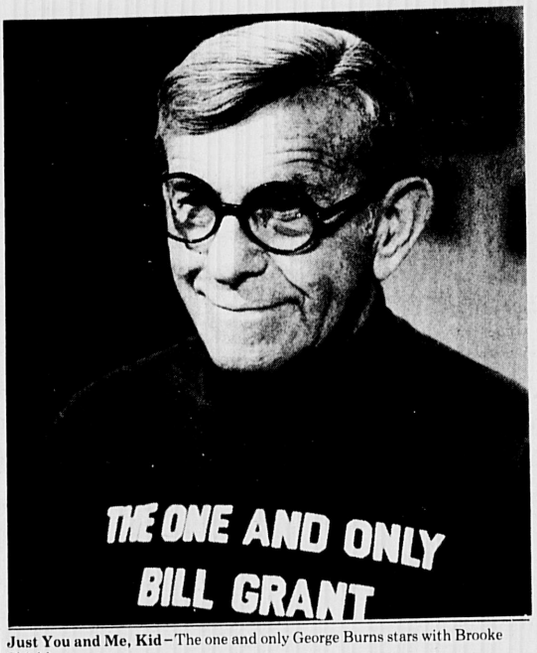
Movies



Just You and Me, Kid – The one and only George Burns stars with Brooke Shields.

Short Subjects

Compiled by Maggie Hall

La Cage aux Folles

A wonderful Franco-Italian movie about a pair of middle-aged lovers: Renato (Ugo Tognazzi), who manages a transvestite night club, and Albin (Michel Serrault), who is the club's star turn, an exuberant drag queen. When Renato's son announces that he is engaged to be married to a girl, Renato and Albin are scandalized. It's as though he'd brought home a Martian. The girl's family is gloomy and oh-so-respectable. Guess who's coming to dinner? La Cage aux Folles — the English title is Birds of a Feather — is terrifically good-looking, very funny, sweet, and full of dignity. Charles.

Dracula

It's our loss, here in the space age, that Count Dracula is more likely to provoke a grin than a shudder. This production, based on the play by Hamilton Deane and John L Balderston, which was in turn derived from the Bram Stoker book (which was scary) is camp-y and heavily produced. However — and this is a big however — Frank Langella in the title role is supernatural. Having played the part for years on Broadway, he wears it like a Brooks Brothers suit, with great elegance and circumspection. Cheri; Brockton, Burlington, Danvers, Framingham, Hanover, Newton.

Escape from Alcatraz

The In-Laws

The picture has almost nothing to do with weddings or marriage or in-laws. What it does have to do with is: a CIA lunatic (Peter Falk), a Park Avenue dentist (Alan Arkin), the US Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the Mob, a BMW with a bizarre paint job, a banana republic run by a man who paints puppets on his hand, and money. That at least is the gist of the matter. Falk is certifiable; Arkin has a gimlet-eyed, oh-my-God look; In-Laws has many funny moments. A return to having a good time at the movies. Charles; Brockton, Chestnut Hill, Natick, Peabody.

Just You and Me, Kid

Just George Burns, actually. The story — of a retired vaudevillian who rescues a kid on the lam from a life of crime — is dumb and unlikely; as said kid, Brooke Shields has the sulks: she drains the picture of its frail vitality. Burns, trying hard, is best when he's alone on the screen. With an earnest but wasted cast of old troupers: Keye Luke, Ray Bolger, Carl Ballantine, and — in a rose-spectacle subplot — Burl Ives. Pi Alley; Braintree, Burlington, Chestnut Hill, Natick, Peabody.

Meatballs

Apparently hoping to do to summer camps what Animal House did to college fraternities, Meatballs (the awful title has no clear connection with anything in or about the movie) has every camp joke in the book, and some that never made the book. It's like Mad magazine on an off day, full of yuks that aren't particularly funny. Meatballs may appeal most to those not too far removed from summer camp years themselves. With Bill Murray (of Saturday Night Live) and a host of young people, as fresh and as interchangeable as apples. Cheri; Brockton, Natick.

Moonraker

Summer is here, and you can tell because the annual James Bond thriller has arrived. Roger Moore is — for the fourth time — Agent 007, and Lois Chiles is the lovely at his side, but Moonraker doesn't come up to the level of its immediate predecessor, The Spy Who Loved Me. It's formulaic and a little out of control without being exciting, and there's a Star Wars-style ending, without any of that film's ingenuous energy. Richard Kiel returns as "Jaws," and Michael Lonsdale is Dr Drax, the baddy. Cinema 57; Brockton, Danvers, Lawrence, Natick.

Newsfront

From Australia, Phillip Noyce's pleasant film about the life and death of the newsreel business, and incidentally of the people who work in it. In a starring role as chief cameraman, Bill Hunter is paunchy and ruddy-faced and not getting any younger, but he's as engaging a leading man as you're likely to see. He embodies a good liberal decency that you can almost touch. The film uses real news footage (you can't always tell when), and shifts from color to black and white apparently at random, which isn't nearly as messy as it sounds. With Gerard Kennedy, Wendy Hughes, and Chris Haywood. Orson Welles.

Rocky II

Rocky II is Rocky, back in the ring against Apollo Creed for the world title, with a new ending tacked on and all the rough edges taken off. There isn't a trace of grit anywhere. The movie is as amiable and as lumbering as Rocky Balboa himself. How can you dislike anything as good-hearted as this? With the usual personnel: Sylvester Stallone, Talia Shire, Burgess Meredith, and Carl Weathers. Pi Alley: Brockton, Danvers, Natick.

Answers to Puzzle #186
Short Stories

Amusing, wasn't it, how many of those stories made darn good sense, even in their eviscerated states. The first and last lines to Waiting for Godot — "Nothing to be done. Yes, let's go." — pretty much tell the whole story, don't you think? Some of the mistaken pairings were quite funny, John Dean's blindly ambitious opening — " 'Would you be interested in working at the White House?' Bud Krogh asked me casually" — made as much sense with George Orwell's closing ("He loved Big Brother."). The correct solutions are as follows:

Nineteen Eighty-four, 6G
Blind Ambition, 10 A
Fear of Flying, 8 B
Ulysses, 12 L
Portnoy's Complaint, 5 H
The Return of the King, 1 K
Waiting for Godot, 4 E
Moby Dick, 2 F
Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas, 7 M
Breakfast of Champions, 9 C
Finnegans Wake, 3 D
The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test, 11 I
Midnight Express, 13 J

The first ten winners are:
Bob Keay, Beverly; Kevin and Donna Sousa, Lowell; Edith Alberino, Milton; Justin D'Amour, Lowell; Denise Quinn, Lowell; Anne Gorman, Lexington; Bernadette Saar, Wollaston; David Mednicoff, Natick; Liz and Buff Lapof, Marshfield; Rick Kilmartin, Chelmsford.

THE BEST RUM UNDER THE SUN IS THE ONE MADE WITH RAIN.

Rainfall in the Virgin Islands is rare. But it's precious. Not only for our greenery, but also for our rum.

Because before Cruzan reaches the peak of mellowness, we add a little rain to every barrel.

As a result, light-bodied Cruzan Rum is not only extremely smooth, it is exceptionally clean-tasting. As clean-tasting as the rain water it's made with.

Mix Cruzan in your favorite rum drinks—or try a Cruzan Cruise. Just mix 1½ oz. of Cruzan Rum with 3 oz. of pineapple juice and 2 teaspoons of lemon juice and shake with ice.

When you do, you'll know why a little rain helps make it the best-selling rum under our sun.

Send for your free Imported Rum Recipes booklet: Cruzan Rum Distillery Co., P.O. Box 218, Frederiksted, St. Croix, V.I. 00840.

Horn Retires As Memorial Day Chairman

Thirty-two years of hard work and service to the town ended Monday night when Jake Horn turned over his Memorial Day parade folder to the Board of Selectmen.

Horn, who has been the Memorial Day planner for 32 years, said poor health has caused him to retire. He alluded to the fact that 1979 might be his last year as parade chairman at this year's Memorial Day ceremonies.

Horn said he's taken care of Memorial Day out of his love and respect for Winchester veterans. He thanked the town officials for their cooperation in past years, but cautioned them to make sure Memorial Day plans "don't go out of kilter," in his absense.

"I don't want what happened to the Fourth of July to happen to Memorial Day," Horn said.

This year, there were no Fourth of July activities planned for youth. Recreation Director Ken Cereghino said in a recent issue of The Star, the department did not have monies in its budget to fund the activities.

For many years the town has donated the funds for the Fourth, and the activities have been run by the Veteran's of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

John Hennelly, commander of the VFW said he is "laying back" on the issue, and hopes that between the service clubs of Winchester, activities can be lanned for youth over Labor Day.

Hennelly stressed that it "wasn't the clubs' fault," the Fourth of July was without town festivities this year.

"We were blamed for the lack of communication and late dates," Hennelly said, "but this has always been a town-run function."

Activities for the Fourth of July cost the town around $1200 Hennelly said. The Memorial Day parade and ceremonies costs around $3000.

The total amount allocated in the Recreation Department budget for public celebrations next year is $3210. These funds, Cereghino said, go to Memorial Day and the lighting of the Christmas trees.

Horn urged the town to find a new Memorial Day chairman who would start planning early. He said he has tried to keep costs down for the day.

Horn left a large folder of information on where and when to get the bands and military units that march in the parade. He also told the board, "don't be afraid to call me."

Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Richard Wilsack, assured Horn that his efforts for the past 32 years "would not be in vain."

"Memorial Day is a high point in Winchester. The difficulty will be in finding a replacement that is worthy of you," he said.

Selectman Edward O'Connell also said he hopes someone from the VFW can show a "genuine interest" in Memorial Day planning. He noted, "it will be hard to fill Jake's shoes."

Youth and parents in the Six Week Adventure program met at the First Congregational Church Friday night for a community supper with all the trimmings. From the left are Daniel Kennedy, Eric Holley, and David Wahl.

Town Manager Urges Town Meeting To Override Cap

Town Manger Thomas Groux is urging that Town Meeting override the tax levy cap at the Aug. 13 Special Town Meeting. However, he is also suggesting areas of the town budget which might be reduced if necessary.

In a memo addressed to the Finance Committee, Groux explains that there are two caps: an appropriations cap, which the town of Winchester is approximately $600,000 under the limit; and a levy cap, which is approximately $180,000 over the $17,413,000 ceiling.

Groux cites several reasons why Town Meeting should override the cap, some of which include limiting town department's future latitude, honesty with taxpayers, additional necessary funds for the mini bus service, and Massachusetts Home Rule.

By overriding the cap, Groux says it protects the flexibility for service levels in future years.

By reducing the levy to an artificial ceiling for fiscal year 1980, it will lock various town boards and departments into an arbitrary ceiling "that even the Town Meeting won't be able to do anything about in future years," Groux says.

Citing energy costs, Groux says that in excess of $800,000 is spent on energy costs and that it's "probably not absurd" to say another $200,000 will be needed. Cutting $180,000 in August and then asking for $300,000 in November Groux calls a "shell game" with the taxpayer.

Also, due to rising oil prices, Groux says that probably $10,000 to $20,000 in additional funds will be needed to complete the first year of operation of the mini bus.

Groux concludes his reasons by citing Home Rule in Massachusetts. "There is a quality of life in Winchester that is without doubt related to a degree to which taxpayers are willing to collectively support services (education, snow removal, library, police, fire, parks) through their taxes. I don't think we should expend our energy pushing the state for true tax reform not temporary delays in paying the bills."

"Most reluctantly Groux suggests that FinCom members look at the school department budget, the library budget, the Planning Board, undistributed expenses and capital expenditures.

Groux says it's absurd that the school budget can't absorb a $50,000 reduction and that he was surprised the budget passed Town Meeting untouched.

It's unfair and shows no balance, Groux says, that the library in this fiscal year is at the same operating level as last. "We pay more for library services than we do for the entire water and sewer operations of the town. We pay double the amount for books than we do for maintaining all of the streets and sidewalks of the town."

Groux suggests that the following cuts in the library budget be made: $10,000 in expenses, $17,000 in capital projects and $20,000 in personal services.

Although he supports comprehensive planning, Groux says this fiscal year might not be the right time to expand the

Moratorium May Be Called For Holton Night Trucking

The Selectmen will probably call a moratorium on night trucking on Holton street and may post no thru traffic signs to alleviate noise problems for neighbors in that area.

Owners and representatives of area businesses met with the board Monday night.

George Whitten, property owner acting as spokesman for the group, said the businesses would "welcome" the posting of no thru traffic signs, but warned officials if the town closed off the street completely, "you'll have have the biggest lawsuit you've ever had."

Whitten said the firms need access to Holton street for operation of their businesses. He said that posting no thru traffic signs could stop speeding cars that don't come from the industrial park.

The Selectmen met with Mayor Thomas Higgins of Woburn last week on the Holton street question. Following that meeting, the session with the business representatives, and sessions with the Holton street neighbors, Chrm. Richard Wilsack predicted a policy would be drawn up soon, around the "theme of a moratorium."

Monday night, the Selectmen asked the business representatives if restricting traffic at night would hurt their operations.

A representative of the William McDonald Company of Holton street in Woburn said that only one company had business operations at night. He said a moratorium would probably have little effect on business, but suggested a special permit be given to the company for night operations.

Residents at the meeting disagreed with the comment that few businesses operate at night.

Representatives of the firms asked the board exactly what the residents wanted.

Town Meeting member John Harris, who has been the spokesman for the Holton Street Neighborhood Tract, said the industrial park traffic has caused safety and noise problems for the residents in the area. He said if Holton street were closed, it would "prompt a new access road for the businesses and lessen the hazards to both parties."

At Town Meeting this spring, an article was passed which instructs the Selectmen to either blockade the street or ban trucking during certain hours. Under the Town Meeting vote, the Selectmen must act before the fall Town Meeting.

The board, fearing potential lawsuits from the businesses if the road were blocked off, is moving in the direction of a night trucking ban.

Selectman Edward O'Connell suggested that the trucking ban be in effect from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. No formal action on hours was taken by the board.

Commenting on the moratorium, Phil Trombley from the North Atlantic Millwork Company said he thought it was a wise idea, but spoke against a blockade which would hurt his business.

"You'll cause a lot of inhibiting things (by blockading)," he said. "You'll also set a precedent for Woburn to follow if you close the street."

He suggested to alleviate some truck noise, the railroad crossing near the industrial park should be fixed. He sympathized with the neighbors saying that he couldn't even open the windows in his office because it was so noisy near the crossing.

Rules And Regulations For Transfer Station To Be Voted

The Board of Selectmen will vote on amended rules and regulations for the town's transfer station Monday. The amended report, prepared by the Town Manager, the Department of Public Works director and the Board of Health, was discussed briefly by the Selectmen at their meeting Monday night.

The new rules and regulations come after Town Meeting voted this spring to reduce the hours at the transfer station from 72 per week to 48 per week. The amended rules revise the fee schedule for commercial haulers.

A dump permit charge for residents will probably stay at $1. The Board of Health, the report suggests, should determine the resident fee schedule.

Speaking Monday night, Selectman Wade Welch said he has received complaints about long lines at the tranfer station and problems with the policing of dumping. He said he has received inquires about the new dump hours.

The revised transfer station schedule is, Monday, noon to 4 p.m.; Tuesday, noon to 8 p.m.; and Wednesday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The transfer station is closed Sundays and certain holidays.

Groux said he has received few calls or complaints about the new station hours. He said the real test will come after Labor Day when residents return

When Drinking Causes Trouble In Your Life ...

By KAREN A. WEBBER

"It seemed to me that everyone I knew picked up a drink at that age."

Tom had his first beer at age 14. He spent 28 years of his life drinking heavily. At age 42, Tom first heard of Alcoholics Anonymous. For the past four years, he hasn't touched a drop of alcohol.

The sandy-haired, spectacled man snuffs out another Lucky Strike and begins to tell the story of his life with alcohol.

Tom grew up on the upper West Side of New York City. His parents did not drink, which he says blows holes in the theory that youth drink to imitate their parents.

Tom drank to be with the in-crowd. A sporadic drinker until he was 17 (occasional weekends) Tom says he never got drunk during those years. His drinking never got him in trouble, with the police, with his family, or with himself.

During his younger years, Tom did not drink irresponsibly, he says.

At 17, Tom joined the Navy. Boot Camp, he remembers, was strenuous and difficult. On his first leave home he went out on the town to the New York City bars. He remembers getting drunk three or four times during that two-week period. And he remembers experiencing his first blackout.

A blackout is memory loss of something done recently.

"You can still function during a blackout," Tom says. "I could be talking to you now and make plans to meet tomorrow. When tomorrow comes, if I had been in a blackout the night before, I'd say, 'I never even saw you yesterday, what plans are you talking about?' And I wouldn't be able to remember a thing."

That first blackout, should have been a warning sign but in the forties, Tom says, information about alcohol and alcoholism was scarce.

"The next four years I drank at every opportunity while in the service," Tom says. "While others were sightseeing in Europe and taking snapshots to send home, I sought out the first barroom. And, I was very content."

Tom says he didn't drink as a result of the pressure of being in the Navy, or from personal problems, as many people who have drinking problems do. He just preferred drinking as a way to be social.

"Most alcoholics stop smelling the roses at an early age," Tom says. "You don't even see the trees around you."

Years later, Tom learned after the first drink the alcoholic "compulsion" was set up.

"Every alcoholic knows compulsion, although I didn't know this was what it was at the time," he says.

Tom didn't drink gin, or scotch, or bourbon. He was a beer drinker, which destroys another myth: alcoholics don't drink beer.

"We're talking about alcohol, not the mixture its contained in. I've been to the funerals of men who drank only beer. And they died as a result of alcoholism."

Tom has his own definition of alcoholism: "an alcoholic is someone whose drinking causes them trouble."

What's trouble? Everyone defines it differently. It could be with your job, family or self, he notes.

Trouble was already starting to come into Tom's life. While in the Navy, he received 12 Captain's Masts, a low-level disciplinary action. The Captain's Masts were given when Tom returned back on duty one to two hours late, following weekend binges.

Tom would leave Boston, where he was stationed, for a New York City weekend. Most of his time was spent alone, drinking in strange barrooms. Instead of leaving New York via the midnight train, which would have brought him back to Boston three hours before he was to report for duty, he would grab "a couple more hours" in New York and leave at 3 a.m.

As a penalty for returning late, he would be restricted to base until midweek. But by Thursday he was free to drink again, and free to return home for the weekend.

It was a price, he says, he was willing to pay. "It was the compulsion."

At age 20, he received an honorable discharge and went home to New York to work in a factory.

He quickly became friends with others who drank "like he did."

"My whole life I found friends who drank like me," Tom says. "I had a distrust for people who didn't drink."

By this time, Tom had been arrested by the New York City Police, and was jailed twice for overnight stays. He also started having severe hangovers.

At age 23, Tom took a civil service exam and received high marks. He joined the New York City Police Department where his drinking really picked up.

Why? Tom says it was because of the availability of alcohol and the "timing" of his job. He worked evenings until midnight. It was his first experience with night work, and he discovered at midnight, he didn't want to go home. The bars were open until 4 a.m. He drank daily for the next five years.

"I could always rationalize and justify my drinking," he says. "I never drank on the job. The day would come, though, when I did drink and got drunk on the job, although it didn't happen that often."

Did the other cops in the New York City department notice? No, Tom says. He hid his drinking. Twice he was disciplined by the NYCPD, but the charges did not read alcohol. Instead, they read, "late for duty," or "didn't answer call." Tom frequently went off his route to sleep off a night of drinking.

He remembers the many excuses and the denial that alcohol was a problem in his life. He always had a defense.

"My values were beginning to deteriorate," he notes. "I began to lie, deceive, and take money (I was drinking more than I was making). All alcoholics are willing to settle for less. This is the spiritual aspect of the disease . . . the selling out of one's values."

Tom's drinking had also started affecting him physically, with severe hangovers and loss of control. Mentally, he always siad, "I can stop whenever I want to." But he couldn't stop. All the times he went in for "just one beer," turned into many.

"No one could convince me to stop," he says.

"At 28, I met a young lady. We fell in love, we got married. It wasn't long before the first child was on the way," he says.

With love in his life, Tom still drank on a daily basis. At that time he termed himself a "social drinker."

He and his wife would drink together. They'd go to a show, or out to dinner and have a few drinks. Tom would take her home at midnight and go on to work. What she didn't know is that he kept right on drinking, throughout the night.

"It was okay then, we handled it. We took subways and cabs home. She never was affected that first year."

Then after one year of marriage . . . trouble. "The honeymoon ended," says Tom.

"For the first time in my life, my drinking began to affect someone other than myself. My wife was 'nervous.' I realized later this was a result of my drinking."

"The job closed in. I convinced her it was the job. If I just changed jobs, it would be different," Tom says.

He continues, "You'll hear that a lot, 'It will be different, If . . .' "

Tom took what is known as a "geographical cure." Move out of the area, start a new life. Things will be different.

"So I moved from a neighborhood where a lot of drinking was going on to another city, where it would be different. I moved from the South Bronx to South Boston," chuckles Tom.

Tom and his family arrived in Boston on a Sunday. By Tuesday, he discovered Tom English's Cottage in Southie and got drunk. Again he went back to factory work, and again he found friends that drank, "like he did."

Tom and his wife had six kids in the next seven years. One year, he quips, they bought a color television set.

"And I celebrated every one of their birthdays, baptisms, the holidays, fast days and holy days. I spoiled them all with my drinking," he says. "We spoil the days that should be the happiest, by not getting home for a child's birthday, or by falling into the Christmas tree."

Was there trouble in Tom's life? No, he says he could rationalize any part of his drinking. He says he was "33 years old going on 14."

"Everything I did revolved around drinking. I wouldn't visit friend's homes unless they served drinks. If I discovered they abstained, I found an excuse not to go back," says Tom.

"I only saw the problem of alcoholism in skid-row bums.

After his marriage, Tom's feelings about his drinking, and its result, grew stronger.

"The guilt, the shame, the remorse, and confusion were all there," he says. "I had a constant knot in my stomach. Only an alcoholic knows that kind of a knot. I kept asking why did it happen again and again and again."

During his sober moments Tom wanted to stop drinking. But he couldn't.

Tom's life was to take another turn. Some friends got him interested in getting back into law enforcement. Tom joined a small-town Massachusetts Police Department.

For awhile he controlled his drinking. He was able to keep from drinking on the job. His "good behavior" lasted about two years.

Again he was to drink every day, and every time he drank, he drank into a blackout. He would go on three and four day benders. The times he drank excessively were coming closer and closer together.

Again his fellow police officers had no idea Tom was an alcoholic. If he was stopped for drunk driving (something he did frequently), he was given a "break." "Cops cover for cops," he explains.

His marriage was in ruin. "My wife said, 'seek help or walk.' For the 500th time I'd been asked to leave the house. My wife asked me, 'why don't you drink at home, honey?' She didn't understand.

"It was also the first time my wife told me she thought she was going mad. I had the sudden realization that this time my drinking was really affecting someone else . . . someone that I loved.

"The shame and guilt was overwheliming. I contemplated suicide," Tom says. He was 42 years old.

Meanwhile, at the police station, a young officer was having problems with booze. "He (the young officer) had serious problems in his life. He was drinking to a point where his job was in jeopardy," says Tom.

Tom learned the Boston Police helped cops with drinking problems. He took the young officer to the BPD, where they admitted him to the hospital. Tom's own problems were never discovered by the Boston men.

As part of the young officer's recovery, Tom was asked to take him to a local Alcoholics Anonymous meeting.

"He had a problem and I didn't. Can you beat that?" Tom says he agreed to take the young man, and on one cold April evening, the pair entered a crowded room where the AA group was meeting.

(Editor's Note: Tom is a real person living in the Winchester area. He has agreed to tell his story to The Star in hopes that other alcoholics may recognize their disease. Next week, Tom's story will continue in The Star.)

Alcoholism: A Disease Of 1 Out Of 11 Drinkers

What is alcoholism? According to Marion Frick of McLean Hosptial in Belmont, "alcoholism is a primary disease, not a symptom or a character defect. It has physical and psychological symptoms. It is addiction to the drug, alcohol. It is chronic and progressive. It has acute phases and remissions. It is diagnosable, treatable, incurable and terminal."

Mark Keller of Rutger's University says an alcoholic is "a person who cannot consistently choose whether or not to have a drink, and if he or she has a drink, cannot consistently choose whether or not to stop."

According to national statistics, 95 percent of alcoholics are "educated, responsible citizens." One-half are employed full time. Alcoholism is a disease of men, women and youth.

Today in the United States there are 95 million drinkers, and an estimated nine million chronic alcohol abusers. About one out of 11 drinkers becomes an alcoholic.

The early symptoms of alcoholism are varied. Alcoholics often make promises to quit drinking, then break those promises. They say they drink to relieve tension or to escape problems. They also are unable to stop drinkng once they start.

The alcoholic may try to deny or conceal drinking, often drinks daily and often drinks alone. He or she may find it is harder to get "feeling good" regardless of quantity.

In the final stages the alcoholic lives to drink. The alcoholic is often plagued with poor health in these later stages.

Alcohol is a depressant drug that slows the activity of the brain and the spinal cord. When ingested it rapidly enters the blood stream, and circulates to all parts of the body. Alcohol does not need to be digested, but its absorbtion in the blood is slowed by having food in your stomach.

Alcohol's main effect is on the brain. The body burns alcohol at the rate of about one-half ounce per one and one-half hours. Ninty percent of it is broken down by the liver, and 10 percent is eliminated through the lungs and the kidneys.

Therefore the average 150 pound person could consume one drink in about one and one-half hours with no accumulation of alcohol in the blood, and without intoxication.

Drinking faster than this would result in drunkenness. One mixed drink could be a 12-ounce beer, five ounces of wine, one-half ounce of whiskey or one mixed drink.

Alcohol is often a factor in highway accidents (it has been linked to one-half of all highway fatalities), homicides, accidents on the job, and loss of productivity on the job.

At Winchester Hospital, the emergency room recorded 13 cases of injuries related to alcohol. Eight of the cases involved auto accidents. Two of the cases involved 13 year olds and seven of the people involved were under the age of 20.

There is no known cause for alcoholism and the disease is a potential hazard for every drinker. But drinking is here to stay.

Blue Cross has released some tips for safe drinking. They include:

Think in terms of care and moderation when drinking.

Restrict drinks, even on special occasions.

Avoid the habit of drinking daily at lunch.

Always measure drinks carefully.

Always add diluting mixers like soda or water so that the alcohol will be asborbed more slowly.

Avoid double mixes like martinis and manhattans.

Never gulp down an alcoholic beverage. .

Never drink on an empty stomach.

Find substitutes for alcohol at traditional drinking times; occasionally try a hot bath to relax instead of a drink, or from time to time some ice tea instead of beer to cool off on a hot summer day, or a warm beverage instead of a nightcap.

Consciously avoid alcohol when confronted with problems, remembering that alcohol dulls the mind but doesn't solve the problem.

Learn the art of refusing drinks gracefully but firmly.

Be genuinely ashamed of getting drunk.

Make a habit of not going into bars and cocktail lounges when looking for something to do, such as waiting at airports, etc.

Try to avoid too many cocktail parties and dinners or other social functions where drinks may be present.

Delay the first drink at such functions for as long as possible.

Cultivate the habit of becoming involved in conversation when drinking as a means of making sure that drinks are well spaced.

If you are hosting a party, be sure to provide non-alcoholic beverages and food.

Be ruthlessly honest about you own drinking habits, and possible need for alcohol. Seek help if alcohol is becoming a problem in your life.

Winchester's Auxiliary Police Are Important People

Their job is far from glamorous. Glory is not a word that's naturally linked to their responsibilities. But they "act as another arm" to the Winchester Police Department, according to Chief John McHugh. "It's very important to have these types of people in the community."

They are the members of the Winchester Auxiliary Police Department, an organiazation in existence since the beginning of World War II. They are trained to serve as a supplement to the regular police force, assisting in emergencies, controlling traffic and aiding in a variety of other capacities for which they are trained.

"We kind of stay in the background," said Al Venuti, president of the auxiliary police in Winchester recently.

The auxiliary police, with a present membership of 18 Winchester residents, has been a group the citizens of the town have relied upon for years. "The auxiliary police in Winchester are an outgrowth of the Civil Defense people who worked during World War II," noted Bob Elliot, chief of the auxiliary police.

"The Massachusetts legislature, under the acts of 1950, organized a civil defense act, under which they specified an auxiliary police force. So you could say they came into existence at the beginning of World War II and then, officially, they came under the Civil Defense Act of 1950," Elliott continued.

During the war, the function of the organization was to prepare the public in the event of an enemy attack. That role has naturally been altered since that period, but they still are trained for emergencies or natural disasters.

If there was a crisis the auxiliary police would act. "Primarily the auxiliary police would be used in a traffic control situation in that emergency. There are other bodies that are assigned to handle the fire or the ambulance or the food distributions," Elliott explains. But the auxiliary police are also used under normal conditions. They assisted at the Enka Fair, they handle traffic on Sundays at the churches. "The use of an auxiliary force, not only in this town, but in any of the communitites in the Commonwealth, is determined by the local police chief," Elliott noted. The members of the auxiliary police attend monthly meetings where they are trained in different procedures, view films and hear lectures.

According to Elliott, an auxiliary police officer can be put into a variety of situations each day, from the routine to the delicate.

"Basically there's, number one, a traffic control situation. Number two is the stopping procedures of motor vehicles. How to properly stop the vehicle, how to approach the vehicle," Elliot describes.

"The handling of disorderly people, meaning people who may have mental disturbances or may be drunk at the time," he continues. "You have to know how to handle those people otherwise you could get hurt or hurt them."

Elliott noted that one of the most important abilities of any officer is that "you have to know how to handle those situations more with your mouth than with your hands."

He also mentioned that the auxiliary police officers are instructed in arrest procedures and the meaning of that act.

"That's a pretty serious thing to say to someone 'You're under arrest,'" Elliott points out. "Because you've just deprived that person totally of his right to move from that spot. That's taking away all of his privileges as of that moment.

"You have taken it upon yourself at that time, to make that judgment, that the person is under arrest. And that's pretty serious," he added.

The auxiliary police are also trained in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, but they are not trained in self-defense.

"We're not out there to fight the people," Venuti points out. "We're out there to calm you down."

He added that "the idea is if I can sit across the table from you and talk to you, I'm going to accomplish a lot more than if I put you a up against the wall with your arm behind your back."

"The job we are trained for usually doesn't put us in that kind of position," added Elliott.

The people involved are no different from the common man. "It's a total cross-section," Elliott points out.

The only requirement to join is that the applicant must be 21 years of age. "We're looking for a person who is, I'd say, community service oriented, because he wants to do something to participate in an activity for the town," states Elliott.

"He has to be a guy with a good personality," he continues. "When people see the officer, the fact that he's dressed as a policeman in the town of Winchester, as far as they're concerned, he's a Winchester police officer. For him to be offensive or nasty or unpleasant or anything else is a bad reflection on the whole department."

"The biggest thing is that he has to be able to get along with people," adds Venuti.

In the past the auxiliary police have been there when needed. During the Blizzard of '78 they were available. They assisted in a search for a lost child awhile ago and also saved a child's life thanks to their CPR training.

"They do an excellent job," said Chief McHugh recently. "They know what their job is. Every comment I've ever received about them by a member of the community has been nothing but praise."

It's a job with odd, sometimes long hours. There is no pay, the force is composed of volunteers. Why they are involved is hard to say.

"I got into it because it was a way of me, myself, doing something for the town I live in," Venuti mentions. "I'm not a great moderator so I couldn't go up and talk in front of people. I'm just the average working man that feels this8something I can do."

"It's kind of funny to try and pin it down and say everybody joins because of ...," concludes Elliott. "There is no because. It's a personal thing."

THE SAD TALE OF 'TORRID TOM' AND HOW BUYING WINDOW UNITS COST HIM CASH AND COMFORT!

by Al LaPointe

Torrid Tom had a two-story home. He wanted CARRIER central air conditioning so the whole house would be cool and comfortable. Unfortunately, competent dealers were rushed, and he found there'd be a delay in getting installation from experts.

But Torrid Tom wouldn't wait. He wanted cool comfort NOW! So he decided to get three window units. Poor Tom. He didn't know what he was getting into! He called a math major friend of his to help him figure out the necessary tons for each room. Then he tried to figure out what type to buy . . . you know, casement window type, regular window type, or what have you. This caused instant headache and a considerable drain on his bourbon supply.

Torrid Tom's hangover didn't help at all, as he pursued his project further. Two bedrooms and the living room were his targets. Three in all, and that put quite a dent in his checkbook. He spent some more to have an experienced friend-of-a friend install them. Then he turned on all three of them. It sounded like a blast-off time at Cape Kennedy! They were not only noisy, but he found out when he got his electric bill, that they cost him a lot of money to operate.

That's when Torrid Tom called FEDERAL HEATING. FEDERAL'S EXPERTS SHOWED HOW A CARRIER central air conditioning system costs a little bit more than several window units, costs much less to operate and makes very little noise. Take a tip from Torrid Tom's tragedy. Add a CARRIERsystem to your home . . . then dial a thermostat to get the kind of real comfort and dehumidification you want.

Wetmore Company suggested lowering the speed limit on the road.

There was a question in the businessmen's minds however, if the firms are the main source of the problem. Whitten said according to a survey done by his staff, only one-tenth of the traffic in the area comes from the industrial park.

According to a traffic study done in Winchester, Harris said, 3000 cars and trucks drive down Holton street daily.

One of Harris's suggestions at Town Meeting to the Holton street traffic flow was for the firms to build an alternative route ou6 the area. The businessmen asked where Harris proposed the new route.

The most feasible, he said, is to extend Draper street in Woburn. The land is currently co-owned by Whitten.

Selectman Barbara Hankins asked Whitten if there were plans to build on the possible site for a Draper street extension. He said at this time there are no plans, but added that road contruction would be difficult because of land conditions.

home from summer vacations.

The new rules and regulations, if accepted by the board, will go into effect Sept. 1.

General rules include: all vehicles entering the station must have a sticker; no scavenging or junk picking is allowed at the station; and no refuse collected outside of Winchester will be allowed, except by special permit by the Board of Selectmen.

For disposal, the report suggests, all trees and brush must be chipped and placed in the compost area. Leaves and grass should also be dumped in the compost area (without bags).

Residents are encouraged to separate recyclable items such as metal, cans, glass by color, and paper.

Doors to refrigerators and stoves should be removed prior to dumping, and placed in a designated pile, the report says.

There are restrictions on dumping. Some materials prohibited from disposal are sewage solids, radioactive wastes, explosive or flammable materials, chemicals which require special handling, hot ashes, building demolition, fill, boulders, or masonary, automobiles or parts, and stumps. Some of these "prohibited" materials can be dumped with a special permit, the report says.

For a resident to obtain a permit, proof of residency must be brought to the Board of Health office.

For commercial haulers, potential users must apply to the DPW, listing their customers and times of dumping. The proposed fee schedule for commercial permits is, pickup, $150; one to three cubic yard body, $300; four to six cubic yard body, $500; seven to 10 cubic yard body, $700; 11 to 20 cubic yard body, $1000; over 20 cubic yard body, $2000.

Health Council To Meet Tuesday In Belmont

Preliminary findings and recommendations of a Barriers to Care project being conducted by the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston will be presented to members of the Northwest Metro Health Council as part of their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday. Scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m., the meeting will convene at the Belmont Memorial Library, 336 Concord ave., in Belmont.

Jay Wheeler, chairperson of the 49-member planning group and a resident of Cambridge, said that the meeting will also include work group discussions on the progress of several projects presently underway.

The ambulatory care work group will hear a report on Metro involvement with the Menotomy Manor Tenants' Association, a group representing the residents of a public housing community in East Arlington.

Methods for providing primary health care services to the community are now being developed by the MMTA, the Northwest Metro, the Arlington Housing Authority, the Tri-Community Health Association, Symmes Hospital, Mystic Valley Council for Children, Low Income Planning Aid, and State Representative Mary Jane Gibson (D-26th Middlesex).

The Northwest Metro, the local planning arm of the Health Planning Council for Greater Boston, strives to improve the availibility and accessibility of health care services in the towns of Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Boxboro, Burlington, Cambridge, Carlisle, Concord, Lexington, Lincoln, Littleton, Maynard, Somerville, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn.

The Council urges community participation in their work in order to respond to issues in the delivery of quality health care. All meetings of the Council are open to the public. For further information call Sherry Leibowitz at 426-2022.

Planning Board's consulting services by $5,000 when other town personnel are being reduced.

The Group Health Insurance budget could possibly be cut by $100,000. Groux also mentioned that replacing the Mystic School boiler, estimated in February as costing $55,000, can now be reduced by $20,000. Although he wouldn't recommend it, the $7,800 budgeted to refurbish the clay tennis courts could be deferred.

According to FinCom Chairman Carolyn Ward, the committee is starting with Groux's suggestions and examining what should be done. They are also communicating with other town boards to see what suggestions they have. A written recommendation from the committee is expected Aug. 3.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

The House

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on five key roll calls from last week's session.

Solid Waste (H 6559)-House approved 117-25, a bill excluding the town of Amesbury from the state law relative to the location of solid waste disposal facilities in the state. The legislation would prohibit the Department of Environmental Management from acquiring land or facilities in Amesbury for the establishment of a hazardous waste dump site.

Supporters argued that unless the bill passes, 160 acres of land in Amesbury may be taken for a reclamation plant. They also pointed out Amesbury has been preliminarily selected as a site for a hazardous waste plant, and said the Merrimac River is located near the proposed sites for both facilities and pointed out this was dangerous and unfair since the federal government is pumping millions of dollars into cleaning up the river. Many said the bill is logical and will simply force the state to pick a site that makes more sense.

Opponents noted they sympathized with Amesbury, but said the bill is the second one proposed this year to exempt individual communities, and pointed out that this will open the floodgates for every city and town in the state to veto proposed hazardous waste sites. They noted the hazardous waste disposal problem is not going to go away and said the legislature and state must begin to deal with the safe disposal of hazardous waste and not exempt every proposal.

Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. voted for the bill.

Driving (H 6641) - House rejected 79-70, a bill requiring a finding of gross negligence for conviction of the offense of driving as to endanger. The bill would change the law which presently requires a finding of only negligence for the driving to endanger conviction.

Supporters of gross negligence argued that many other states have lifted the charge to gross negligence because they have determined the old law is unfair. They said under the old negligence law, any person who is even issued a speeding ticket or lights up a cigarette while driving could be convicted and lose his license for two months.

Opponents argued the bill would give a person license to drive recklessly in the state, because it would be harder to convict someone of gross negligence rather than just negligence. Some said that gross negligence is habitually driving carelessly, while negligence is simply failing to drive responsibly. Many claimed this is another attempt to weaken laws which should be enforced to encourage good driving and punish offenders.

Saltmarsh voted against it.

Disabled Veterans (H 6644)-House approved 82-62, a bill further defining disabled veterans, by including as disabled veterans, any Army and Air National Guardsmen who during training or active duty, sustained a compensable service connected disability of 10 percent or more between August 1964 and May 1975.

Supporters argued the bill is justified and affects only a handful of people who were injured in these outfits while serving their country. They noted the bill would bring the state in line with the federal government.

Some opponents said the bill was a poor one and attempts to take advantage of the system, noting it would give absolute veterans preference to National Guard veterans, many of whom do very little training, and as one representative said, "could get compensated for tripping over a bunk because he had too much to drink during the day."

Some said the original bill proposed a 30 percent disability, while this one lowers it to only ten percent.

Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

Legislative Expenses (H 6635) - House approved 124-21, a bill increasing legislators' general expense allowance from $100 to $200 a month. The measure also changes the daily allowance which used to be a rate fixed on 16 zones and covered mileage, meals and lodging. The new daily allowance would be set at 16 cents a mile, with a $5 minimum. In addition, the measure creates a special commission to study the accuracy of a section in the bill, which states the miles from each city or town to the State House.

Supporters argued there have been no revisions made in these legislative expenses since 1969, and pointed out that district sizes have been expanded; many legislators travel long distances to come to the State House; postage costs more; hotel and telephone costs have increased; and gas prices have skyrocketed. They noted many legislators work seven days a week on job-related duties and are often forced to pay a substantial amount of expenses out of their pockets to serve their constituents. Many said the bill was a reasonable one, and noted the legislature should deal with the issue openly, by fairly noting the inadequacy of the current expense allowances and voting in favor of hikes even though it might be unpopular during the upcoming election.

Opponents argued the bill was an outrage and said it was unfair to increase legislators' expense allowances when citizens are feeling a financial crunch and are being taxed to death. Many claimed the bill was simply a backdoor pay raise, and noted this would be the ninth pay raise in three and one-half years. Some noted that members' salaries are already scheduled to be increased from $17,420 to $17,860 in September.

Saltmarsh voted against the bill.

Zoning Laws (H-6636) - House rejected 82-62, an amendment to a bill making changes in the zoning laws of cities and town in the state. The amendment would make two sections of the bill, subject to local approval, which means they would only be ef-

By HENRY SIMONDS

Occasionally, even in this enlightened age, we learn of something which bears repeating simply because of the sheer maliciousness involved. On last Sunday morning when Clarence Stevenson, an employee of the Winchester News Co., delivered his bundles of Sunday papers to Pratt's Drug Store at the corner of Washington and Swanton streets, it was discovered that he was one bundle short.

Knowing that the bundle must have fallen from his automobile, Stevenson drove slowly back over the route he had taken, believing that he could recover the papers. He was however, unable to find them.

About the time Stevenson returned to the News Company, Proprietor William McLean was notified by telephone that there seemed to be a large number of Sunday papers scattered about Symmes Corner.

Accompanied by Edward Cullen and several newsboys, Mr. McLean hastened to Symmes Corner and found his missing papers systematically spread on either side of Main street from the corner to Winthrop Square. The job had evidently been done by design, by people who knew what they were doing.

Recovering the papers, sorting and re-folding them was quite a task and consumed much valuable time. The papers were ultimately delivered but not without considerable unnecessary labor. Some people's idea of humor is indeed hard to understand.

Work was begun today by the City of Woburn on the filling in of the old ice bridge on North Main street in this town. Arrangements have been made by Supt. Henry V. Macksey of the Woburn Public Works Department to have the contractor, engaged in the reconstruction of Forest street, dump his excess gravel into the old railroad bed, thus filling up the arch.

A partition will be erected on the side of the bridge adjacent to the property of J. F. Winn & Sons.

The so-called ice bridge arches the old Horn Pond Railroad bed, formerly used by the Horn Pond Company when it was a spur of the Boston & Maine, extending from the Woburn loop through North Winchester in the old Boston ice house, now Lynch Park, in the City of Woburn at the southern end of Horn Pond.

Many parents and children connected with the Six Week Adventure program enjoyed a Friday night supper at Chidley Hall, First Congregational Church. (Staff photo)

When the Boston Ice Company abandoned its plant in Woburn the railroad was of little use and wa purchased by the City of Woburn for $1 with the obligation of maintaining the ice bridge.

Woburn purchased with the idea of freighting the city's coal over it, but the roadbed was in such poor cindition that - the B& M would not permit its rolling stock to go over its rails. While repairs were hanging fire, the advent of the motor truck made the use of the railroad impractical.

Woburn, however, was held to its contract and on several occasions has been obliged to repair the bridge above the railroad tracks. The city has sold to J. F. Winn & Sons the portion of the railroad east of the bridge and subsequently to Ralph Sylvester, local realtor, a large portion of the bed for a development in the valley. It now holds one parcel just south of Horn Pond which may prove valuable if the city ever puts in the proposed bathing beach at that point.

Lt. Col. Roland H. Sherman, M.N.G., retired, a prominent Boston attorney and resident of Winchester for the past 24 years, died suddenly of heart disease last Saturday afternoon, July 6, at Camp Devens where he had gone for a two-week tour of duty with the 26th Division of the Massachusetts National Guard.

Roland H. Sherman was born 55 years ago in Lawrence, son of the late Judge Edgar Jay and Abbie (Simmons) Sherman. He came from an illustrious family, being a lineal descendent of Roger Sherman, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. His family connections included the late General William Tecumseh Sherman, and the late John Sherman who framed the celebrated "Sherman Law." His father, Judge Sherman, was judge of the Massachusetts Superior Court.

Mr. Sherman attended Holderness School at Plymouth, N.H., and prepared for college at Drummer Academy. He was graduated from Boston University of Law with the degree of LL.B. in 1896 was admitted to the Bar. For nine years he practiced law in Lawrence under the firms of Bradley & Sherman, Sherman & Ford, and finally Sherman & Sherman.

In 1905 he came to Boston and was for six years assistant district attorney of Essex County. At the time of his death he was a member of the Boston law firm of Sherman, Barry, Smith & Kelley.

He had a distinguaished military record, rising from the rank of lieutenant to that of lieutenant-colonel at the time of his retirement on Jan. 1, 1906.

During the 24 years of his life in Winchester Lt. Col. Sherman made his home at 14 Everett ave.

He was active in community affairs, serving as Town Counsel in 1918 and as a member of the War Memorial Committee in 1919. He was active in the affairs of the Parish of the Epiphany. He was a member of William Parkmar. Lodge of Masons, of the Winchester Country Club, the Army and Navy Club, the Naval and Military order of the Spanish-American War, the Ancient and

Letters From Readers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Sunday, July 15, 1979, we honored one of the finest Bostonians who ever graced our presence. No one who lives in this part of the country, or for that matter, this part of the world, comes up short when anyone else asks the question: "Who is Arthur Fiedler?"

Arthur Fiedler has been honored by all of the people. From the least of us, such as this writer, to the greatest of Americans - great in the sense that they are people we have already elevated to high positions.

This country has produced many "men for all seasons," and pray God we will produce them again as the times and conditions warrant - but we have never produced a man in the field of music, with the possible exception of John Phillip Sousa, who was so attuned to the - musical needs of us common people as "The Maestro," Mr. Arthur Fiedler.

With all of the great things that Arthur did for us he still, beleive it or not, had critics. Some people also criticized Jesus Christ when he was alive, if you remember. At any rate, these people throught that Arthur should not have mixed "popular" music with the "classics" the way he did.

Well, this writer says to those people - Ask yourself this one question: "Did Beethoven or Schubert or Tchaikovsky say to themselves as they sat down to compose, I am only going to write classics? Or, did they sit down to write music that would please the most number of people?" This writer believes that they wrote to please humanity and themselves.

If pleasing "humanity" is a criterion for excellence, then no one in recent memory did a better job than "The Maestro." Certainly no other musical conductor has brought so much pleasure to me personally as Arthur Fiedler. And I honestly believe that my sentiments are shared by "Bostonians" and "New Englanders" and "just plain people" all over this planet.

How do you measure success in this life? If another Bostonian and New Englander was right, then Arthur Fiedler certainly qualified: "To have played and laughed with enthusiasm and sung with exaltation to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded." Those words were written by Ralph Waldo Emerson, another famous Bostonian, and resident of Concord at the time.

I believe I speak for many others, as well as all of my family, when I say: "Thank you, Arthur, we love you; you were a success." (It did my heart good to see that Harry Ellis Dickson is such a great disciple of Fiedler. He is obviously the man to take up the baton and carry on Arthur's labor of love.)

Accept Project

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Council on Aging was created by the Town Meeting for the express purpose of "doing something for the aged." It was charged with the duty of determining the areas of greatest need and concnern for the Winchester elderly. It was the hope of the meeting that the Council could then act as an instrument by means of which those needs could be met, and those concerns brought to the attention of the proper authorities.

To this end the Council has determined that one of the most critical problems facing many of the elderly in Winchester is the rapidly increasing difficulty of finding suitable housing in Winchester at a price that those on "fixed incomes" could afford to pay.

The need for such "low and moderate income" housing is acute. In fact, such housing is almost non-existant and the only way the Council could hope to obtain any relief from the problem was by sponsoring and endorsing federally subsidised housing.

The proposed Winchester House of 109 units was then brought forward as the only solution available. It has been before the various boards of the town now for almost two years - two years during which over 100 prospective tenants have waited anxiously for the project to be completed so that they could move in - but the project is still being held up with no progress being made.

As a former chairman of the Council on Aging, therefore, I sincerely pray the present members of the Planning Board and the Board of Selectmen to go along with the Council on Aging without further delay. The present plan is not perfect - nothing is perfect - but time is of the essence for many of the elderly who are being kept waiting.

Please, I pray you, act positively for a change! 109 new housing units will not solve all of the problems of the elderly but, like letting a little air out of your overheated tires on a hot day, it will take a lot of the pressure off! Please, let us get on with it!

I have been challenged to come up with the so-called "track record" of the man behind the proposed development, that will tell us something as to what kind of man we are dealing with. I have no credentials as a "private eye" of investigative reporter and have no way of running down his life history, but quite by accident I did find a few "foot-prints" of that track record and it so happens that I found them right here in Winchester!

I learned that the man in question owns, and has owned for over a decade, seven industrial buildings righte here in this town. They are at presen5 assessed (from memory) at around $871,000, for which he pays at present rate around $65,000 annually in taxes.

I figure that, at present rate, over 10 or 11 years, he has paid well over one-half million dollars into the treasury of the town of Winchester!

Pretty substantial "foot-prints" I should say. We need more, not less, taxpayers just like him!

Sachem Emblem

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is my understanding that the Sachem emblem on the Winchester High School was desinged by a student and adopted as the high school logo by the students and staff.

The logo is strong, well desinged and effective. It is handsome on the building, significant as the hihg school newsletter letterhead, and meaningful on book bags and athletic equipment. It signifies WHS and WHS students.

I find, therefore, a great dismay that the WHS Sachem logo is being usurped for commercial exploitation by a local real estate firm.

Lucile H. Grassi

(Editor's Note: Dick Murphy of Bixby and Poerter, the real estate firm that uses the Sachem logo, told The Star he received the written permission of Simon Donovan, designer of the logo, to use it for the realty company. Murphy said the School Department also gave the company its okay. Murphy said he thought using the logo would tie in with the community.)

Dump Hours

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Why is the town dump still in business? Answer: because it is publicly funded.

If the town dump were private business selling a service to the public, it would very soon be insolvent. The dump is open for business when most of its potential customers cannot get there, because they are at work.

The dump will never become bankrupt or feel the spur of competition. There are no competitors who can steal its customers away.

No falling sales will tell the officials concerned that they should cater to their customers.

About the only people who could possibly be satisfied with the present schedule are the dump employees and private trash collectors.

I strongly recommend that at least 75 percent of the dump opening hours should be in the evenings and on weekends.

A Reply

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In his letter of last week, a "disgruntled" Peter Tello complained about some of the policies presently being pursued by the twon. I would like to correct the information presented by Mr. Tello on the first of four examples he used: the minibuses.

First, the town did not purchase the Community Transit vehicles, but rather contracted the bus service from Transportation Management Corporation. The town is paying only 40 percent of the total estimated cost of running the system. The remaining 60 percent is being provided by funds from the MBTA, and revenues from fares earned by the bus service itself.

Second, the buses do not have "few" passengers as claimed by Mr. Tello. The CT system was initiated with ridership expectations in the vicinity of 350 to 400 riders per day. In June, the system averaged 614 passengers per day, peaking at 900 on June 19. Although there has been somewhat of a drop-off in ridership during the first half of July, attributed to vacationing residents, the reduction is considerably less than the disastrous slump expected during the summer months.

Third, while the CT minibuses do use gas, the fuel is provided by the contractor as a part of the service specifications. The gasoline used by the CT buses to carry 16 to 20 passengers, seems justified when compared to the many gas-guzzling cars seen about town carrying only the driver.

In addition, the CT buses encourage further conservation by giving commuters a link from their homes to other public transportation systems (e.g. MBTA trains and buses), and allowing youths to travel about town without relying on gas-consuming rides from their parents. The Community Transit system is an alternative to the gas shortage.

In closing, Mr. Tello asks if there is "anyone left that can think straight?" Based on the facts above, it seems that there are thinkers in Winchester. Public transit is the way of the future, and Winchester was farsighted enough tow years ago to begin implementing the CT system. Neighboring towns have jumped on the bandwagon, with Lexington, Burlington and others presently trying to begin their own minibus services.

Perhaps in the near future every town and city will pursue such valuable policies.

fective in any city or town which votes to accept them.

Amendment supporters say the two key sections, which must be approved by a community, allow checkerboarding, a method which developers use to get around zoning laws. They said that checkerboarding is a process which developers use to protect the individual lot sizes of land they have subdivided by putting them into alternative ownership. The comprehensive zoning changes are technical and complex, but the debate on the amendment is basically whether to give the state or local communities the authority here to make zoning laws.

Supporters argued home rule and local approval should be required when it comes to these zoning laws and to approving checkerboard developing, since the issue is very complex and situations vary from community to community. They said that the bill, without the local option amendment, would allow bad developments which communities will have to pay for down the road. They said these two sections of the bill were another attempt by the state to mandate laws on local cities and towns.

Opponents argued the two sections were a key part of the bill and many noted they supported a statewide standard for zoning regulations. They noted the bill does not mandate personnel practices or a cost on local communities. They claimed when economic development is involved, as it is in this case, the state should override local rule so that local control does not obstruct growth.

Saltmarsh voted for the amendment.

The Senate

Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on three key roll calls from last week's sessions.

Death Penalty (H-6452) - Senate approved 20-15, a bill restoring the death penalty for several specific cases of murder including killing a policeman, firefighter, or correctional officer in the line of duty; killing by someone previously convicted of first-degree murder; killing by a paid hired killer; killing while hijacking a plane or school bus; killing during a kidnapping for ransom; and killing in connection with rape. In addition, the bill provides for a separate presentence hearing when a defendant is found guilty of a crime punishable by death. At that hearing, the jury listens to testimony and under certain guidelines, decides whether the death penalty is imposed.

Supporters argued that studies show the death penalty is a deterrent to crime. They noted many other states have passed similar measures and claimed it was time to reinstitute capital punishment to protect society.

Some opponents argued murder of any kind, even by the state, is wrong, and noted that as in the past, black and poor white people are the ones who will get the chair. Many claimed that similar legislation was recently determined to be unconstitutional, and that the only way to pass a death penalty was through a constitutional convention. Some opponents argued studies show the death penalty is not a deterrent to crime.

Sen. Samuel Rotondi voted for restoring the death penalty.

Juveniles (H 668)- Senate refused 18-16, to table (defeat) a bill allowing the names of juveniles, deemed delinquent of any offense in a court case, to be released to the press. The legislation only allows the release of the youngster's name when he or she is judged delinquent of a second offense.

Supporters argued it was time to get tough and expose these repeat juvenile offenders.

Some opponents argued the bill is symbolic and useless, since the legislature cannot force the press to print anything.

Rotondi voted against tabling the bill.

National Guard (S 221) - Senate approved 31-1, a bill allowing the Board of Education to exempt members of the Massachusetts Army or National Guard from paying tuition at state institutions, when there is a vacancy in a class.

Supporters argued that the bill is a reasonable one and only allows National Guardsmen to fill in spots that would be vacant anyways.

Opponents pointed out that higher education received very little in this year's budget and noted that students are being asked to pay more in tuition. They claimed it is unfair to suddenly exempt a specific group from tuition charges and said the bill is unfair special interest legislation.

Rotondi voted for the bill.

Honorable Artillery Company, also of Winchester Lodge of Elks and the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Alma (Haerle) Sherman, two daughters. Mrs. H. L. Tibbetts of Worcester and Miss Nancy Sherman of Winchester; and three sons, Edgar J. Sherman, II of Charlotte, N.C., Roger Sherman and Roland Henry Sherman, Jr., both of Winchester. There are also five grandchildren and three sisters.

The funeral services which were held at 11 on Tuesday morning were attended only by members of the immediate family and a group of commissioned officers from Camp Devens. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Truman Heminway Rector of The Church of the Epiphany.

At the conclusion of the service the remains were escorted by the military to Wildwood Cemetery. Rev. Heminway read the committal prayers and as the casket was lowered into the grave the officers stood rigidly at salute while taps was sounded by a bugler.

There are times during the long, hot summer when the well known "Deserted Village" by comparison with Winchester, would resemble Scollay Square on election night in the gay nineties, a very busy place. Even the center, upon occasion, drowses into somnolence and those who perforce must linger in the local marts of trade welcome anything which can even momentarily break the existing monotony and send them back to their everyday grind with something different to talk about, a novelty in the daily routine.

And so it was on Tuesday morning, July 9, that we were all rejoiced to see come upon the scene two minstrel sons of Italy who made exceedingly good music upon a much battered oboe and a one time ornate accordian.

They were, would appear, father and son; the younger of the two performing upon the oboe and the senior member of the firm accompanying him upon the accordian. Everyone thought they were good, especially when they commenced a serenade of Traffic Officer John H. Noonan on duty in the sentry box.

It is whispered that Patrolman James P. Donaghey was in a measure responsible for the musician's choice of "The Wearing of the Green" for Officer Noonan's benefit and we are dead sure that Officer Noonan sent the minstrels to play "Where Do You Worka John" and several Irish jigs for big John Conlon at the railroad crossing.

John was delighted with the boys' skill, but deplored their lack of knowledge of such Celtic classics as "The Boyne Wather," "Criskeen Lawn," and "Father O'Flynn."

"Bob" Sullivan, however, was not as critical and became so pleased with the rendition of "The Irish Washerwoman" that he did a few double shuffle dance steps which left no doubt in the minds of onlookers as to his ability in the days when dancing was an art.

Quite a little gathering was enjoying the minstrels efforts which ranged all the way from " onny Boy" to "Santa Lucia" and "La Paloma." Their Irish repertory was limited but their general fund was alright. The audience was delighted when the musicians repaired to the Auto Lunch and broke out with "La Marseillaise" for the benefit of George LeDuc.

The ministrels were generous with their music and proved familiar with the national Anthem of their adopted land by playing the "Star Spangled Banner."

A 15 minute serenade under the windows of The Star composing room was much appreciated and the concensus of opinion among the boys upstairs seemed to be that they had heard a whole lot worse music over the radio on many occasions.

In fact the only disappointed person we met in the whole square was "Bill" Nicholson, who arrived too late to get the boys to play a bit of Scotch melody for "Alex" MacDonald, or, maybe, "Bill" wanted to find out if the musicians knew any of those Gloucester fishing chanteys.

Winchester's poll tax books are out and seem this year fully as popular as in the past, if one can judge by the steady stream of applications for them at the office of the Assessors.

It appears that as a whole we are much more interested in the age and occupation of our neighbors than we are in the Town's business. How many in comparison would make it a point to walk to the Town Hall to secure a copy of the Town report?

Cellin insulation can save up to 38% on your heating bill year after year.
Cellin is a superior loose-fil cellulose insulation which is blown into walls, floors and ceilings. Only Cellin offers all these advantages:
Safe and reliable. Cellin is non-toxic; non-irritating to the touch; flame-retardant and non-conductive. It meets or exceeds federal specification HH-I-515C, Type 1, Class 25, and carries an Underwriters Laboratories labeling.
Natural product. Cellin consists of short cellulosic wood fibers made of selected newsprint which has been processed and chemically treated.
Total coverage. Unlike many insulations, Cellin fills every possible space, giving you even, complete coverage.
Higher R-value. Cellin has a greater R-value (resistance to heat flow— the measure for insulation) per inch than most insulations.
Non-corrosive and moisture-resistant. There's no corroding of pipes, no rotting of wood in walls and ceilings.
Other advantages. Cellin is vermin-resistant, reduces noise levels and is long-lasting.

Selectmen's Notes

DPW Bonding

The Board of Selectmen finalized the financing of the new DPW complex Monday night. Following the recommendations of the town treasurer, the town will borrow four notes totaling $600,000 for a period of one year.

The bond anticipation notes will expire July 25, 1980.

Town Manager Thomas Groux said interest rates on the four notes are as follows:

From Old Colony Bank, one note for $200,000 at 4.8 percent; the second note for $200,000 at 5.15 percent.

From Bay Bank, one note for $100,000 at 4.8 percent; a second note for $100,000 at 5.05 percent.

The DPW complex is a $1.2 million project, and Town Manager Groux said he expects borrowing again for $600,000 soon, depending on current interest rates.

Cable Television

The Selectmen began interviewing candidates for the Cable Television Committee Monday night. Several residents have filed applications to fill the three vacancies on the seven-member committee, and committee chairman, William McCarter has recommended the committee be expanded to nine members because of the interest.

Those interviewed Monday night were Allen B. Rogers, Bruce Brown, Fred Murray, and Elizabeth Henriques. All expressed an interst in learning more about cable television, and said they would like to see a quality company come in to the town.

The board will interview more candidates next week, and make a final decision on the appointments.

Town Hall Energy

Town Manager Thomas Groux reported to the board that at a recent meeting on energy use, several recommendations were made for cutting down waste in the Town Hall.

Groux said that some of the areas of waste identified were the auditorium, the back hallway, the front entry, and the Finance Committee room.

The Finance Committee room, Groux said has poor heat control during the winter. The hallways that lead to the outside, he said, may not need to be heated to save on fuel costs.

Groux said the town officials working on energy may ask the Winton Club to change the date of their annual carbaret to save on auditorium heating costs. The cabaret is held in January. If the club could not move the date to a time when heat was not needed, he said, they might be able to look into using another public building. The change would not be made this year, however.

Groux said, with the help of the school administration, school buildings will be investigated for energy saving ideas in the near future.

Some of the changes will require capital money, however Groux noted, much savings can be made by "changing habits."

Winchester House

The board delegated Selectman Barbara Hankins to work with representatives of the Finance Committee, the Planning Board, and the Assessors on the Winchester House application for Chapter 121A tax incentives. The town will discuss developer Arthur Ullian's request for tax incentives at Monday's Selectmen meeting.

Chapter 121A substitutes an excise tax based on the percentage income of the property for regular property taxes.

If the town decided to support Ullian's application for Chapter 121A, it can have more control over the proposed Winchester House development. Ullian's plan will bring low and moderate income housing for the elderly and handicapped to a site just off of Waterfield and Rangley roads.

A final determination on the Chapter 121A incentives is made by the state. The project Ullian proposes is awaiting federal rent subsidies.

Students Learn About Lungs On Winchester Hospital Tour

Twenty-five students from Mrs. Parrot's sixth grade class at the Hood School in North Reading toured parts of Winchester Hospital recently to complete their unit on the respiratory and circulatory systems of the body.

The students spent one morning before school was out touring the hospital's pulmonary lab and blood banks and learned about how health care professionals use the hospital's resources to diagnose and treat illness.

In the pulmonary lab, chief respiratory therapist Joe Pappalardo demonstrated how his staff can measure the amount of oxygen, carbon dioxide and other gasses present in a patient's blood. He showed them a professional version of a steam vaporizer and a respirator that helps patients exercise their lungs while recovering from surgery.

The students also saw the hopsital's pulmonary (lung) diagnostic lab where a patient's complete pulmonary disease history can be determined simply by having him inhale and exhale into a machine.

In the hospital blood bank, lab technician Trish Svirsky showed the sixth graders what she does with the blood sample taken from a patient as he enters the hospital. They learned how she can run a battery of tests ordered by the patient's physician from just a small amount of blood, and several of them took a look at blood cells through a microscope.

The 11 and 12 year olds were impressed by what they saw and were not in a hurry to leave the hospital. "This goes right along with what we were learning in our units on the heart and lungs," explained their teacher.

"Yeah," added one especially relucatant student, getting to the truth of the matter, "and we have a test on all that stuff when we get back."

Businessmen Join Markey Task Force

Congressman Ed Markey has assembled 20 executives of small businesses in the seventh Congressional District to form a special task force to advise him on matters of concern to the business community.

Serving on the task force from Winchester are chairman of the task force, Lewis A. Shattuck the executive vice-president of the Smaller Business Association of New England; Albert S. Hovannesian, president of the Diamond Antenna and Microwave Corp; Robert A. Painter, president of the Electronic Instrument and Specialty Co.; and James Smyly of Smyly Buick.

According to a spokesman for the Smaller Business Association of New England, Inc. (SBANE), the advisory group is the first of its kind to be organized in New England. Members represent business with from three persons to 400 employees.

Speaking at the first meeting of the task force held recently at his Boston office, Markey called on the group to facilitate communication between himself and the business community.

"I need your help if I am going to understand the problems facing businessmen and women today," he said. "Working together, we can create a forum in which your concerns as well as mine can be aired."

Task force members, who will be responsible for the agendas at their quartely meetings with the Congressman, are expected to keep him informed on problems they face as a result of federal legislation and regulations. Members will also suggest legislation Markey might introduce that could correct inequities and foster competition.

In turn, Markey said he would be prepared to explain his positions on issues affecting smaller businessmen. A member of two Congressional subcommittees concerned with energy matters and also a member of the House Commerce Committee, he is in a good position to oversee legislation with an impact on smaller businesses, he added.

Among the topics introduced by task force members at the first session of the group were the special taxation needs of small enterprises, the rising cost and increasing scarcity of conventional energy sources, and the need for improved communication between government agencies and small businessmen.

Shattuck said he would welcome comments and suggestions for task force discussion from other businessmen and residents of the district, directed to the Association's office, 69 Hickory dr., Waltham, 02154.

Greenpeace To Seek Donations In Winchester

By MIKE OZOG

Representatives from Greenpeace, a group of environmentalists trying to halt the slaughter of whales and seals, will be in Winchester during the next two weeks seeking memberships and contributions.

Greenpeace is a non-profit organization which uses non-violent, direct action to halt the killing of whales. Greenpeacers place themselves between the whales and the harpoon, in an effort to protect the endangered whale.

Currently, there are eight species of this mammel on the endangered species list, all of them on the verge of extinction. Greenpeace, as well as the United Nations and the United States is calling for a 10 year moritorium on whaling.

Every year in Newfoundland, about 180,000 baby harp seals are butchered for their fur. The harp seal numbers are very low, perhaps approaching endangerment. Greenpeace is calling for a two-year halt so that accurate population studies can be conducted.

The New England area Greenpeace is attempting to obtain a ship to aid in the whale and seal campaign. The main source of funding for this, as well as all the work that Greenpeace does, is from donations and memberships.

All-Star Senior League Team Advances In Divisional Game

After stopping Assabet Valley in Maynard on July 14, the Winchester Senior League All-Stars overwhelmed Wilmington 16-2 on July 19 at the Wilmington High School to win the district championship; and then advanced to the sectional semi-finals by dropping East Boston 4-1 in a pitcher's duel at the Winchester High School on July 21.

At Wilmington, Jeff Stackpole pitched a two-hitter and slammed a long triple to help his own cause. The Winchester scoring barrage resulted from a combination of six walks, three errors, and 10 base hits that included a bases-loaded triple by Rich Fennell, and a pair of run-scoring singles by Paul White.

In the East Boston game, White came through with another strong pitching performance, yielding only six hits and two walks, and striking out eight. His opponent Fagone also pitched well, giving up only six hits while fanning seven and walking none.

White opened the scoring in the second inning when he singled, advanced to third on Ken Jacobson's pop-fly double, and came home on a wild pitch. Winchester picked up a second run in the third when Steve Dionne reached base on an error, stole second, and scored on a single by Brian Guarnotta.

White scored the third run in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Paul Stevenson, after he had reached base on an error. Winchester raised the count to 4-0 in the sixth when Steve Costello singled and scored on a base hit by Jacobson.

The final run of the game came in the East Boston sixth, when Curry reached base on an error and was driven home on a bloop single by Pellechia.

Husband-Wife Tennis Tourney Aug. 11, 12

Plans are well underway for the sixth annual Whit Gray Husband-Wife tennis tournament to be held the weekend of Aug. 11 and 12.

Committee chairmen Terry and Mary Fuller want to emphasize that this tournament is to be a fun tournament and they encourage Winchester couples to enter regardless of their level of tennis. As has been the custom, teams losing in the first round will participate in a consolation tournament.

All participants are invited to attend a gala party to be held on the Saturday evening of the tournament weekend. This event is a great opportunity for everyone who enjoys tennis to get better acquainted, and the "old timers" look forward to meeting newcomers to town.

Entry forms are available at the Winchester Sport Shop, the Running Racquet, or from the supervisor at Packer courts.

Energy Audit For Homes Available

It is now possible for Winchester residents to save up to 50 percent on their home heating bills while making a significant contribution to the national energy conservation effort.

Congressman Ed Markey is urging Winchester citizens to take advantage of a free service, the Energy Conservation Analysis Program (ESCAP), to determine steps that can be taken now to winterize homes.

Under ECAP, residents may have their homes "audited" by heat loss analysts who will determine the home's energy requirements, deficiencies, and suggest possible solutions. Because the most common cause of high fuel bills is heat loss through poor insulation, ECAP auditers will suggest methods such as weatherstripping and caulking replacement to cut unnecessary heating expenses.

"As President Carter pointed out in his recent speech to the nation," Markey said, "conservation of our resources is at the heart of any energy plan. Energy alternatives such as synthetic fuels may not be readily available before the end of the next decade. The chance to conserve what we already have is available now."

ECAP is offered, without charge, by the University of Massachusetts Cooperative Extensive Service, to residents in Malden, Burlington, Everett, North Reading, Medford, Melrose, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn. It is funded through federal, state and county funds.

The ECAP office has completed over one hundred free home audits. In most cases the finshed reports have been written, processed and mailed to the homeowners. The remainder will be mailed in the near future.

Each report carefully documents the current sources of wasted energy.

The ECAP teams are hoping to audit more homes in Winchester where they have only inspected 20.

Homeowners who would like to save energy and money should contact the new ECAP office in Everett City Hall. To arrange for a free audit of their home they should call 389-3417 or write to ECAP, care of Everett City Hall; room 2; Everett, 02149.

Dragon's Tale At Jr. Library Wednesday

On Wednesday from 2 to 3 p.m. the Winchester Junior Library will present a program "The Dragon's Tale."

Arthur Miller and Verbal the dragon, using a combination of gesture, vocal characterization, mime, song and narrative drama will perform a wide repetoire of stories, songs, riddles and poetry.

Verbal is actually a three foot, 10 pound, two-headed paper laminated creature who is part of every presentation, albeit a silent partner.

All school age children are invited to attend this program in the library's Meeting Room.

Mrs. Ash of Belmont was "overwhelmed" with calls for her apartment for rent.

Introducing 1980 Audi 4000

The Audi 4000 uses a time-tested, overhead-cam engine which powers the car from 0 to 50 miles-per-hour in about eight seconds. The front-wheel drive layout provides excellent handling, efficient power, and - - with engine weight over the drive wheels - - exceptional traction.

Good all-around performance also includes impressive fuel economy. During Federal Environmental Protection Agency tests, the 4000 delivered 34 miles-per-gallon on the highway and 22 miles-per-gallon around town. With an oversize fuel tank, the new car has a cruising range of over 500 miles. These figures can be partly attributed to the precise, reliable CIS fuel injection system.

Merit Changes Smoking.

'Enriched Flavor'™ cigarette sparks whole new taste era in low tar smoking.

Not too long ago, smokers believed that if a cigarette had less tar, it had less taste too. Low tar cigarettes simply didn't taste very good.

Then along came MERIT and a whole new taste idea called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And in three short years, smoking changed:

1. No other new cigarette in the last 20 years has attracted so many smokers as quickly as MERIT!
2. MERIT has swept past over 50 other brands in record time.
3. MERIT is continuing to attract high tar smokers—the most taste-conscious smokers of all!

It's clear: MERIT taste is changing attitudes toward low tar smoking.

Residents of the Westley street housing complex recently enjoyed an evening cookout. Dancing and singing followed the feast.

Westley Seniors Have Cookout

A cookout, hosted by the Christopher Columbus Club, was held June 23 at the Westley street housing complex.

Under the direction of Celeste Ciampia, the ladies auxiliary set up the tables in bright red and white table clothes. Others baked the cookout food and took turns serving.

Jim Costangano directed the men in cooking for the group. The menu consisted of chicken, potato salad, tossed salad, corn, rolls, coffee, cakes and cookies.

Before the meal a social hour was held. After the cookout all gathered at the Community Hall where singing and dancing continued far into the night. Herb Cleary was at the piano.

The seniors declared it was a night to remember and thanked all who contributed to the evening's success.

The adult and junior departments of the Winchester Public Library will be closed on Sundays until November.

Volunteers Needed To Be Camp Fire Girls Field Directors

The Greater Boston Council of Camp Fire announces the development of a new career ladder for volunteers. Camp Fire encourages adults to participate in skill building volunteer positions to serve youths in 64 communities, including Winchester.

JoAnn Clauson, field director coordinator for the Council, reports that "Persons who have solid Camp Fire or other youth group experience are needed as field directors."

"Field directors," she sates, "receive as a cash honorarium and have their expenses paid while they provide program assistance to local leaders and leader consultants."

"Many volunteer positions," Clauson says, "will enchance the resume of persons returning to the job market."

Persons intersted in the field director or other volunteer positions should call JoAnn Clauson at 482-2230 in Boston or write Camp Fire at 120 Boylston, Boston, 02116.

51 Donors Give Blood Jenks Center

Fifty-one donors presented themselves at the Winchester bloodmobile this past Friday. The Winchester Chapter thanks the Jenks Senior Center for sponsoring the visit.

Forty-seven units were collected. Two-thirds of these units were of the urgently-needed O-positive blood type. The Red Cross Regional Blood Service still needs that type as well as O-negative.

Residents who missed the Friday bloodmobile, will have another opportunity at the Winchester Hospital drive on Aug. 8 and 9. Call Mrs. Helen Abbott at the hospital or the Chapter for an appointment.

In addition to the volunteer nurses and workers listed in a past issue of The Star a special thank you is given by the Chapter to Nancy Burgatti who took temperatures at the bloodmobile. Nancy is a familiar figure to all regular blood donors in the Winchester area, as she regularly takes temperatures at all town bloodmobiles and has given 17 years of service to the Winchester Chapter.

The Chapter wishes to thank the following donors who gave blood, at the Jenks Senior Center.

Timothy Armstrong, Ragnhild Bairnsfather, Titian Bett, Bruce Bonnell, Miriam Bonnell, Scott Bradley, Robert Cammon, Stephen Campo, David Conroy, Charles Culhane.

Country Club Helps Kidney Foundation

Every twenty-five yard pool lap will count in the fight against kidney disease, when members of all ages participate in the Winchester Country Club swim-a-thon to benefit the Kidney Foundation. The fund raising event is slated for July 30 and Aug. 1.

Money will be raised to support the Foundation through the solicitation of pledges for each lap completed. Funds will be applied to research studies at Beth Israel Hospital, New England Medical Center, Massachusetts General Hospital, and Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. In addition, contributions generated by the swim-a-thon will help maintain the Foundation's organ donor program and patient service programs.

Any money amount may be pledged per lap. Local merchants have donated prizes for the swimmers who return the highest dollar totals in pledges. Each participant returning $10 or more in pledges will receive a free tee-shirt imprinted with the Foundation's organ donor slogan, "Gift of Life."

Kathy Leonard, pool director at the club, stated, "Kidney disease is the fourth leading health problem in the U.S. affecting more than 13 million Americans. Maybe the money we raise for research will bring doctors closer to finding the answers to the dread disease that claims 54,000 lives annually."

Members wishing to participate in the swim-athon may pick up a sponsor sheet from Kathy at the pool. Further information on organ donation and other services of the Foundation may be obtained by calling or writing the Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts, 183 State st., Boston, 02109.

House Survey

Chadwicks Live At Everett Ave. Home Since 1910

BY HENRY E. SIMONDS

The Chadwick house at 24 Everett ave. is one residence in Winchester still occupied by the same family as the original owner. It is a colonial revival style reminisent of Philadelphia "Cliveden."

The first owner of the house was Everett D. Chadwick, father of Harrison Chadwick who presently resides there. Everett Chadwick was born Aug. 13, 1867, in Bradford, the son of Harrison E. and Ellen E. (Tucker) Chadwick. Everett spent his childhood years on a farm.

He was graduated from Phillips Academy Andover and Williams College with high honors. He then worked for six years at the U.S. Patent Office in Washington, D.C. He returned to Boston and worked for a law firm while studying nights at Boston University Law School, specializing in patent law.

Everett Chadwick obtained the original patent for the Gillette Safety Razor and later joined the Gillette Company, taking charge of its patent and copyright affairs. He was associated with them for 25 years until he retired in 1931. In Winchester he served on the Board of Appeals during the years 1933-1937.

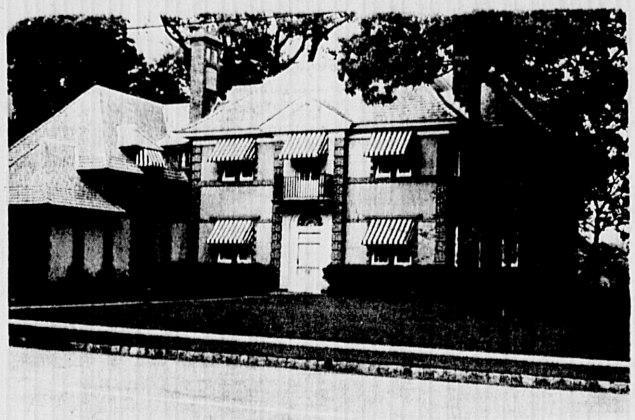
He married Adele Davis of Haverhill, on Oct. 26, 1899, and came to Winchester from Brookline in 1901. He first lived on Fletcher street and later moved to Cabot street. Chadwick's wife drew up specifications for a house to be built on Everett avenue for which F. Patterson Smith was the architect and James J. Fitzgerald the builder.

The Chadwick family moved into the Everett avenue home in December 1910 where Chadwick lived until his death on Feb. 21, 1949.

Harrison Chadwick, born in Winchester Feb. 25, 1903, is now the second generation owner of the house. He received his education in the Winchester schools, Phillips Academy Andover and Harvard College.

After college he went to work for the Cadillac Division of General Motors Corporation in Detroit. During World War II he served in the U.S. Army for four years.

Upon discharge with the rank of captain in 1946, and always having been interested in government, he entered the Republican primary for a seat in the Massachusetts General Court as the representative from Winchester. He was nominated and elected in the contests that followed. He began his first term in 1947 and remained in that office until he retired in 1974.



The Chadwick Home

Although philosophically conservative, Harrison Chadwick is remembered for introducing many innovations into the legislative process, among which are the electric roll call, data processing, a legislative research bureau and committee staffing. His work on the first crime commission in the state, legislation leading to the establishment of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and initiation of the constitutional amendment reducing the House of Representatives from 240 to 160 members brought him recognition beyond the borders of Massachusetts.

Locally Chadwick was moderator of the Town Meeting from 1956 to 1972. He has continued his interest in town affairs as a Town Meeting member and recently served as chairman of the By-Law Revision Committee and of the Swimming Pool Planning Committee.

Over the years Chadwick took a great interest in hockey. To some he was known as the father of hockey in Winchester, having coached the "Blades" before hockey was a school sport and coaching freshman teams later. Keeping in touch with many of the town's young people in this manner was always most enjoyable, commented Chadwick.

The Winchester Star's news copy deadline is 3 p.m. Mondays for the following Thursday's edition.

Program Helps Women Find Careers

"I enjoyed myself thoroughly, I think it helps develop some self-confidence. I really had a very interesting year."

So says Winchester resident Cynthia Turnquist, who recently completed a nine month career-internship program for women titled, Project Re-Entry.

Sponsored by the Civic Center and Clearing House of Boston, Project Re-Entry is designed specifically for women who wish to explore new career opportunities or return to work.

According to the latest Bureau of Labor statistics, 48.1 percent of the current work force is composed of women. Women are entering or re-entering the labor market at an increasing rate. However, one of the problems facing women is how to make a successful re-entry into the work force if they have neither the confidence, credentials nor the information necessary for finding a job.

Project Re-Entry provides group counseling and subsequent placement in internship positions, thus enabling the participants to compete more effectively in today's job market.

Turnquist interned as an assistant to the Director of volunteers at the Winchester Hospital. "I had never been in the hospital world," notes Turnquist who had previously worked as an assistant magazine editor and had worked in the textbook department of a large publishing house.

At the hospital, Turnquist was exposed to new areas such as program development and organization. "I enjoyed it very much," she mentions, but adds that she will probably go back into the publishing field.

Unable to accept a full-time paying job for nearly 10 years because of responsibilities at home, Turnquist heard about Project Re-Entry through a friend.

She was required to make a commitment of nine months, beginning in September, and a maximum of 20 hours a week for on-the-job training and experience.

Project Re-Entry offers a wide variety of internships in business, industry, arts administration, social service, banking, hotel as well as hospital administration.

"I think for some people it would be really ideal," feels Turnquist. "You have to be motivated. But if you care enough to look into it it would probably help you."

More than 100 women between the ages of 28 and 59 have participated in the program during the past three years. Of those women looking for paid work, 75 percent now hold jobs, with annual salaries ranging from $8000 to $20,000.

People with many different backgrounds were involved in the program while she was active, according to Turnquist. A degree is not necessary.

As well as providing needed self-confidence for women trying to get started in the working world, Project Re-Entry is also a way of learning "a little bit more about yourself," according to Turnquist. "You find out things you can do that you never thought you could."

Markey Endorses Overhaul Of Tax Credit For Elderly

Congressman Edward J. Markey recently endorsed a major Congressional initiative designed to improve the lving standard of millions of elderly Americans. Markey joined his colleague, Rep. Joseph Fisher of Virginia, in co-sponsoring H.R. 2542, a bill which calls for a comprehensive overhaul of the existing tax credit for the elderly.

"Under the provisions of this legislation, the revised tax credit will be available for all Americans 65 and over," explained Markey. "The credit will insure tax parity between those receiving nontaxable social security benefits and those with taxable retirement incomes from private pensions."

H.R. 2542 would raise the maximum base figure on which a 15 percent tax credit is calculated. For married couples, the new level would raise from $3750 to $4500, while single persons could receive credit for an income of $3000, rather than the previous restriction of $2500. In addition, the bill would raise the level of adjustable gross income for which both married couples and singles are eligible.

The elderly tax credit proposal is currently pending before the House Committee on Ways and Means.

SAFETY FIRST

Signs for walkers are just below some traffic signal lights. The signs say either "walk" or "don't walk." The "walk" sign means you may cross the street, but first look for turning cars. The "don't walk" sign means you should wait on the sidewalk. If you can't read the sign ask someone to read it for you.

REAL ESTATE
by Ann Blackham

THE "DREAM HOUSE" SYNDROME

There are two species of househunter - the pragmatist and the idealist. Beware of going to extremes at either end of the financial spectrum.

You can be too practical. For instance, assuming that a home in need of repair can be fixed at an overall price savings and find out that the final cost greatly exceeds the estimate . . . Buying a home in a neighborhood whose value is going downhill because "it's a bargain." . . . Buying a home with fewer rooms than you really need. You may end up with an unsuitable, uncomfortable home with a lower resale potential.

On the other hand, the idealist should beware of the all-too-frequent "dream house" syndrome. Sure, it's tempting to set out in quest of the absolutely perfect home, but it's better to balance your dreams with your pocketbook. Even if you can define the perfect home (which is doubtful), you probably couldn't afford it. Be prepared to compromise.

SELLING A HOME TODAY IS NO JOB FOR THE NOVICE.

A few simple questions would demonstrate our point. Try to answer them: a) What is the best method to price a home? By income, cost, or competitive market analysis? b) Is the buyer to furnish a credit report? c) Is the appraisal of a home's value based on assessed valuation? d) Is it a mistake when showing a home to ask the buyers to imagine their furniture in the rooms? If you've found even one of these problems difficult to answer, perhaps the knowledge and experience of a Neighborhood Professional™ would be helpful. To us, because of our training, they're just a few simple questions. Call your Neighborhood Professional today for the answers.

Linen-Making Exhibit Shown

The Museum of Our National Heritage will open a major exhibition, on Aug. 5, "Linen-Making in New England, 1640-1860." This traveling exhibition has been organized by The Merrimack Valley Textile Museum in conjunction with the Museum of Our National Heritage, with funds from a grant by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The exhibition will be shown at The Museum of Our National Heritage until May 18, 1980, and then go to the New Hampshire Historical Society in Concord, N.H.

Dressed in homespun linen, Merrimack Valley Textile Museum weavers will be present in the gallery at regularly scheduled times to demonstrate the process of making linen from the growing of the flax plant to the spinning and weaving of the cloth.

Objects on display will include hand tools, textiles, prints, spinning wheels and looms. The story of the Scotch-Irish immigrants who advanced the linen-makers craft upon their arrival in Londonderry, N.H., in 1719 will also be told. The Scotch-Irish brought their skills of fine linen-making to New England from northern Ireland. In Londonderry, they manufactured and sold their exceptional linens. Descendents of these Londonderry settlers founded other communities in New England and continued to produce linen known as "Londonderry cloth."

Because today's use of linen is limited to fine imported tablecloths, handkerchiefs, or toweling, few New Englanders realize that linen was once the staple fiber here for both rich and poor. Linen was a good-looking cloth and twice as durable as cotton.

Until the 19th century, flax, a plant easily grown in the family's fields, was processed and spun at home. The extraction of the fibers from the flax stalk for spinning into linen thread was carried on in New England households from earliest recorded times until the nineteenth century.

In middleclass and farm households, trousers, shirts, underclothes, and nightwear of homespun linen cloth made up summer wardrobes, while sheets, towels, and coverlets of linen provided for daily needs. In wealthy households, fancy damasks, satins and lawns were stitched into tablecloths, bed hangings, vests, waistcoats and gowns.

The objects on display will be drawn from private sources and museum collections in New England, including Old Sturbridge Village, North Andover Historical Society, Merrimack Valley Textile Museum, the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the Essex Institute, the New Hampshire Historical Society, the Londonderry Historical Society, the Mancehster Historical Association, and the Currier Gallery of Art.

Among the various linen objects on display will be: the vest front worn by John Marden for his marriage in 1769 at Derryfield; a plain weave kerchief made by Olive Prescott (1802-1860) of Westford, Mass.; a 'Linsey-woolsey' coverlet, circa 1800; stockings made by Sarah Prescott of Westford, Mass.; and a baby's shirt worn by Samuel P. Kidder of Derryfield, New Hampshire in 1768.

The Museum of Our National Heritage is located at 33 Marrett rd., Lexington, and is open seven days a week. Admission is free. For information, call 861-6559.

Parent Stress Line Needs Volunteers

An exciting new program for the prevention of child abuse and neglect: The Parental Stress Line is now recruiting volunteers to provide direct counseling service to parents under stress.

Parental Stress Line offers round-the-clock telephone counseling, on an anonymous basis, to any parents in the Greater Boston area including parents in Winchester who feel that they would like to talk things over with someone. The goal of this new service is to help parents to help themselves.

Parental Stress Line volunteers are men and women who are willing to listen, care, and share parenting skills with troubled parents. All volunteers are enrolled in a training course which teaches them how to listen, what to listen for, and how to respond. Those interested in becoming a Parental Stress Line volunteer may call Sarah Belcher at 232-7950.

State Child Abuse Hotline In Service 24 Hours A Day

The state's child abuse hotline is being expanded, according to Sen. Sam Rotondi. The hotline is an effort by the state legislature to help eradicate the epidemic amount of child abuse in Massachusetts.

"The hotline is open every hour of every day," commented Senator Rotondi. "It handles not only child abuse and neglect cases where family problems are such that a child's life or limb may be in danger, but also, it handles referrals for specific needs such as camps, day care, special education or retardation."

The hotline is statewide, confidential and toll-free. The hotline also offers a crisis helpline to parents who are experiencing severe stress in a specific crisis and are fearful of harming a child.

It provides parents with information and referral to various agencies in their local communities that can provide ongoing assistance with difficulties relating to a range of human services for children and their families.

Senator Rotondi explained, "This hotline is vital as an initial step of identifying abuse. Its purpose is to help parents and children in a professional manner and to alleviate situations which might result in harm to a child. Every effort is made to preserve and protect the integrity of the family limit and the special relationships shared by family members."

Senator Rotondi was the co-sponsor of legislation which declares abuse a crime and, also, was active in passing the legislation which mandated the 24-hour hotline.

"I can't offer solutions to the abuse problem," commented Senator Rotondi, "but, I do know that domestic violence is epidemic in our country. It affects people of all ages, all income categories, and all walks of life. We must find better ways of intervention into the family setting and supply whatever services are necessary to prevent recurring abuse."

Senator Rotondi concluded, "I hope that anyone who needs help or those who suspect abuse will make use of this state service."

The statewide toll-free, confidential hotline number is 1-800-792-5500.

Johnson Elected Treasurer Massachusetts Hospital Assoc.

Winchester resident Charles F. Johnson, executive vice president and administrator of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford, was elected treasurer of the Massachusetts Hospital Association at the MHA's annual meeting, held June 28 at Radisson Ferncroft in Danvers.

Johnson joined LMH in 1965 as assistant administrator, and was appointed administrator by the board of directors in 1967. In 1975, Johnson was elected executive vice president of the hospital.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in business administration and a master's in hospital administration, both from the University of Minnesota, Johnson served in the Air Force Medical Service Corps as a lieutenant. He was an administrative officer at the USAF Hospital at Dow Air Force Base in Bangor, Me.

Following three years in the service, Johnson was a lecturer for the program in Hospital Administration at the University of Minnesota, and was a staff assistant for a Minnesota hospital consulting firm before joining LMH.

Johnson is a member of the American Hospital Association, the American College of Hospital Administrators, the New England Hospital Assembly, the North Shore Health Planning Council, the Hospital Superintendent's Club of New England, and Hospital Services of New England, Inc.

Johnson, his wife Jane, and their two children reside at 15 Dana ave.

Summer Vacationers Crime Watch Tips

Going away this summer? The Massachusetts "Crime Watch" and the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association strongly recommend that residents check all these points before traveling.

Notify the police department so a special watch may be kept.

Tell the mailman, milkman, or paper boy, anyone who might leave things piled up outside the door, to discontinue deliveries. People going on extended trips may wish to have the post office forward mail.

Put away outdoor lawn furniture.

Pay important bills.

Remove money, jewelry, and other valuables from the home.

Look for possible fire hazards such as oily rages, open containers of combustibles, wooden matches, and questionable wiring.

Leave a key with a trusted friend or neighbor. Ask him or her to keep an eye out and to turn lights off and on and to keep the front porch clear; water plants; feed pets, if any.

If no one is watching the home, leave a light or two and a radio connected to timers, to turn on automatically at night and in the morning.

Carry a minimum of cash. It is safer to use Travelers Checks. Take along a check book.

Leave window shades in normal positions.

Turn off furnace and water faucets. Double check stove burners and oven.

Remove all perishable foods and turn down refrigerator thermostat.

Travelers should have their car thoroughly serviced, and take along an extra set of keys.

Check all windows and doors for security, including cellar windows and garage door.

Do not disconnect the phone or hide a key to the house anywhere outside.

Don't leave notes about vacation plans where they can be seen by intruders.

One Month Of Activities Enjoyed By Playground Youth

The Playground program sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Department is one for children of ages five and one-half through 13 years. The program is diverse, with various activities scheduled daily.

The choice of activities is geared to the age and interests of the participating youths. Sports like baseball, softball, whiffleball, and kickball, are interspersed with games such as "Polly" and "In My Grandmother's Attic."

In addition, special field trips to places such as Benson's Animal Farm and the Alpine Slide are scheduled weekly. Individual leaders also organize their own mini-field trips, and special activities.

The playgrounds operate Monday through Friday at Leonard, MacDonald, Ambrose, and Ginn at 9 a.m., and continue until 1 p.m. On Wednesdays the time is extended until 4, to allow for special events.

In addition, the Cultural Arts Program is offered at the high school for those youths wishing an intensified arts program. However, Cultural Arts is available on a weekly basis as part of the regular playground program, for all children.

The playground and arts leaders have summarized their activities during the past week of the summer season. To join, call the Recreation Department at 729-4514.

Arts And Crafts

Kites have been flying over Winchester this week. Beautiful butterflies, sun designs and exotic birds filled the air after a morning of kite-making on Monday in Arts and Crafts.

Egg shell mosaic was a new medium used by the children later in the week. This involved painting and crushing egg shells, and then gluing them to pieces of cardboard making patterns or pictures.

"Sporty" oaktag puppets were dancing in the art room by the end of the morning on Friday. The children learned how body joints work.

Stiff paper was used for parts of the body and brass fasteners were used to secure the joints. String was tied to the ends of the limbs to stick at the top of the puppet as a handle for different gestures.

By the end of the day there were star swimmers, a great gymnast, horseback riders and more movable puppets to enjoy.

The afternoon groups enjoyed a very colorful and musical week of activities. Newspaper hats were decorated with paints, glitter and construction paper on Monday. These were arts and crafts "Crazy Hats."

The following day involved the designing of wonderful paper bag jackets. Some of the outfits made were fancy military uniforms, stunning evening dresses of black felt and velvet, and some interesting combinations of different print materials, buttons and white buckles.

These three days of extensive creative output ended with a loud, but happy bang. Arts and Crafts had a parade. The children donned their hats, decorated jackets and noisy shakers.

And to the tunes of John Phillips Sousa they marched around the artroom and outside.

After all this activity some quiet games were planned for under the trees. "Telephone," "Who's Missing" and "Contnue this Story" were a few of the games we played.

All kinds of exciting things were happening down at Arts and Crafts this week. Besides having a parade, the groups did some other fancy foot work. Feet painting was the project of the day on Wednesday. What could have been a very confusing and messy event went over very well ending with an interesting and different kind of finished project.

The feet that so often are not appreciated for all the hard work they do had a free-for-all. To three different kinds of music, "quiet," "marching," and "jazz," the children's feet made colorful patterns.

Once the "dancing" was all done the children went back into the painting and outlined the foot marks with wax crayons. This helped them to recognize what the bottom of their feet look like and the patterns that they make.

Ambrose

Completing one full month of activity, without Skylab or a stray DC 10 falling down, all went well at Ambrose Field.

Monday morning began with a bit of a dreary, drizzly mist. This, however, was quickly dispatched by Brian Pothier's cousin Larry, who, being from Georgia, made but one call to Jimmy, and as quickly as you could say "roasted peanuts" the sun was out!

The morning's activities included Frisbee, running-the-bases, and whiffle ball. A quick brunch of donuts was consumed, followed by more action on the field.

Later in the day a trip was taken to Friendly's Ice Cream Shoppe where ice cream cones seemed to be the biggest hit.

Tuesday morning began with a neighborhood search for tin cans. Brian Pothier and Dan Cummings lendt their assistance in cleaning local streets and fields of these items. In a very short period of time all the cans needed were found, washed off, and readied for use, at the command of Beth Russell, and arts and crafts instructor.

Her lesson for the day would convert these empty cylinders into fine percussion instruments called "Maracas." Using different types and sizes of beans, tissue paper, string, tape and glue, Beth was able to turn thoughts to sunny Spain.

Among those participating in the project were Sarkis Majanian, Matthew Mallio, Michael and Sean Duffy, David Westner, Robbie Abbanet and others.

Later during the morning, Officer McKinley from the Winchester Police Department stopped by to visit, renewing old friendships with some of the children seen around town regularly during the school year.

To end the day a quiet period of storytelling and free candy was in order.

Wednesday Ambrose went on the Alpine Slide trip, so there was no activity on the field.

Thursday morning began with two active games: whiffle ball and running-the-bases. The pace was furious, and the action tense. The water cooler was emptied twice within an hour, as a strong thirst had been created by the non-stop running.

By mid-morning the children were quite ready to enjoy more quiet activities and once again it was time for more arts and crafts with Beth Russell. The second lesson for the week was a big hit, painting with straws. This involved spreading some paint on a paper, and blowing through a straw to create individual designs.

This exercise proved to be as adventurous as it was fun, especially for Jimmy McGeehan. With the help of some watered down green paint Jimmy was almost able to challenge the Jolly Green Giant for a part in the next Niblet Corn Commercial.

After arts and crafts, a basketball game of 21 was played with Nancy Brooks and Ellen Donahue exhibitig their skills. The day was concluded by a scavenger hunt, with Nancy Brooks, Brendon Maney and Sarkis Marjanian all showing great ability to find the requeted items.

Friday arrived with the weather turning hotter and summer letting its full warmth be felt. The day was one in which more slowly played games were sought out rather than physically active ones. After some very short games of whiffle ball, the major aim of the day was staying cool.

Some good chalk drawings were done on a shady area of hard top, as well as games such as Tic-tac-toe, Charades, and Simon Says.

Ginn Field

A wet Ginn Field on Monday and Tuesday brought about the creation of a new game: parking lot baseball. The parking lot, which is fenced on three sides, serves as an excellent playing field.

The children used their creativity to upgrade the "field" with improvements such as old telephone poles for foul poles, and road cones to mark distances.

When the game is played with a whiffleball bat and large plastic ball, it's a high scoring affair. Kevin Scully is the current home run champ, followed by David Sevigny, Rob Williard, Peter Quinne and Jim Feely.

On Wednesday many of the children went on a field trip to the Alpine Slide in Andover. The Alpine Slide is similar to a bobsled run. In addition to the slide down, one gets to the top of the slide by riding a ski lift.

On Thursday the instructors, the girls and a few boys played the rest of the hotshot boys in softball. The instructors scored four runs in the top of the first and never looked back as they walloped the hotshots 13-8.

The instructors were led by the pitching of Patty Laing and the great defensive plays of Chris Burns, Tom Porell and Kelly Gately, who made a great catch in short left and then collided with Porell, but still held on to the ball.

John Dobbins and Maria Monturi alternated between center field and second base. Liz Bracken played a steady game and consistently managed to hit the ball past the drawn-in infielders.

The hotshots, despite their poor performance, looked good on a few occasions. The combination of Kevin "call me George Brett" Scully, David Sevigny, and Jim Kirkpatrick came close to turning over three double plays.

Joe "the heck with baseball" O'Connor was the losing pitcher. Phil Kirkpatrick relieved Joe later in the game. Phil is known as Mr. Strikeout, not for his pitching ability but for his hitting ability in parking lot baseball.

The hotshot outfield consisted of Jim Feely, Peter Quinne and Lawerence Fotsch, who played well but were chasing the many hits made by the instructors team.

The Ginn girls' softball team held on to win a close one against MacDonald Field, 12-10. Again, the Ginn team played with only seven members.

After gaining a 12-4 lead, MacDonald came back with six runs in the top of the inning, but it wasn't enough.

Stars of the game were Beth Wilfert and Susie Allard, both of whom had four hits and some outstanding defensive plays. The winning pitcher was Tricia Bracken who pitched a great game while frustrating the MacDonald hitters.

Other excellent players for Ginn were Diana Howland, Tina Lane, Charlotte Hartunian, and Liz Bracken. Coaches for the game were Maria Montouri and Kelly Gately. After the game, the team traveled to McDonald's Restaurant to celebrate the victory.

Leonard

Although the week had dismal beginnings, both the weather and temp at Leonard picked up by the time Friday came around. This was the first week all summer plagued with less than perfect playground weather.

Even though Monday and Tuesday were rather damp, the children at the field made the most of the day. A full slate of activities including whiffleball, keep-away frisbee, and nature-print making ensued.

The Alpine Slide trip, taking place on Wednesday, was the favorite of the week and of the entire year as 27 youngsters from Leonard traveled to the giant slide in Andover. Energies were difficult to contain both to and from the Boston Hills Ski Area, as this trip had been awaited with great anticipation and excitement for many weeks.

Thursday was "Animal Day" at Leonard's Field. The children participated in everything from "Animal Charades" and "Animal Faces" games to making animal hand puppets. Just about every child told of his favorite animal, whether it be a stuffed Kermit-the-Frog, or a newly born puppy. There was a visit from Max, the very special dog who belongs to Jill and Scott Slater.

Leonard now has its very own colors and tee-shirts to represent the field. Light green and avacado green will be the symbol of Leonard from now on, as this color combination was tye-dyed on tee-shirts brought down to the field on Friday by the children.

Next week, the field will be making a chalk mural, waking to a pizza lunch, and having a "crazy-sandwich-picnic.

MacDonald

Poor weather at MacDonald slowed down activities early in the week. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Peter DiZio continued to dominate Mike Breen, Dan and John O'Connell, Sandy Young and John Carey in croquet.

On Tuesday, the children enjoyed whiffleball. Sandy Young, Peter DiZio, Mike Breen, and John O'Connell made use of the new whiffleball and bat, while the softball team journeyed to Bellino's for a pizza party.

Sheila Connolly, Kim Grano, Sandy Young, Kathy Morandi and Amy Morse wish to thank the waitress at the pizza shop for her patience and good humor.

On Wednesday, Peter DiZio returned to capture the "Hi Li" tournament from Mike Breen and Danny O'Connell.

Thursday, the "croquet crew" included Billy Gannon, Ericka Gannon, Michelle Lane, Debbie Taylor, Mike Breen, Sandy Young, and Peter DiZio. Sandy took Peter's title from him by winning four games, while Mike Breen won three, Billy Gannon took two, and Peter DiZio won one game.

Later, all the children enjoyed a "Balloon Toss." Debbie and Pam Taylor completed 17 tosses, Peter DiZio and Mike Breen completed 15, Sandy Young and Debbie Taylor tossed 13 times while Billy and Ericka Gannon completed three tosses.

The girls then had a short kickball game while the boys practiced baseball.

Friday, arts and crafts instructor Stephanie Ruta brought all the children over the basketball court to make clay sculptures. The most interesting and amusing had to be Pam Taylor's "snake with measles."

Later the children played croquet and Peter DiZio returned to capture his crown. Another balloon toss was held before the MacDonald girls hosted the Ginn girls in their third softball game.

The "Big Macs" lost by only two runs as the final score was 12-10. Pitching duties were shared by Patty Taylor and Julie Gibbons. Patty Taylor also got a homerun for her team.

Other players deserving mention are Joyce Gibbons, Kelly Powers, Sandy Young, Sheila Connolly, Kathy Morandi, Kim Grano, Diane O'Connell and Debbie Taylor.

Some fine hitting was done by the MacDonald girls: Patty Taylor, Julie Gibbons, Kathy Morandi, Joyce Gibbons, Debbie Taylor, and Kim Grano.

Catcher Sandy Young shared duties with Kelly Powers because she had a sore ankle. Sandy's dedication to her team was evident by her disappointment in not being able to complete the game.

Coach Mary Ann Beaton is proud of all her girls and will travel with the team to Ginn next Friday for another game.

Cure For A Hot Summer Day: Try A Canoe Trip

Canoeing down area waterways are seniors, Violet and Kaspar Myrvaagnes, and Claire and Mal Masters. Canoe trips for seniors are held almost every Friday. For more information, call the Senior Center at 729-2111.

By DOROTHEA COPECK-NOLAN

On a hot summer day, isn't it nice to just lay around in front of the air conditioner? Or maybe sit in the shade sipping lemonade? These are some typical approaches to summer's dog days, but not the approach of Winchester's ever-active senior citizens.

While most of us dread long hot days with temperatures in the 90's, our seniors take them head on. "Being really involved in an activity is one way to forget about the heat," according to Mrs. Kaspar (Violet) Myrvaagnes. Violet follows her own advice, as was evident by her presence on a recent canoe trip led by Mal Masters. Also braving the heat were Mal's wife, Claire Masters, Violet's husband, Kaspar Myrvaagnes, Mrs. H. D. (Rosalie) Lamson, Sally Wund, John Emerson and Howard Wittet. Every Friday in the summer all the interested seniors gather and drive to a nearby river where they paddle the day away.

This last Friday the seniors went for a five-mile paddle down the Charles River as it winds through Wellesley, Natick, Dover and Needham. After 'putting in' at a suitable spot off of Route 16 on the Wellesley-Natick line, John and Mal moved one of the cars down river while Claire co-ordinated the canoe seating.

Canoe seating is a very delicate matter. It necessitates matching the strength, skill and swimming ability of each canoer with an appropriate partner. (This is rather like putting together a puzzle without the benefit of a picture.)

Mal and Claire have both been canoe instructors for the Appalachian Mountain Club and have the organization of a canoe trip perfected. As a result of this careful planning and experience, there were no spills and only a few inevitable soggy sneakers.

Along the way, Mal pointed out flowers or birds of interest such as a blue heron and some pickerel weed. Throughout the day, everyone kept a sharp eye out for the unusual or beautiful. Sally, who is a member of the Winchester Conservation Commission, took a number of photographs for her portfolio and collected some plant specimens.

After an exploration of a side stream, they stopped for lunch in a shady little glen near the river. This was followed by a leisurely afternoon paddle down the river. Although the river banks were dotted by many beautiful homes and signs of civilization, the afternoon was quiet and full of the subtle sounds of nature. There was a feeling of being far away from the town hussle.

At the end of the day the seniors toasted each other with what Claire dubbed as 'solar heated' water.

According to Mal, there are 20 or so frequent senior canoers, with any combination of 10 going every week. Canoeing fundamentals can be quickly learned. This was evident by the ease with which a novice on Friday's trip picked up the strokes and canoeing rules.

Claire and Mal Masters are both excellent coaches and everyone is always ready to lend a hand.

Canoeing is a sport that can be equally enjoyed by all ages for many years. If you would like to try canoeing, canoes may be rented from the Red Wing Boat Club of the Needham YMCA, the South Bridge Boat House in Concord, and the Foote Brothers in Ipswich. Mal Masters has offered to answer any questions about where to go and he can be reached through the Jenks Senior Center or at 729-1039.

If you are a senior citizen and want to give it a go, contact the Jenks Senior Center at 729-2111. After all, as Howard Wittet says "We're not retired, we're just retreaded."

For Senior Citizens...

There are three more cooking classes for senior citizens left this summer. Today from 10 a.m. to noon Helen Hodgdon, director of food services, will teach Cooking for One or Two at the Center.

A small fee is charged to cover the materials used in the class. Advance registration is requested by calling the Center.

The class teaches the creation of appetizing, nutritious and economical meals for seniors. Sessions after today will be held Aug. 2 and 9.

The August Senior Center Newsletter will be mailed to seniors today. Check your mailbox for a description of upcoming senior programs.

Seniors will travel to Lake Sunapee tomorrow to enjoy a lake cruise and buffet lunch. The group will leave the Center at 9:15 and return at 4:30. A fee will be charged.

On Aug. 8, a trip is planned to Kennebunkport, Me., where seniors can enjoy the small shops and coastal waters.

Lunch will be at the old Grist Mill. The group will leave at 9 a.m. and return home at 5 p.m. A fee will be charged. Call the Center for more information.

If you have fall Fiesta Fair items to be listed in the newsletter, call Paul Marcous, 729-4268, fair chairman.

This year's Christmas table at the fair needs some items to make holiday creations.

Bring the following items to the Center, or call Ann Hinds, 729-5281.

Needed are small black buttons, L'Eggs containers, felt, yarn scraps, old nylon stockings, baby food jars, lace and any trimmings.

Tomorrow Mal Master will host a canoe trip for seniors. Registration should be made in advance with Master, 729-1039. Trips leave from his house at 3 Ginn rd.

No trips will be held Aug. 3 or 10, but they will resume Friday mornings beginning Aug. 17.

For those who prefer a harbor cruise to canoeing, Captain Dick Clifton hosts tours along the local waterways and into Boston Harbor. Trips leave from the Medford Boat Club.

Sign-up in advance is necessary, and a small fee is charged. For more information on trip dates, call the Center at 729-2111.

Parents, Children In Six Week Adventure Enjoy Dinner

Last Friday was one of the highlights for the Six Week Adventure Program this summer. The children from Lena Park Project in Dorchester stayed after 3 p.m. and spent the afternoon in the homes of their Winchester friends.

Then approximately 30 parents from Lena Park and 50 parents from Winchester joined together for a old-fashioned homemade supper of baked chicken, fruitcup and potato salad.

The Six Week Adventure campers picked berries and made jam for the bread which they also helped make. The dinner was planned and supervised by Nancy Van Roosen. The children made mats and centerpieces for the tables, served and cleared and presented a talent show. All the families enjoyed the dinner and entertainment.

Six Week Adventure, Winchester's interracial summer program, begins its fourth week this week. The program this year offers many improvements over last year's excellent program.

This year the Middlesex and Suffolk county 4-H chapters have provided training for the Six Week staff. The children have been able to learn to plant seeds, make plant cuttings and incubate hatchable eggs.

In addition to the swimming program now has three swimming instructors. Each child has been tested and placed at his appropriate level in order to receive a semi-private (four to five in a group) lesson each week.

Under the very able leadership of director, Robin Cooper, and administrator, Sandra Wahl, the activities have been stimulating, varied and individualized.

The response from Winchester volunteers has been gratifyingly large this year. This has enabled Six Week Adventure to offer crafts, music, nature, cooking, sewing and a well-supervised athletic program.

There are still a few places for the second session; if interested call 729-4739. Also, the donations have not equalled last summer. To make a donation to this program, please mail it to Sandra Wahl, Six Week Adventure, 93 Loring ave. Winchesters, 01890. Checks can be made payable to: Six Weeks Adventure—WEA.

Boat Club Snipe Invitational Held July 7, 8

The Winchester Boat Club sponsored its annual Snipe Invitational Regatta on July 7 and 8. Forty-four boats from the host club and several local clubs participated in this three-race weekend event. Race committee chairman Berta Swanson set three Olympic courses, two on Saturday and one on Sunday.

Saturday's northerly wind let the sailors use the entire lake, and young Joe Zarkin of Quassapoag, Conn., bettered many more experienced sailors and won two races. The race committee had to delay the Sunday race for over an hour, waiting for a consistent breese. Dave Lence of Winchester made the most of the shifting conditions and was a winner.

A cookout for participants and their families was held at the home of Mrs. Martin Swanson on Saturday evening. Following the race on Sunday, Fleet Captain Norman Towle and Commodore George Dillon awarded trophies to the top five skippers and crews.

They are:

First, Joe Zarkin and Scott Pond, Quassapoag Y.C., Conn; second, Dave Lence and Cicely Hall, Winchester Boat Club; third, John Lally and Chita DeVilafrance, Cottage Park Y.C., Winthrop; fourth, Robert Gorman and Mary Zambo, Marlboro; and fifth, Charles Hagedoran and Jim Bowers, Winchester Boat Club.

Recreation Trip Planned To Benson's Farm

The Winchester Recreation Department is sponsoring another special field trip for Winchester youths on Aug. 8. Benson's Wild Animal Farm in Hudson, N.H., is the destination for the Wednesday trip, open to everyone five years or older.

Benson's Wild Animal Farm is 38 miles from Winchester and offers various activities from animal acts to inexpensive kiddie rides including the merry-go-round, jungle express, and tilt-a-whirl.

In addition, Benson's offers a large and diverse wild animal collection, on display at the park.

Children may bring their own lunch to eat at the large picnic area located at Benson's, or may buy their lunch from one of Benson's snack bars.

The bus will be leaving the parking lot across from the Town Hall at 10 a.m., and will arrive back home at 3 p.m. Registration for the Benson's trip closes on Aug. 3, at 1 p.m. Youth may sign up at one of the playgrounds (Leonard, Ginn, MacDonald, or Ambrose), or with the Arts and Crafts program located in the high school art room. Bus and ticket fees will be collected at the time of registration.

We received a press release the other day which began: "The Metropolitan District Commission has approved a plan for voluntary admissions at the Walter D Stone Memorial Zoo in Stoneham. . . ." We must have been watching too many Medical Center reruns, because our first thought was, "Voluntary admissions? Leaping lizards! You can check yourself into the zoo!" When we had calmed down and read a little further we realized that the press release was announcing that admission to the 26-acre zoo would henceforth be by contribution, the way it is at the Gardner Museum. The cost of keeping wild animals has risen just like the cost of keeping a family has, and the zoo management feels that a small contribution from everyone who enjoys the zoo is the most painless way of dealing with inflation. The recommended donation is 50 cents for children, $1 for adults.

The John Woodman Higgins Armory Museum is still at 100 Barber Avenue in Worcester. The Armory Corporation recently turned down a proposal under which the Armory, founded by Higgins in 1931, would have become a part of the Worcester Art Museum. The Art Museum, which is in the process of building a new wing, had offered space there for the Armory collection, but Armory trustees decided to keep the armor — more than a hundred suits of it, some pieces as old as 2500 years — in situ, despite rising costs. Both the Armory and the Art Museum, at 55 Salisbury Street, combine to make Worcester a pleasant day-trip from MetroBoston.

We have a pamphlet that the amateur aficionado of architecture might find useful for a specialty tour of the Commonwealth. Mansions of Massachusetts describes a dozen stately homes, including the Parson Capen House in Topsfield (1683), the Royall House in Medford (circa 1735), the Mayflower Society House in Plymouth (1754, substantially enlarged in 1898), and Naumkeag, the Choate House in Stockbridge (1885). The text, by Margaret Smith, is concise and informative, and is accompanied by evocative black-and-white photographs. Mansions of Massachusetts, which is published by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, also includes a selective list of some of the hundreds of historic houses that are open to the public in Massachusetts. The houses are listed chronologically so that for anyone with a special interest in, say, buildings of the Federal period, it only takes a minute to discover that Lyman House in Waltham and the Stephen Philips Memorial Trust House in Salem are also open for tours.

To get your copy, send three 15-cent stamps (no coins) to Mansions, Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, One Ashburton Place, Boston, MA 02108. You will also receive a copy of Homes, a more complete listing of historic houses in the state.

* * * * * * * *

In case you're planning to go down to Newport for the Opera Festival, which starts there on August 4 (and music is just one reason to visit Newport, a truly pretty town), here is a telephone number you'll want to jot down: 1-800-556-2484. That's the Rhode Island vacation gasoline and tourist information line, updated daily by the state's Department of Economic Development.

And in case you've lost the gasoline availability numbers we gave you last month and are about to set out on a motor tour, we repeat: Dial 1-800-922-8265 from 9 am to 9 pm for the Massachusetts Energy Phone. The Berkshire County AAA provides recorded information for western Massachusetts at (413) 442-1212, and for New Hampshire information, you can dial 1-800-258-3608. The crisis, if ever there was one, seems to be less of a crisis every day, but running out of gas is no fun even in the best of times.

Hot Time: Summer Things for Kids

By Harriet Webster

This week marks the midpoint of summer vacation, half the glorious season already spent, the other half stretching ahead. It is time to face the fact that perhaps we have not pulled our act together as we intended during those exuberant June days when the kids first got out of school. Perhaps this was the summer we wanted to expose the children to all sorts of pleasant experiences that there never seems to be enough time for during the more serious three-fourths of the year. Take heart; it is not too late. MetroBoston offers a wealth of treats just waiting to provide a much needed pick-me-up for wilting spirits during the long hot days ahead.

Whether your children's interests lean toward the arts, sports, animals, or exploration, you can enrich the summer with a collection of summer happenings that range from the artistic to the exciting, the intellectual to just plain fun.

The Historic Neighborhoods Foundation has designed three walking tours especially for children. Kids eight to 15 are invited to join A Kid's Eye View of the Waterfront, Friday mornings at 10. The 90-minute tour features visits to the fireboat dock and the customs house tower. The fee is $2.

The second tour, A Kid's Eye View of the North End, is a special one for children from six to 15. Leading participants through the narrow streets of Boston's oldest residential section, the guide encourages the kids to use all their senses to thoroughly experience the area's character. Highlights include visits to bakeries, a cheese factory, and a fish market. The tour is Tuesday and Thursday mornings at 10, and the fee is $2.50.

Children from five to 12 will enjoy Make Way for Ducklings, the tour that retraces the route of the famous mallard family immortalized in Robert McCloskey's book of the same name. A ride on the swan boats at the Public Garden is included in the $2.50 fee. This tour departs Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday mornings at 10:30.

Reservations and information concerning meeting places can be secured by calling 523-1860. Ten days advance notice is required for the North End tour.

An unusual summer-in-the-city experience is offered by the Children's Art Centre at 36 Rutland Street in Boston. The center runs a museum-studio workshop for children six years and up. Participants pay a one-time $2 registration fee, which entitles them to unlimited visits, making this program one of the best deals in a long time. The center is open from 3 to 5 pm weekdays. Mondays and Fridays are devoted to painting, Tuesdays are for sculpture, and Thursdays are set aside for printing and collage.

Wednesdays are trip days, featuring an excursion to a place of interest, where children work on appropriate art projects. The schedule runs as follows: August 1, Institute of Contemporary Art; August 8, Crane's Beach; August 15, New England Aquarium; August 22, surprise; August 29, Arnold Arboretum. Kids hunt for treasure on each trip, using a plan outlined in a booklet they may keep. Participants are asked to bring money for entrance fees where necessary.

Program Director Susan Urdang stresses the drop-in nature of the program, explaining that kids may come to as many or as few events as interest them. For further information or a registration form, call 536-9666.

> MetroBoston offers a wealth of treats just waiting to provide a much needed pick-me-up for wilting spirits during the long hot days ahead.

Crafty kids will also be delighted by the workshops at area musuems. The John Woodman Higgins Armory Museum at 100 Barber Avenue in Worcester holds Tuesday afternoon sessions at 2 throughout August. The schedule is as follows: July 31, Make Your Own Helmet for ages six to eight; August 7, Make Your Own Shield for ages six to ten; August 14, story reading for ages four to eight; August 21, Make Your Own Sword, for ages six to ten; August 28, drawing class on armor for ages eight to 12. Workshop participants visit the exhibition halls with their instructor before delving into the projects. Each session lasts approximately one hour, and parents may explore the collection while the kids work. The fee is 75 cents per child, and reservations are requested. Call 853-6015.

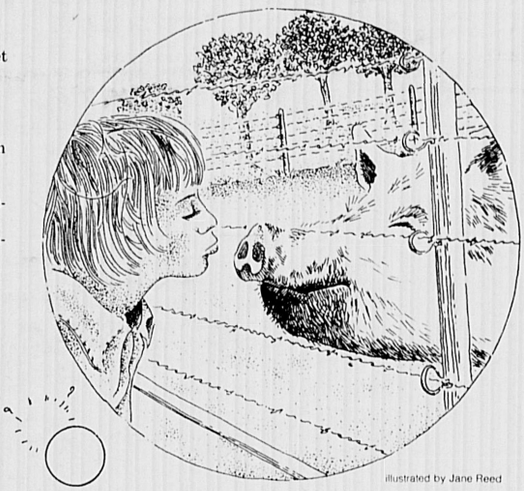
The Museum will hold a special session for adults and children on Saturday, August 18, featuring a demonstration of arms and armor. Swords and shields will see action alongside pole arms (sharp blades mounted on the ends of long poles). The only charge for the 1 pm event is the usual museum admission, $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for kids.

The Museum of Fine Arts has recently opened a new exhibit featuring puppets from the museum's collection. Shadow puppets from China and Java are included, along with a complete Commedia del'Arte Puppet Theatre. Complementing the exhibit is a four-week program for children six to ten called No Strings Attached, a puppet-making workshop culminating in the production of an original puppet show. The program begins July 31, and the eight sessions will be from 10:30 to noon on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. The fee is $16. To reserve a place, call Karolina Illigen at extension 290, 267-9300.

A really special morning awaits lucky kids at Orchard House, Route 2A in Concord, where Louisa May Alcott wrote Little Women. On Monday mornings from 9 to noon, children entering grades four to six may enter the 19th-century world of the Alcotts. Traveling back in time, participants will learn a lesson in father Bronson Alcott's schoolroom. They will also take part in story telling and a drama, as well as singing 19th-century popular songs like The Battle Hymn of the Republic. Games from the 19th century, such as hoop rolling and treasure hunting, are part of the fun, too. Typical 19th-century refreshments like graham crackers and cider are served. The program runs through August 20, and reservations are an absolute must. Call 369-4118 straight away to secure a space in one of the remaining sessions. The fee is $3.50.

If you find planning ahead difficult, here's a suggestion that you can act on seven days a week on the spur of the moment. The Children's Zoo at Franklin Park welcomes children six to 12 to take part in the Junior Zookeeper Program. Designed as an alternative to the usual public animal feedings, this program pairs kids up with keepers. Each day at noon children register as helpers to assist zoo keepers with the afternoon feedings. Each child is assigned to a particular type of animal; individual preferences are considered whenever possible. Junior zoo keepers observe the preparation of special diets and then help the keepers lug the chow out to the animals. When safety permits, the kids take part in the actual feeding. Imagine how thrilled your child would be to wade out through the tiny lagoon to the monkey islands to feed the chimps! Of course, there are also hungry reptiles and amphibians, members of the cat family like cougars and bobcats, birds, and a complete New England barnyard waiting for dinner. There is no charge beyond the 50 cents admission fee. The zoo can accommodate 23 children each day.

A different type of animal activity takes place each Sunday afternoon at 3 at the Myopia Hunt Club, Route 1A in Hamilton. Park your car along the sidelines, and watch the Myopia Polo Team pursue a small white ball across the mammoth playing field, lunging out with bamboo mallets from astride their well-kept mounts. More than 12,000 people watch the polo matches here each year, flocking to a field 300 yards long and 100 yards wide, bigger than three football fields put together.



illustrated by Jane Reed

A polo match consists of six seven-minute periods, with a three-minute break between. At halftime during a ten-minute break, spectators may participate in a worldwide tradition practiced wherever polo is played: replacing the divots torn up by the horses' pounding hooves. Polo is a fast sport, one that could hardly fail to keep a kid interested. Polo ponies travel up to 40 miles an hour, sometimes covering three or four miles during a single period. Because the game is so grueling, most players use several ponies in a single match. The action continues through October, and the fee is $2, with children under 12 free. Bring along a picnic.

If your children have more conventional tastes when it comes to sports and you've been promising them a trip to Fenway Park, mark down August 8 on your calendar. At 1:30 pm the Red Sox will meet the Cleveland Indians for a make-up game, which is family day. The head of the household pays $4.75 for a reserved grandstand seat, and each additional family member pays $3. In the bleachers the head of the household pays $3, and the rest of the tribe sits down for $2 apiece.

Your children may have nagged you to take them to bat day, helmet day, backpack day, and the like. These giveaways, where each child gets the named item to take home free, are promotional events scheduled whenever attendance begins to lag. At present, the Sox are packing 'em in, so no such special events are scheduled. But keep your ears alert come September.

Enough with the sports. How about taking the kids to the theatre? The Lyric Stage at 54 Charles Street in Boston presents three different shows that should hold the interest of children from five years up. The schedule runs as follows: July 27 and August 3, The Adventures of Harlequin; July 30 and August 6, Instant Clowns; August 1, Tom Thumb the Great. Performances are held at 10:30 am and 12:30 pm, and admission is $2.50. More information at 742-8703.

If you and your kids have tired of the scene at the local beach and if you have worked hard at perfecting your sand castle techniques, then you deserve a special day. Consider entering the annual Sand Castle Contest at Steep Hill Beach in Ipswich on August 18 from 10 am to 5 pm. Parking is $5 per car, but there is no admission fee.

Professional designers and architects flock to this event, but they are in different judging categories than families. Be forewarned, however, that people put a lot of work into these creations; if you want to do yourself proud, you'll have to sit down with the kids, paper and pen in hand, and figure out a plan in advance. Winning is not that important, though. What counts is getting the whole family involved in a fascinating project. Bring along buckets and shovels. Rain date is August 19.

As you search out special events to turn the dog days of summer into the best of the year, keep your eyes and ears alert for mention of local fairs and ethnic festivals, horse shows, and concerts. Summer is chock-full of such activities, so take advantage of them before the cold winds blow. □

Cafe Budapest

By Steven Raichlen

The scene opens in the plush blue bar of the Cafe Budapest. In a secluded corner, a young man sips a glass of tokaji aszu — Hungarian dessert wine — a golden nectar with overtones of fine sherry. The woman next to him toys with the tassel of the dinner menu. Somewhere, someone is playing a piano, and bow-tied waiters whisk stunning Viennese desserts to well-dressed matrons. Our fellow diners aren't paying much attention to the surroundings, however. Their glasses clink, their eyes meet, their hands touch. The Cafe Budapest has them under its spell.

The Cafe Budapest is not just for lovers, though few Boston nightspots can match its romance. Nor is the bar — the epitome of quiet elegance and comfort — the Budapest's only attraction. For lavish dining, there's the main dining room, an expansive, paneled chamber with a great brass espresso machine and tables adorned with crystal vases and cut-glass goblets. For an after-the-theatre supper, there's a weinstube with leaded glass windows and gaily colored place settings — pretty as a gingerbread house. The pink room off the bar would be an ideal place for gray-haired gentleman to uncork champagne for his starry-eyed mistress.

But the atmosphere is only half the appeal of the Budapest. The legendary Austro-Hungarian fare provides a more compelling reason to visit the restaurant. The food is brilliant, the food is wonderful — food that merges the mystery of Asia Minor with the majesty of France, food with Germanic restraint and Gypsy magic.

We began our meal with two traditional Hungarian appetizers — baked chicken paprikas pancake ($3) and iced tart cherry soup ($2.50), plus a plate of fresh smoked Irish salmon ($6). The "pancakes" were paper-thin crepes, not flapjacks, tightly rolled around a succulent chicken paprikas filling. The paprika — no doubt imported — lent the dish a pleasant warmth rather than a fiery bite.

The iced tart cherry soup was intriguing. The usual cherry soups balance the sweetness of cream, sugar and cinnamon against the tartness of wine and sour cherries. What makes the Budapest version so unusual is that it's salted — subtly but noticeably. We couldn't decide whether the soup was sweet or savory.

The Irish salmon was our hands-down favorite. The hand-sliced salmon came with the traditional Eastern European garnishes of minced onions, hard-cooked egg, tangy capers, and minute squares of pumpernickel. The pink ribbons of fish melted like salty mist on the tongue.

The house salad arrived next — a pile of crisp romaine dressed with vinaigrette laced with paprika. Not the tasteless red powder used by bad chefs as food coloring, mind you. This was the real Hungarian paprika — capsicum anuum; its piquancy contrasted pleasingly with the coolness of the lettuce.

The Budapest entrees raised us from the realm of excellence to the province of the sublime. Felicitous was the Sauerbraten à la Saint Hubert ($9.95), a fragrant, tender, marinated beef with bread noodle and cranberry sauce. Like gypsy violins, the cinnamon and ginger in the dish wove haunting melodies. The sauce was unbelievably meaty.

> The food is brilliant, the food is wonderful — food which merges the mystery of Asia Minor with the majesty of France, food with Germanic restraint and Gypsy magic.

Also delightful was the Scallopine of Veal Forestiere ($11.50), butter-soft veal in an exquisite cream sauce studded with smoky wild mushrooms. Served under a tall crystal bell jar, the veal was a showpiece for the eyes as well as the palate. The Nokkedli, egg noodles, were homemade and divine.

The Scampi à la Hongroise ($9.95) proved an intriguing dish, though one not so subtly handled as the veal and the sauerbraten. The pearly white shrimp lay in a pleasantly pungent sauce of green peppers — a dish as reminiscent of creole cooking as of the cuisine of Hungary.

The Cotelette de Boeuf à la Eszterhazy ($13.50) was the only disappointment — not because it was poorly prepared, but because it was refined out of existence. Traditionally, the meat bathes in a spicy sauce enlivened with capers and pickles. But the Budapest version was a perfectly grilled, but perfectly plain sirloin topped with threadlike fried onions and tangy compound butter. The dish failed to show off the genius of the chef.

Whether the greatness of the Austro-Hungarian Empire rubbed off on the pastries or whether the pastries helped forge the Empire, we can only speculate. And speculate we did, as we sampled the superb sweets from the Budapest dessert cart. There was dobos torte ($1.90), a multi-layered mocha-cream sponge cake with a hard, shiny caramel topping. There was champagne torte ($1.90), handsomely marbled and laced with heady rum. There was apple strudel ($1.90), which flaked into a million buttery pieces with each mouthful. There were fresh raspberries served with a Grand Marnier custard sauce — the panacea for all earthly woes. The strong dark Viennese coffee ($1) convinced us we'd found the way back to Eden.

The newcomer to the Cafe Budapest is bound to be struck by some of the restaurant's idiosyncrasies. One of these is the bread basket, which contains cellophane packages of Melba toast along with some perfectly palatable bread. What's odd is that each guest pays 35 cents for the pleasure of partaking. It's not that the Budapest is chintzy. The practice is a measure of the Budapest's authenticity, for in Central Europe you always pay for the bread.

The wine list can also be a little disconcerting for the uninitiated: it's all Hungarian! We sipped a Badacsonyi Szurkebarat ($8.50), a fine, sharp, assertive white wine, with our first course and a Szekszardi Voros ($9), a soft, spicy red wine, with our entrees. The lengthy annotations on the wine list help some — but unless you're an expert on Hungarian wine, you don't really know what you're ordering.

The service was the evening's only blemish. Bread plates arrived halfway through the meal; at least one piece of silverware was missing at each course.

The leisurely service at times bordered on negligence. The main dining room was crowded and noisy on a weekend — I'd make my next reservation during the week.

A nice final touch — the "doggie bags" come tricked out as tin-foil peacocks and baskets. □

The Wanderers

The Wanderers
Directed by Philip Kaufman from a script by Rose Kaufman and Philip Kaufman, based on the novel by Richard Price. With Ken Wahl, John Friedrich, Jim Youngs, and Tony Ganios. Scheduled to open Wednesday, August 1, in Boston and the suburbs.
By Maggie Hall

This must be the most romantically moral movie of gang warfare ever made, and it's not bad at all, though it's no West Side Story. The Wanderers is the American Graffiti of the Bronx, an urbanized, sidewalk's-eye view of a batch of high school kids in 1963. Led by a slick pretty-boy named Richie (Ken Wahl), they call themselves the Wanderers, taking the name from the song by Dion and the Belmonts. Remember? "I'm the type of guy who likes to roam around/ I'm never in one place/ I roam from town to town" — unparalleled mythic-heroic bebop. The Wanderers isn't a musical, but it's close: the songs (by Dion, the Four Seasons, the Shirelles, and others of that period and ilk) are tightly cued to the story.

The movie gets off to a finger-popping start with a Walk Like a Man sequence featuring a rival gang, the Fordham Baldies, astrut in the street, heads gleaming and Frankie Valli soaring on the soundtrack. It's a nifty introduction to the action, which starts in earnest when Richie's pal, Joey (John Friedrich), insults the chief of the Baldies — Terror, a beady-eyed mountain played by Erland van Lidth de Jeude — with an unprintable but accurate anatomical comment. The Baldies chase Joey and the Wanderers through the backyards of the Bronx to a showdown in an air shaft; the Wanderers are rescued by the last-minute appearance of the cavalry in the guise of Perry (Tony Ganios), an ox of a new-kid-in-town. Perry has certain mythic qualities himself, he's strong and silent; just the sight of him makes the Baldies — no cream puffs — turn tail and run for cover.

Richie, Perry, and the Wanderers (the other featured gang member is Jim Youngs) are all students at Tully High, where there is a black gang, a Chinese gang, an Irish gang, a Jewish gang, our gang . . . it's a little United Nations of street fighters. The Wanderers (like the others) go to school just to be sociable — they lay plans in English class to rumble with the Del Bombers — but most of their serious business is on the streets. They are out and about every chance they get, cruising in Perry's car, looking for action.

Action includes teen parties (with strip poker upstairs, pony lines, and surreptitious drink downstairs) and girl-baiting: hanging around trying to cop a feel. Whilst so occupied, Richie and Joey meet Nina (Karen Allen) who is, like Suzanne Somers in her white T-Bird in American Graffiti, fine and unattainable; in but not of the Wanderers' world. Richie and Joey compete for Nina, although Joey is a schlump and Richie already has a steady girl, Despie (Toni Kalem), bouffant-haired and old at 16. Richie and Joey don't know it, but Nina and Despie are Symbols of Womanhood; we know it, because they serve no other purpose in the movie. The girls don't cruise with the gang.

Action also includes fighting or rather talking about fighting, bragging, posing, and threatening to really mix it up. The Wanderers, worried about their chances of survival in a set-to against the Del Bombers, try to negotiate with other gangs to form an alliance, but nobody wants a piece of that action, and our boys — cocky but not too tough — are left to face the Bombers alone. And the big rumble? It's a football game (this is a romantically moral picture), with helmets and pads and everything. There's a metaphor for you. The high school stadium as jousting ground for youth at mid-century.

In fact, from the middle of the movie on, the metaphors come thick and fast. When the Wanderers are trying to consolidate their power, the Wongs (a gang of Chinese boys, all related) surround Wanderer headquarters, like ordinary kids on a raid one minute, and the next minute they are gone, inscrutable in the shadows, things that go "bump" in the night. The Wongs may or may not be real threats, but when the Wanderers wander into Ducky Boy territory, you know you're dealing with phantoms. The Ducky Boys all look exactly alike, with chinos and DAs: they are faceless, legendary bad guys, meaner than anybody, living in a kind of Nighttown of Bronx bad dreams.

This theme of archetypal spooks is murky but intriguing: everyone's childhood had something on the same order, kids from across town with inflated reputations, or hobgoblins — something to be afraid of. Indeed, The Wanderers is always interesting for its evocativeness as much as for its story. At the same time, it's a little uneven because it takes risks that don't always pan out.

Rose and Philip Kaufman, who wrote the screenplay (which Philip Kaufman directed) want to have written a sociopsychological history of the hopes and fears of the silent generation. It might have been better simply to have told the tale and let the history take care of itself. It is enough, for example, that Perry and Joey split for the coast; we don't need Nina to walk into a coffeehouse where a Dylan look-alike is singing The Times They Are A-Changin'. We know they are. For further example, at the end of the film, Richie passes a crowd gathered in front of the window of a television repair shop. The sets on display are tuned to a news program, reporting that President Kennedy has just been shot. The End of an Era. They couldn't have been any more clear if they'd written it across the screen, but give us a break, it's a gratuitous tug.

Nevertheless, The Wanderers is fun to watch, and great to listen to. And it's unlikely that this movie will cause any of the stir The Warriors (also a gang movie, so-called) did, unless it provokes a rage for shaven heads in emulation of the Baldies. □

#89 Yours Truly

By Don Rubin

This week's puzzle would be difficult were it not for the fact that we've actually given you the answers.

It's a simple who's who. (How embarrassing.) But, just to keep us honest, why not go through the motions anyway. Simply match these famous signatures with the clues we've provided.

Name _____

Address _____

Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through September 6 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Labor Day Lottery and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the September 13 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE puzzle desk, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

It Figures

Many a bleary-eyed puzzler answered this puzzle and one-third of them got it all right. We admit it; this was not an easy puzzle, and it did take quite a bit of figuring to unearth the nonconforming configurations. The answers appear on the diagram. Sorry, there's not enough space to explain each answer.
